EXTORTION FOUND GENERAL

$6 to $10 Tribute Said to Be Paid by Agents on Every Bond.

CONDITIONS A "DISGRACE"

LEGAL CURBS ARE URGED

Crain Uncovers Cases in Which Bondsmen Put Up Property They Did Not Own.

Charging that policemen and attachés of the magistrates' courts reap a rich harvest of "tribute" on the $50,000,000 in bail bonds written yearly in this city, the Federal grand jury and United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle late yesterday handed up a presentment to Federal Judge William Bondy. The document was the outcome of two weeks of investigation of the bond situation, during which eighty-two witnesses were examined.

The presentment, signed by Harry Harkness Flagler as foreman and by sixteen other members of the grand jury, said that it was customary for bond runners to pay $5 to the desk lieutenant in police stations. Tips of $1 or $2 followed to the turnkey, and when court was reached $5 or less was paid to the court attachés to enable the bailiff to get quickly into the magisterial presence. Favored bondsmen are permitted to sleep in some police stations in order to be on hand for any business.

The tribute, according to the grand jury, averages from $6 to $10 a bond. As a result of this graft the presentment found that it was not infrequent "to extort from the prisoner" as much as $50 on a $500 bond or as high as $100, or 10 per cent, on a $1,000 bond.

Conditions Called a "Disgrace."

"This burden" the document set forth, "falls on the poorer classes of people and constitutes a disgrace to our civilization."

District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain also turned his attention to bail bonds yesterday. He directed an assistant to investigate a dozen bonds to determine whether bondsmen had not sworn falsely to ownership of property posted as collateral for bonds. If the facts warrant it perjury indictments will be sought from a grand jury.

A copy of the presentment of the Federal grand jury is to be sent to George W. Wickersham, as chairman of President Hoover's Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement. The grand jury called for a cooperative effort by Federal, State and city officials to eliminate the abuses and evils of the bail bond system.

The grand jury referred to the fact that although there is a State law covering some phases of the situation, a law which the jurors had not heard had been enforced in recent years, there is great need for a Federal statute. Specifically, the presentment recommended as likely to aid in solving the problem, the following:

That the State Superintendent of Insurance require bonding agents to keep full record of their transactions. This, in the opinion of the grand jury, would tend to cut down the "tribute."

That a system be inaugurated whereby one of the twenty-seven city magistrates on a given night each month be assigned to sit for bonding agents.

That an agreement be made either by the bonding companies or by legislation, that all runners or agents be paid salaries rather than commissions.

Amendment of the State and Federal law so that summonses could be issued for petty offenses, or small cash bail accepted at station houses.

Appointment of a third United States Commissioner to sit at night.

After reviewing the investigation, in which Mr. Tuttle was aided by Assistant United States Attorney Lowell Wadmond, the presentment continued:

"The result of the earlier investigation by the United States Attorney was that the surety companies that did most of the bail business in the Federal Building made an agreement with the United States Attorney that each company would not have more than one representative and an alternate station in the building; that the hook-up between the runners and the small ring of lawyers would be discontinued; that not more than the maximum premium allowed by the State would be charged; and that

Whalen Earns Two Days Off By High Score on Pistol Range

Police Commissioner Whalen is entitled to two days off duty with full pay. He earned this reward for himself yesterday, when he made a visit to the shooting gallery in Police Headquarters, where members of the force report for practice. The Commissioner was on his rounds of inspection with Chief Inspector O'Brien. He watched O'Brien score 85 per cent on a target. Then selecting a .38 calibre special revolver, he fired several shots.

The Commissioner declined to reveal his exact score, but Inspector O'Brien admitted that his superior was almost as good a marksman as he was.

Policemen who show an average of 80 per cent or better are entitled to two days' vacation with pay, according to the regulations. Commissioner Whalen declined to answer a question as to when he would take his holidays, but instead highly praised the instructors in the shooting gallery.

GAMBLING CLEAN-UP ORDERED IN HOBOKEN

LISTS SUSPECTED RESORTS

Similar Ultimatums to Go to Other Cities in County in Drive by Republican.

John F. Drewen, Republican prosecutor of Hudson County, opened a campaign yesterday to force Democratic municipal officials to help him end the county's pre-eminence as a bookmaking centre.

Taking advantage of a seldom-used law, the prosecutor served a "clean up or go to jail" ultimatum upon Mayor Bernard N. McFeely of Hoboken and his Director of Public Safety, Joseph A. Clark. Similar warnings will be served within a few days upon officials of other cities where the prosecutor's men have discovered "criminal enterprises."

Mayor McFeely, whose city has been called "the last seacoast of Bohemia," received the prosecutor's missive with dignified disdain, referring the matter to Mr. Clark, who said he would "take whatever action the situation required." The Mayor's brother, James, and his sister, Mary, are awaiting trial on indictments charging them with perjury before the Case and McAllister legislative committees investigating conditions in Hudson County last year. He is a close friend of the Democratic "boss," Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City.

Charges Open Gambling.

Mr. Drewen, who has been harassing bootleggers, speakeasy owners and bookmakers ever since a political upheaval, which landed Morgan F. Larson in the Governor's office at Trenton, resulted in his appointment to office, notified Hoboken's Mayor that gambling was going on openly in ten resorts in his city. Unless this condition were ended within ten days, Mr. Drewen warned, he would seek the Mayor's indictment for nonfeasance. This is a misde-

CITY WILL REOPEN BUDGET TO INCLUDE $4,172,460 PAY RISE

Board Approves Berry Plan for Emergency Action on Police and Fire Increases.

SAYS FINANCES ARE AMPLE

Mayor Expected to Ask Special Legislation by Municipal Assembly Next Friday.

Reopening of the 1930 budget to include $4,172,460 for salary increases in the Police and Fire Departments was recommended yesterday to the Board of Estimate branch of the Municipal Assembly by Controller Berry. The Municipal Assembly unofficially adopted this unusual course which will raise the total for the budget to approximately $568,000,000.

The Controller had submitted a report made on behalf of a special committee composed of himself, Mayor Walker and Joseph V. McKee, President of the Board of Aldermen. It is expected that the necessary legislation will be introduced next Friday under an emergency message by Mayor Walker. The local bills requisite to the reopening of the budget and the insertion of the added amounts are being prepared by Corporation Counsel Arthur J. W. Hilly and Bill Drafting Commissioner William J. Cahill. They must be passed by both branches of the Municipal Assembly to become effective.

Sees Action Warranted.

Controller Berry in his report made it clear that the city's financial condition is easily such as to warrant the granting of the pay increases as they stood after having been scaled down from the original schedules filed by Commissioner Whalen and Commissioner Dorman, in order to re-establish the salary differentials in both departments which existed prior to the raising of the pay of the first-grade men by the referendum last Fall. He also made it clear, however, that the original requests of the two commissioners had been "pruned" after careful study by the committee, thus materially reducing their totals.

The Controller stated that, with the $5,000,000 included in the present budget and the additional sum of $2,427,813 which has been raised by the issue of special revenue bonds, the financing of the mandatory salary increases of the first-grade patrolmen and firemen has been provided for. The sum required to re-establish the salary differential in both departments, so as to preserve a proper ratio between the various grades and ranks of the uniformed forces, is $4,172,460.

Requests Cut $1,000,000.

The revised figures indicate that the original requests made by Commissioners Whalen and Dorman have been reduced between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.

Under the modified, or "pruned," schedules it appears that Commissioner Whalen now asks a flat increase of $500 a year in the salaries of all officers of the uniformed police force.

Increases also are asked for fire prevention inspectors, medical officers, chief marine engineer, fire marshal, chaplains, and the Fire Department asks for fifteen additional fire prevention inspectors at $2,100 each.

In his report to the Board of Estimate Controller Berry suggested that

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24.—Announcing an intention to arrest offending publishers as well as dealers in a campaign against indecent literature, the District Attorney's office today sent out raiders who seized books, illustrations and prints valued at $10,000 at the establishment of Horace F. Townsend in the Rittenhouse Square district and arrested Townsend.

More books and pictures were taken from a storehouse above a tea shop near by, also operated by Townsend. According to District Attorney Monaghan, the prisoner had catered to an ultra-fashionable clientele, selling books and other articles which have been banned from the country and which the District Attorney described as "disgusting in the extreme."

Among the books seized were several over which controversy has raged for years, both here and abroad. The raid was the first one in this city similar to those in Boston, and several of the volumes figured in the Boston campaign. The raid was the result of solicitation of a professional man as a prospective purchaser of the books, who complained to the prosecutor.

One of the volumes seized was "Lady Chatterly's Lover," by D. H. Lawrence, the sale of which led to the conviction of a Boston bookseller.

Mr. Monaghan said his next task woud be to locate and arrest the publishers, some of whom he declared were here and others in New York.

"This is only the beginning of the drive," he declared. "That stuff we seized today is vile and rotten, there can be no excuse for it. The plaint that it represents a high type of literature above the minds of the masses is bunk. It is [illegible]t pure filth and nothing else."

If convicted Townsend is liable to a fine of $1,000 or one year in prison, or both.

John Harriman Balks as Juror in Liquor Case; Says He Never Would Convict Under Dry Law

John Harriman, young clubman and son of Oliver Harriman, told Federal Judge William Bondy from the jury box yesterday that no matter how convincing the evidence might be he would not vote as a juror for the conviction of any defendant in a prohibition case. Assistant United States Attorney Robert B. Watts promptly moved that Mr. Harriman's name be stricken from the Federal list of jurors on the ground that he was not fitted for service.

As Mr. Watts paused for a reply from the bench, another talesman arose in the rear of the courtroom and volunteered that Mr. Harriman had expressed his sentiments "exactly." This talesman was George S. Patterson, a painter, of 126 West Ninety-first Street. Mr. Watts moved to strike Patterson's name off the jury list also. Judge Bondy reserved decision on both motions.

When Mr. Harriman expressed his anti-prohibition sentiment he was being examined as a potential juror in the Jones law case against Louis Weinfeld, charged with operating a still at 1,773 Topping Avenue, the Bronx. His statement recalled that a few days ago while being examined for jury duty, he was asked if he could not disregard his personal feelings if the evidence convinced him of the defendant's guilt.

"I do not believe so," Mr. Harriman then replied. "I believe in Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's principle of nullification."

On that occasion thirty-five of the panel of sixty talesmen were excused because they expressed sentiments in opposition to the prohibition law, and the jury finally selected acquitted the defendant, a negro, in less than ten minutes.

The jury selected yesterday to try Weinfeld, however, found him guilty, but strongly recommended clemency. Weinfeld was the first person to be convicted of violation of the Jones law in this Federal district. Judge Bondy gave him his choice of a $400 fine or three weeks in jail. He chose imprisonment.

Mr. Harriman is a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carley. He is a nephew of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Stephen H. Olin, Mrs. Harriman Havemeyer and J. Low Harriman. Oliver Carley Harriman is his elder brother. On Aug. 12, 1922, he married Miss Alice Laidley when both were 19 years old. She died in June, 1926, and on Oct. 12, 1927, he married Mrs. Anna Foley Munds, who had been the wife of Louis de L'Aigle Munds.

HATRY GETS 14 YEARS FOR BRITISH FRAUDS

SCORES BLOW TO BUSINESS

Daniels Sent to Penal Servitude for Seven, Dixon for Five and Tabor for Three Years.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The maximum sentence of fourteen years' penal servitude, which includes a period of stone-breaking, was passed by Mr. Justice Avery on Clarence Charles Hatry, who, with three associates, pleaded guilty to charges of forgery at the Old Bailey court today.

The judge sentenced Edmund Daniels to seven years penal servitude, saying Daniels had "taken a leading part." Describing Albert Edward Tabor as "a party to this gross scheme," he sentenced him to three years' penal servitude, and John Graham Dixon who, the judge said, "ordered the fictitious script to be printed," received a sentence of five years' penal servitude.

The judge, passing sentence, described the frauds as "the most appalling that have ever disfigured the commercial reputation of this country—frauds far more serious than any great frauds upon the public committed within the last fifty years."

Hear Sentences Calmly.

These four financiers, who would have been the steel kings of England if their gigantic gamble had succeeded, heard their fate without a flicker of emotion. It was as if these stoical men, as one observer remarked, had sworn a compact that the world outside should never know their thoughts and should never see their hearts. Evidence has disclosed that had it not been for their heavy commitments in other directions they would have clinched a deal for amalgamating the British steel industries, a move which would have brought them fortunes calculated in millions of pounds.

A dramatic story was told by Hatry's counsel today of the fatal night of June 22, 1929, when Hatry and his associates saw a danger of the steel merger falling through for lack of funds. They were in Hatry's sumptuous house on Great Stanhope Street, Mayfair, and the Italian Gialdini, who is now residing in Italy, where he is safe from extradition, according to the counsel, first mentioned the plan to fabricate stock in order to save the situation.

"Hatry was blinded by the enormity of the thing suggested by Gialdini," said the barrister. "Gialdini declared that if his scheme were not accepted there and then he would blow out his brains in Hatry's house rather than face disaster. Hatry and the others were impressed and in a weak moment gave way to temptation."

The court was surprised this morning when the attorneys for the defense announced that all the prisoners would plead guilty.

Judge Discounts Confession.

Sir William Jowitt, the Attorney General, then summarized the evidence. Hatry, he said, was the prime mover in all that was done, but Daniels was a "capable lieutenant."

"More serious than the actual amounts involved—about £822,000—enormous as they are, is the blow to confidence which has been struck," added Sir William. "It is difficult to see how any four men could have made the restoration of Britain's prosperity more difficult than these four in the dock."

CITY INQUIRY PLAN DROPPED AT ALBANY

GOT WORD OF HIS INTENTION

Bill for Investigation, Already Introduced, to Die—Other Not to Be Presented.

By W. A. WARN.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—Belief is now held here that the Republican proposal to have "corruption" in the administration of New York City investigated by a body whose appointment would be put up to Governor Roosevelt through legislative action has been abandoned, possibly in view of the probability that if such an inquiry were forced on the Chief Executive an investigation of every city administration in the State against which a complaint had been received would be the corollary.

The Republican proposal, without precedent in the annals of the Legislature, when first broached by the leaders, was widely denounced as a partisan design to put the Governor "in wrong" with Tammany Hall on the eve of an election at which he would need every vote he could muster for re-election. However, Governor Roosevelt is known to have received ample assurances, which were not solicited, that neither Tammany nor Mayor Walker would hold it against him if he conducted with vigor the inquiry which apparently the Republicans were determined to force on him.

The proposal for an investigation followed insistent demand from W. Kingsland Macy, Republican leader of Suffolk County, for such an investigation under the auspices of the Republican majority in the Legislature. The purpose was widely heralded in a statement issued by Senator Knight and Speaker McGinnies a week ago last Monday.

Bill Failed to Appear

It is understood that a bill was prepared to carry out the plan. Since then Hamilton F. Potter, one of the two Republican Assemblymen from Suffolk, has put in a concurrent resolution providing for a legislative investigation. George L. Thompson, veteran Republican representative of the Nassau-Suffolk district in the Senate, however, so far has refrained from introducing a companion measure.

Failure of the bill foreshadowed in the statement issued by the Republican leaders to make its appearance caused comment and widespread speculation until today, when light was shed on recent developments which have escaped public notice. Just how the Republican leaders became aware of what Governor Roosevelt had in mind is not known, but by this time they know what would be in store for a score or more of Republican administration up-State should they put through their plan to force the Governor to investigate or refuse to investigate the New York City Administration.

McGinnies Skeptical From Start.

It is understood that while Senator Knight had been eager for an investigation, Speaker McGinnies from the start had been skeptical with regard to the wisdom of the proposal. Now the Speaker has gone on record as being definitely opposed to any investigation originating at the Capitol of derelictions in the New York City Administration. The belief at the Capitol is that the Hamilton resolution will be defeated by the Assembly or killed in committee, and that the first bill prepared will go into a waste basket

FORMER OUTVOTED TWICE

LEATHER ALSO ON FREE LIST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—In a clash between the industrial East and the agricultural West, with the representatives of the East opposed to a high duty on hides and those of the West demanding greater protection, the Senate voted today to restore hides, leather and boots and shoes to the free list, and other manufactured leather products to the rates prescribed in the present law.

The vote represented a victory for neither section, as it leaves the West without a duty on hides, sought by the insurgent bloc, and the East without any duty on leather and boots and shoes. The Senate bill carried a duty of 10 per cent ad valorem on hides, 15 per cent on leather and 20 per cent on boots and shoes. The Eastern Senators appeared willing to accept the duties recommended by the Finance Committee, but the West insisted that the rate on hides was not comparable to the compensatory duty allowed on leather and boots and shoes.

The Westerners got behind the amendment of Senator Oddie, Republican of Nevada, which provided a duty of five cents a pound on raw hides and nine cents on cured hides. After it was defeated by a vote of 39 to 31, a modified amendment by Senator Oddie, providing four and eight cents a pound respectively, was rejected by a vote of 37 to 30.

Rally Behind Senator Borah.

When it was evident that the manufacturing centres represented by the regular Republicans stood adamant against increasing the duty on hides beyond 10 per cent ad valorem, the Westerners rallied behind the leadership of Senator Borah, who sponsored the amendment to place hides, leather and boots and shoes on the free list, and generally to restore other manufactured leather products to the present rate.

After the defeat of the Oddie amendment, Senator Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts, declared that the trend now would be to put leather and boots and shoes on the free list, to the ruination of these two big industries. He criticized the Western Republicans, who in turn charged that he was selfish in that he was not willing to give to the farmer the protection he sought for the manufacturer. Senator Walsh predicted that foreign goods made with the cheaper labor would undersell American boots and shoes and cause unemployment.

"I also believe that American manufacturers will build abroad," he said, "and lessen the American labor roll, so that they may take advantage of the free trade market here."

Senator Ashurst, Democrat of Arizona, quoted some verses from Spenser on mercy, and then suggested that the Senators should act with justice toward the Western cowboys who, he said, were unable to compete with those of Argentina.

"He who lives by free trade shall die by free trade," Senator Ashurst added. "If hides go on the free list, boots and shoes and leather shall go there too. The tariff policy will fail, and ought to fail, if the tariff on manufactured products is not extended to the ranch and the quarry."

"Missouri produces more boots and shoes than any other State, and stands for free hides and free shoes," interjected Senator Hawes. "We can't stand with the East or stand with the West. The proposal to

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—A big offensive in the long skirt war began today with the launching of the first Spring styles in Paris. Every one is asking whether the fashion dictators will settle the long skirt and fitted silhouette questions by modifications.

Advance assurances from some of the grand couturiers are to the effect that skirts will be both long and short. However, no hope is offered for knee freedom, because Paris is expected to refuse to check the downward flow of the fashionable skirt and insist on hiding knees under at least five inches of skirt hem.

There is every indication that skirt styles will be on a sliding scale, ranging from five inches below the knee to the floor for evening. Paris promises to relieve the fitted silhouette lines with boleros, cape effects and blousing, but holds fast to the natural waistline.

Spring fashions will be colored with pastels, and pinks, blues, greens and yellows will stand out.

SECURITY PLEDGES URGED TO OBTAIN CUTS IN NAVIES; OUR AID WILL BE SOUGHT

Conference Fails to Hold First Place in London Papers

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Conference news is playing hide and seek on the front pages of the London dailies. When King George opened the meeting the story was given first position, with numerous picture layouts. Next day it was difficult to find it, even inside the newspapers.

With the first meeting in St. James's Palace the conference story came back to compete with such news as the Hatry trial. One day the conference was the headliner and the next a microscope would assist in finding the few lines devoted to it.

CRUISER CUT FIRST, AMERICANS INSIST

They Will Ask Limitation of Submarines and Destroyers Before Battleships.

GIVE ADVICE TO ITALIANS

Conference on Controversy With France Lasts Nearly Two Hours.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The American delegates to the naval arms conference will insist that all categories not regulated in the Washington treaty of 1922, namely, cruisers, destroyers and submarines, be finally limited at London before the problems involving battleship replacement, size or armament are taken up. Also their position is that the cruiser problem should be the first to be solved and after that the problems of submarines and destroyers.

The viewpoint of the American delegation is undivided. All are agreed on the soundness of the United States attitude. The matter involving cruisers of the United States and Britain, while on the surface it seems difficult of adjustment, is not nearly so serious as it might appear to the man in the street. The fact is that the tonnage of three cruisers, which totals 30,000, is the only thing standing in the way of complete agreement, so far as the English-speaking nations are concerned.

With the cruiser problem solved, it will be easy to settle submarines and destroyers, and after that may come the battleship problem. It can be stated on high authority that the United States is not ready at this conference to discuss the abolition of capital ships. She is ready for serious conversations on the advisability of reduction of the size, armament and number, but that is all for that class of ships.

Would Discuss Tonnage Cuts.

America is expected to agree to discuss reduction of tonnage from the Washington treaty maximum of 35,000 to less than 30,000 and the calibre of guns to a maximum of thirteen and a half inches, which is the present calibre on the last four ships of the British fleet. The suggestion from United States sources for discussion at this time is 27,500 tons maximum, effective for all replacements. It must be kept in mind that while the United States is ready to give serious consideration to them, these propositions are not to be taken as the final word on the American attitude.

America probably is ready immediately to agree to reduction in the number of capital units from eighteen to fifteen which, it should be explained, is in fact provided in the Stimson Gives 3 News Groups Advisers' Seats—Other Nations May Do Likewise.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—In the various private conversations, going on almost hourly among the delegates to the London Naval Arms Conference, the possibility of political arrangements which may have a good effect on naval reduction is being discussed in a general way.

As is natural, the political angle is being talked over to a greater degree by the British, French and Italian delegations than by the Americans and Japanese, for it is evident that any plans for the political stabilization of the Mediterranean situation, so important to the success of the conference, must leave the Americans and Japanese pretty much outside, since they have not the same interest in it as the European delegations.

However, it is not to be taken for granted that the Americans will not be brought in at the proper stage, and, indeed, it would be no surprise if feelers have not already been put out. There is not the slightest desire on the part of any delegation to try to take the Americans further along this road than they elect to go, but it is sure that at some stage, formally or informally, the Americans will be asked to join in a general agreement among the five powers as signatories of the Kellogg pact not to help the aggressor in any future conflict. It is not believed the Americans have formulated any position on such a question, which would probably come later in the negotiations.

Agree Navies Are Relative.

Every one here agrees that navies and the need for navies are largely relative. The Americans lean to the theory that their navy is purely relative to the navies of other countries. The French, and to a less degree the British, think they also have relative defense needs which are affected by political conditions.

Premier Tardieu made it plain yesterday at the session in St. James's Palace that France would calculate her needs in one way if she had to depend only on herself, but in another way if "international collaboration has been organized against an aggressor." Premier MacDonald said he hoped for a change in the British naval psychology by assurances that Britain's sea paths would never be blocked.

All sorts of plans are being talked of vaguely. There is the plan to supplement the Kellogg pact; there is the proposed English Channel protection pact for the British; the Mediterranean non-aggression pact asked by the French, and so on. Statesmen other than the Americans have been discussing such projects for years at Geneva, and it is only natural they should make an appeal in the situation existing here. Great attention is being paid to the advice of Aristide Briand, French Foreign Minister, and he is present at nearly every conversation where political conditions come up.

There are present in London the delegates of five nations which have 80 per cent of the naval strength of the world. Looking at the political cooperation possibility from the maximum side, one may speculate that, if these five countries bound themselves never to fight each other and to help each other if any was attacked from outside their combination, they could cut their fleets by more than half and still be perfectly safe if their compact held. Of course, no one thinks of going any such distance here. Such is merely pointed out as an ultimate and theoretical possibility. On the other extreme each nation would regard its fleet as a purely national instrument for its own national purposes.

Agreement Midway Desired.

Bearing in mind such examples of international cooperation as the covenant of the League of Nations and the Kellogg pact, it is being asked if there does not exist a chance between these two extremes to reach an arrangement which would increase the feeling of security and thus bring the nations to cut their navies.

Since the French case is the simplest, take that for the moment. The French now have a program which would give them a fleet of 800,000 tons by 1942. That is what they say they will build under existing political conditions. Under better political conditions they say they would cut their program. It has even been said unofficially that if the United States would promise not to aid an aggressor who violated the Kellogg pact the French would take 200,000 tons off their program if any arrangement could be found to reduce the French tonnage, that would, on one hand, cut the Italian aspirations as measured by tons and, on the other hand, lessen Britain's naval needs in the Mediterranean to protect her routes there. A cut by England in cruisers means a cut by the United States, which in turn might mean a reduction by Japan. Thus it can be understood that such men as M. Briand are searching earnestly for some political plan which may help the naval conference. He is believed personally to favor asking America to join an Atlantic pact similar to the four-power Pacific pact.

But it should be emphasized that whatever is asked of America publicly will be asked only after private conversations have brought encouragement from the American delegates. If the Americans doubt the wisdom of participating in any political arrangement, that will end the matter so far as the United States is concerned. Yet there is by no means a general belief that the United States will turn a completely deaf ear to such suggestions when they are put forward for the consideration of the American delegates.

Effects Will Measure Interest.

If it should come to appear that participation in a political agreement by the United States might mean a reduction in world fleet tonnage by 500,000 or more tons the Americans might become more interested. In figuring the effect of political considerations it will be recalled that the ending of the alliance between England and Japan played no small rôle at the Washington naval conference in 1922 and that the Pacific pact was not the least accomplishment of that gathering.

It is generally expected that a more frank discussion of political factors will be reached in about ten days, when the conference will have taken its first steps in discussing the naval demands presented in the initial stages of the negotiations. Even without any political accomplishments, the conference has an excellent opportunity for writing a treaty of limitation and some reduction. Some delegations think the political accomplishments might increase the reductions.

There will be a further lull in the proceedings of the conference over the week-end. Premier MacDonald went to Chequers tonight, where he will entertain delegates of the British dominions over Sunday. Premier Tardieu has canceled his week-end trip to Paris. He probably will talk with the Italians tomorrow and Sunday.

Parley Opened to Press.

Apparently the criticisms in the American press, to the effect that there was too much secrecy surrounding the naval conference have produced their effect, but scarcely the one for which the authors of the criticisms hoped. Secretary of State Stimson announced today that in the future the representatives of three American press associations would be admitted to the plenary sessions at St. James's Palace, taking seats which had been assigned to naval advisers. Mr. Stimson said other delegations probably would admit their press associations. Such a method, he thought, would give sufficient publicity to the proceedings.

Naturally there must be a certain amount of discretion on the part of the diplomats in assuming negotiating and negotiable positions, and it may work out that the admission of the press associations will mean in effect that the plenary sessions will be rather devoid of whatever fireworks the conference may produce. In fact, it was announced tonight that an effort would be made to supply to the correspondents, the night before, the speeches to be made at such sessions. The special correspondents will be supplied officially with statements covering the plenary sessions and will be permitted to interview the diplomats who attend them.

At such conferences there generally are very few plenary sessions.

It should be stated that it would have been impossible for the 400 correspondents to be admitted to the plenary session room, which accommodates seventy-five persons. Indeed, it may be difficult to find room for the representatives of the dozen or more press associations.

BRITISH AND FRENCH CONFER ON PROGRAM

SEEK POLITICAL FORMULA

France Is Now Willing to Accept Limitation by Categories if She Can Shift Tonnage.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—A special phase of the naval conference work to which the British and French delegations jointly devoted themselves today was the situation growing out of the difference of opinion between their two countries as to whether limitation of naval armament should be fixed with reference to total tonnage or tonnage by categories.

The meeting was attended by all members of both delegations, and at the end of a long session they issued a communiqué to the efefct that they had met to consider a report which their experts had been asked to prepare and that it showed encouraging results on certain points concerning the two theses. The experts were instructed to go on with the same work.

The personality of the experts in charge of this matter for the two countries is interesting and significant. Neither one being a naval man, they both approach the subject from an international angle in an effort to work out a political formula within which the opposing views of the two countries may be framed in a manner susceptible of fruitful discussion by the whole conference. These two are René Massigli, head of the French secretariat at the League of Nations, and R. L. Craigie, head of the American division of the British Foreign Office and personally attached to Prime Minister MacDonald for the work of the conference.

Even before the naval conference had assembled, some approach had been made toward a satisfactory compromise as a result of suggestions and counter-suggestions exchanged between Paris and London ever since the Geneva conference of 1927. Now, instead of insisting on the right to use the total tónnage allowed her by international agreement as she sees fit, without any further restriction concerning its distribution among different kinds of ships, France is willing to accept limitation by categories with the proviso that she be allowed to transfer tonnage from one type to another after giving due notice to other nations of such change.

In its memorandum to the British last month the French Government referred to this proposal as something the United States would be willing to accept as a basis for discussion. In its reply to that memorandum the British Government, after reiterating its preference for limitation by categories, said it was ready to discuss the "possibility of some arrangement based on that proposal." That is the discussion which began today.

The British Navy attitude, as expressed in sailor language, is that it does not help it any, in planning a hypothetical defense against a hypothetical attack, to know merely what is the total tonnage of another nation's navy. It wants to know specifically just how many cruisers, battleships and submarines are in another navy it would have to reckon with in case of an emergency.

BRITISH REVIEWS HOPEFUL.

Weekly Periodicals Show Open Attitude to Naval Conference.

LONDON, Jan. 24 (AP).—All authoritative English weekly reviews devote their leading space to the five-power naval conference.

The Saturday Review says a true note was struck by Secretary Stimson in his speech at the opening ceremony when he said that this conference was but one of many, that peace and disarmament were in continuous process.

The Nation and Athenaeum points out that the Americans have said nothing which could support the rumor that they were prepared to oppose the proposals of the British Government.

The New Statesman says whether the conference is to be an all-round success will, so far as one can judge at present, depend primarily upon France.

The Spectator says it is essential that the conclusions reached in London should have the good-will of all five powers.

"Then," it says, "there will be a really good prospect of the idea triumphing in America, where public opinion is very powerful and where even the Senate—with the most formidable veto entrusted to any legislative body in the world—is fairly amenable to what the public wants."

Washington treaty. This permits the United States to replace between 1930 and 1936, eight capital ships with five and the British in the same period ten with five, reducing each to fifteen first line battleships. London is somewhat puzzled today at the apparent fact that these provisions of the treaty have been forgotten in Washington comments on the conference in London.

Whether the United States is ready to consent to reduction in the first line to less than fifteen units is a question that cannot be answered tonight. As the spokesman puts it, "it is a bridge to be crossed when come to." Summed up, the American position is reduction in all categories commensurate with defense of the nation.

The American delegates are continuing to do all possible as friendly advisers to help clarify the situation between Italy and France, which still is one of the most troublesome problems before the conference. The Italian delegation was in conference with the American delegation nearly two hours this afternoon.

The United States has no intention, now or at any other time, of interfering as an interested party in the Mediterranean situation, in which she is neither politically nor territorially involved. She is ready, however, at any time to advise an old friend and to do all possible to clarify this problem so vital to the success of the conference.

Secretary Stimson, through a spokesman, announced tonight that the entire time of the conference with the Italians was devoted to problems entirely Italian in nature. He declared that the conference was most satisfactory and that the Franco-Italian controversy was nearer solution tonight than at any time since the conference was called by the MacDonald Government.

The American delegates had been in conference among themselves most of yesterday afternoon and most of today. Speaking to the correspondents today, Mr. Stimson said that the conversations of the last forty-eight hours had been most satisfactory. It means lots of hard work, said the Secretary of State, but, he added, "a lot of very necessary work for the success of the conference."

"It represents," said Mr. Stimson, "the hard preliminary work which always must take place in every group of men when they are trying to arrive at a common agreement. The progress has been very satisfactory in my opinion. I am very optimistic." Mr. Stimson left tonight for Stanmore for the week-end, although he may return to London for a conference with his colleagues tomorrow.

LONDON, Jan. 24 (AP).—It was understood tonight that David A. Reed of Pennsylvania and Joseph L. Robinson of Arkansas, representing the United States Senate, which must ratify any agreement that comes of the London naval conference, are agreeable to the consideration first of categories at present unlimited, after which other categories could be discussed.

Scots Guards to Fete Stimson; Will Give Dinner in His Honor

LONDON, Jan. 24 (AP).—Secretary Stimson today accepted his first unofficial social engagement since he came to England.

A dinner will be given in his honor by the Second Battalion of Scots Guards, commanded by Lieut. Col. E. C. T. Warner, at St. James's Palace, Feb. 6.

FRENCH HOPEFUL OF FASTER ACTION

They Still Seek Yardstick Agreeable to English as Parley Halts for Week-End.

CLING TO PACTS FOR PEACE

But British Would Test Present Covenants—Briand Standing Behind Tardieu at Every Step.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—During this English week-end, which began according to custom this afternoon with the retirement of Prime Minister MacDonald to his country home, it is hoped, especially by the French delegation, and in some measure also believed, that the naval conference will emerge from the negative stage in which it has remained all this week. One member of the French delegation, in describing the situation this afternoon, declared:

"All the fleets are at the quay side, with steam up ready to sail out to make the sacrifice, but nobody is yet willing to be the first to cast off."

Seek Common Yardstick.

Whether Monday will find the delegates in a more heroic mood is uncertain. They have begun to seek agreement in detail and it is for the most part detail which, though it may be extremely important to naval experts, is so much Greek to the man in the street. The French and English, the respective size of whose fleets is really the only thing that matters, have been especially busy at the game of finding a formula by which a compromise can be made between the French theory that global tonnage should be the measure and the English thesis that the calculation of strength should be categories.

The British, who in these matters have, after all, a certain additional experience over any one else, are firm in their stand that the only manner in which naval strength can be measured is by guns.

"What earthly use is it to tell me," one English admiral commented today, "that I have to fight 500,000 tons? What I want to know is what strength of guns I shall have to fight and what speed the ships can travel."

The English are not, however, averse to the French idea in some respects, and especially the idea that if any changes in the program of any country are to be made that country should give notice to the League of Nations one year in advance. It is recognized that there is a measure of safety in that, for every change in policy to be made would in this way be made known and registered.

This day has been somewhat barren for the French delegation, for it is apparent that Premier Tardieu's alternative of yesterday is still very far from consideration. It may be said, indeed, that his suggestion for adding to the security of his own and other countries by new international pacts is regarded as outside the purview of this conference.

Pacts Form Crux of Question.

The English, like the Americans, have no very strong faith in more and more commitments of this kind. They believe that the past ten years have been fruitful enough of conventions and covenants. Those in existence should be tested and proved before more are tried, they hold. That, is fact, is one of the fundamental differences of outlook on the whole problem.

The French, with their long experience of invasions, are still seeking a new form of alliance for the old. They are still refusing to take as much as the Anglo-Saxon on trust.

Foreign Minister Briand is standing behind Premier Tardieu in every step, and the old magician may at the last moment bring something out of his hat which will help in a solution, which every one really desires.

PESSIMISM PERVADES FRENCH PRESS VIEWS

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—In dispatches from London in the French press and in editorial comments written here it is impossible to escape a strong flavor of pessimism with which French observers are seasoning their impressions of the London naval conference. No one has seemed to consider that the conference is not yet a week old and that preliminary conversations now in progress are a necessary prelude to more formal negotiations soon to follow.

The semi-official Temps, which hitherto has taken a cheerful view of the conference, terminates its lengthy leading editorial tonight with these gloomy lines:

"Generally speaking the impression is confirmed that the conference in London, despite the preliminary conversations, despite the private interviews between delegations during these last few days, and despite the apparent good-will of all the delegations, is still groping in the dark.

"It is difficult to say what obstacles have so far prevented the debates from going to the bottom of the question. Will it be possible between now and next week to discover a practical method of work satisfactory to all delegations, which carries with it the necessary logic and at the same time is not the result of improvisation? It would be dangerous indeed to the cause which must be served if the final deliberations are permitted to be too prolonged, for such would only aggravate the confusion in which we find the conference today and the essential principles upon which every one must be in agreement if the conference is to be an enterprise of utility."

JAPAN REMOVES BAR TO NAVAL STUDIES

Emperor Hirohito Receives Our Envoy, W. R. Castle Jr., Amid Much Pomp at Palace.

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Of the many difficulties confronting the naval conference, Japan has removed one that has loomed ever since the first move for the present parley was made by Hugh Gibson, United States Ambassador to Belgium, in his speech in April before the Preparatory Disarmament Commission at Geneva.

The reason which Japan's delegate, Naotake Sato, who is secretary general of the Japanese delegation here, gave to the League of Nations commission then as to why Japan was not prepared at that time to enter into the discussion which the Americans had proposed on how to limit naval armament was that his government was engaged in a new study of the moot question of categories and would make a fresh proposal of its own later on this point.

The precise nature of the proposal was not divulged.

Questioned on this point, the Japanese delegation now explains that the proposal concerned a redivision of auxiliary craft whereby aircraft carriers of less than 10,000 tons would form a separate category instead of being grouped with cruisers or destroyers. Japan, the delegation let it be known, may possibly make such a proposal during this conference, but, even so, will not "insist upon it" or allow it to be a stumbling block.

One reason for this attitude appears to be that the studies which Japanese naval experts have been making on this point have not fully convinced them of the advantages of establishing such a category. Indeed, there is reason to believe that the tests, which are still being made, of light aircraft carriers leave the Japanese uncertain as to whether this type of vessel would be valuable enough to justify building it to any extent.

Japan now has one vessel of this kind, the Hosho, 9,458 tons. The British have two old aircraft carriers less than 10,000 tons, the minimum tonnage set in the Washington treaty's definition of the type of aircraft carrier to which the existing limitation agreement applies. Italy has one carrier, 5,400 tons, built in 1923, while France and the United States have none below 10,000 tons.

Reijiro Wakatsuki conferred with Premier Tardieu of France tonight. The discussion, the Japanese said, concerned merely questions of procedure. It was the Japanese delegation chairman's only interview with other delegations today. The conference with Premier MacDonald, planned for this morning, was postponed.

Hirohito Receives Our Envoy.

TOKIO, Jan. 24 (AP).—William R. Castle Jr., recently named Ambassador to Japan from the United States for the duration of the naval conference at London, had an audience with Emperor Hirohito today. Mr. Castle presented his credentials and the greetings of President Hoover to the Emperor.

Ambassador Castle's reception was attended by unusual pomp, even for such an occasion. Foreign Minister Shidehara presented the Ambassador to Emperor Hirohito in the famous Phoenix Hall of the Imperial Palace. His Majesty was attired in the uniform of the generalissimo and surrounded by the highest court dignitaries. The Ambassador was in full evening dress, which is the American formal court attire.

From his hotel to the palace, Mr. Castle rode in a horse-drawn carriage, bearing the imperial chrysanthemum crest of gold with scarlet and purple trappings. The embassy staff followed in less imposing carriages. They were escorted by a troop of cavalry from the imperial bodyguards, brilliant in scarlet and black uniforms with red and white pennons.

Counsellor Neville, four secretaries and two military, two naval and two commercial attachés, accompanied Ambassador Castle.

Ambassador and Mrs. Castle and Nelson T. Johnson, new American Minister to China, were dinner guests of Baron and Baroness Shidehara at the Foreign Minister's official residence tonight. Mr. Johnson arrived here from the United States today en route to China and will resume his journey to Shanghai tomorrow.

JAPAN'S DELEGATES VOTED BEST DRESSED

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—One London newspaper concedes honors in dress at the Naval Arms Conference to the three Japanese delegates, M. Watkatsuki, M. Takarabe and M. Matsudaira. Their silk hats shine as brightly as their constant smiles, their umbrellas are rolled with enviable neatness and their general appearance is immaculate. Mention is also made of the modesty of the Admiral of the Fleet, Sir Charles Madden, with the comment that, possibly he does not want foreign delegates to make the error often made of mistaking him for the King.

When Van Lear Black, the American publisher, entertained his country's delegates at dinner this week and entered an eleventh-hour order for asparagus, scarcely a good bundle was available at Covent Garden. The city's shops were ransacked, and in the end £1, the equivalent of $5, was paid for each bundle.

While the American delegates were busy conferring, many London hostesses were seeing that the visitors' wives were suitably entertained. Miss Ishbel MacDonald arranged a "hen" dinner in their honor at 10 Downing Street. Mrs. Sidney Webb, wife of Lord Passfield, Secretary for the Dominions, gave a tea at her Whitehall Court flat. The wife of the First Lord of the Admiralty, Mrs. Alexander, and Mrs. Wedgewood Benn were among the other British hostesses to the American women. While their fellow-American, Lady Astor, is busy with her duties in Parliament, she expects to devote a great deal of time, if possible, to entertaining the delegates' wives. She will receive them after the American women's court reception, one of the few formal occasions they will attend, and also will have them at her own home in St. James' Square, near the palace, where the conference sessions are being held.

FRANCE AND ITALY STILL DEADLOCKED

OPEN CLASH IS EXPECTED

By ARNALDO CORTESI.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Dino Grandi, Secretary for Foreign Affairs and head of the Italian delegation to the Naval Arms Conference, had a long interview with Premier MacDonald today, followed by a talk for more than an hour with Secretary Stimson at the latter's hotel. In both meetings Italy's contest with France over the question of naval parity was gone into with considerable thoroughness, but no great headway was made toward bringing the conflicting views closer together. The Italo-French situation seems destined to provide a clash at one stage of the conference or another.

Signor Grandi continues to maintain that Italy's position in the Mediterranean demands Italy shall have naval parity with France. But it is believed this parity would exist only on paper, as Italy in her present financial situation, sees small likelihood of ever being able to build her fleet up to the French level. The Italian delegation, however, holds that, for reasons of security, it cannot accept any agreement which would make Italy's present manifest inferiority with respect to France permanent and definite.

The French delegation, on the other hand, continues to insist the ratio of strength between the French and Italian navies should be based on the true needs of each country, with especial reference to the length of coast line, the number, size and distance of colonies, lines of communication which must be protected, &c. Since any computation of the relative French and Italian needs based on such indices would necessarily point to the conclusion that the French requirements are greater, Italy objects to a discussion proceeding on this basis.

Affects Possible Sequence.

As was inevitable, this basic difference between the Italian and French delegations has tinged the discussions over the proper sequence of subjects to be discussed by the conference. France would like the problem of disarmament to be attacked first from a purely technical aspect. Italy would prefer that the political aspects of disarmament should come up first. Next week, when the big five will meet again to discuss the agenda of the conference, it will be known which scored the initial success in this first passage at arms.

It was freely admitted by the Italian delegation today that the only constructive proposal affording a possible solution of the Italo-French differences was made by M. Tardieu when he indicated France would be willing to concede reduction in her naval building program if the machinery for insuring peace were strengthened either by agreement among the signatories of the Kellogg pact to withhold supplies from any violator of that pact or by concluding a Mediterranean pact of mutual non-aggression among the powers having interests in that sea. The Italian delegation believes the former proposal is unlikely to obtain much success because of the probable opposition of America, but declared itself willing to start immediate negotiations with France with a view to laying the foundation of a Mediterranean pact. The Italians think that if the French demands on this score are satisfied France probably would be willing to yield to Italy on the principle of naval parity.

Would End Causes of Friction.

It is the opinion of the Italian delegation, however, that discussion of a Mediterranean pact should be preceded by a happy conclusion of the negotiations which have been in progress for two years aiming to remove the principal causes of friction between Italy and France. These are rectification of the frontier of the Italian colony of Tripoli and the status of Italian subjects living in Tunis.

The Italians hold that these two questions should be put safely out of the way first, then a bilateral treaty of friendship and arbitration between Italy and France should be concluded, followed by a Mediterranean pact with the possible participation of England, Spain and other countries. They apparently fear that if this sequence of events is reversed, France will be less willing to yield to the Italian demands in North Africa.

In any case, however, Italy does not make this a sine qua non condition and is ready to take up the question of a Mediterranean pact with France at any time. Probably the first conversations to this end will occur tomorrow in meetings arranged for Signor Grandi with M. Tardieu and M. Briand separately.

The Italian delegation expects much from these two meetings. It is said that a virtual agreement exists between the French and Italian Foreign Ministers over the solution of both the problem of the rectification of the frontiers of Tripoli and the status of Italians in Tunis. It is said to be based on the cession by France to Italy of some 10,000 square miles of territory on the southern boundary of Tripoli colony and an extension for a period of ten years of the present temporary convention regulating the status of Italians in Tunis.

Depends on France.

If France is willing, the Italians say, to sign a treaty embodying these two points, which already are accepted in principle, then a treaty of friendship and arbitration would be a matter of only a few hours, leaving the road clear for discussion of a Mediterranean pact.

It was again stated with the greatest firmness by the Italian delegation that Italy was quite unable to accept anything less than parity with France. If she cannot obtain that, all further interest in the conference ceases for her. Indeed, it was even suggested today that Signor Grandi might adopt a heroic method of obtaining Italy's demands. He might write the powers gathered in London a letter in which he would declare that Italy voluntarily binds herself not to build a fleet larger than that of any other Continental European power. Then he might gracefully withdraw from the conference, leaving to it the onus of deciding whether the Italian fleet be large or small.

Italy would in this way, it is stated, make her peaceful intentions obvious to the whole world, while avoiding any discussion of her right to parity with France. Signor Grandi could easily do this, it was further pointed out, as on his return to Italy he would not have to face the possibility of a hostile Parliament, as M. Tardieu almost certainly would under similar circumstances.

METCALF MAKES PLEA FOR FAITH IN PARLEY

Senator in Radio Speech Also Holds It Is Time for Us to Enter World Court.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—A "plea for patience" and an appeal to people everywhere to withhold expressions of distrust or suspicion in connection with the London Naval Arms Conference were made tonight by Senator Jesse H. Metcalf of Rhode Island, a member of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, in a radio address over the National Broadcasting Company system.

The citizens and the press of any nation concerned, he said, have it in their power to play a vital part in the success or failure of the conference, and might even bring about its downfall by breeding, through unfair criticism, elements of distrust.

"World peace," Senator Metcalf said, "is not something to be bartered around upon a theoretical poker table. The nations cannot gamble with the lives and the safety of their citizens. The only way in which we may assure a lasting peace is for us to throw off the narrow shackles of the single-track mind and be able to understand that the characteristics and viewpoints of the people of other nations are different from our own.

"One of the most outstanding causes of impatience and distrust is the existence of a deep-seated racial prejudice on the part of citizens throughout the world. There is no more disquieting factor in international diplomacy than the existence of racial prejudice and the necessity for participants in an international conference having to deal with the problems which result therefrom."

"Let the people of the world who are afflicted with a racial prejudice forego their rhetoric for the present and place complete confidence in the integrity and the intentions of the delegates they have sent to the naval conference in London. In doing so the present civilization can go down in history as possessing a keen international wisdom, for, after all, there is no wisdom so great as that which keeps the masses from folly."

Senator Metcalf, in his speech, made his first public statement in regard to the World Court, declaring himself strongly in favor of participation.

"It is time for the United States to throw off this deep-seated and narrow prejudice," he said, "and accept a place in this international judiciary. We did not hesitate to join other nations in the prosecution of war, so why not join them in the prosecution of peace?"

PILGRIMS NAVY DINNER WILL BREAK TRADITION

There Will Be No American Speaker at London Conference Banquet—Honors Go to Grandi.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—There will be a temporary departure from tradition at next Tuesday's dinner to be given by the Pilgrims to the delegates to the naval arms conference in the fact that no American is to speak. When this fact was learned there was some speculation as to whether something had gone wrong.

The Pilgrims of London, and the kindred society of the same name in New York, ever since their foundation have had as their chief end in common the fostering of cordial Anglo-American relations. The principal function of the London Pilgrims for years has been the giving of dinners to arriving and departing American Ambassadors and other distinguished persons of the United States. These affairs as a rule are marked by speeches of international significance.

But at this next dinner the London Pilgrims are branching out into a much wider internationalism. Nothing has gone wrong. On the contrary, it is with general approval and agreement that Dino Grandi, chief Italian delegate to the naval conference and Foreign Minister in the Fascist Government, is going to speak at the dinner instead of Secretary Stimson.

This will be the third of four big entertainments given to the delegates, and it was the desire of the British Government that the dinner oratory honors should be evenly divided among the chief naval powers. For that reason Mr. Stimson responded for all the delegates at the government dinner on Monday.

The French Premier, André Tardieu, had the honor at the city dinner at the Guildhall. Signor Grandi will be the Pilgrims orator and Reijiro Wakatsuki, head of the Japanese delegation, will have the same distinction at the luncheon which the Foreign Press Association is giving next Thursday.

So far as the Pilgrims themselves are concerned, they realize it would be unwise, just at this time, to put special stress on Anglo-American cordiality rather than on the friendly relations between all the five powers concerned with the naval conference.

Canadian Veterans Oppose Cuts.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 24 (Canadian Press).—A resolution of opposition to the reduction of British cruisers to 50 was adopted at a meeting of Post 40, Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, here last night.

DEPLORES HAGUE RESULTS.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MUNICH, Jan. 24.—Addressing a meeting of Bavarian industrialists on "What does the creditor country, America, think of the Young plan?" Professor John Firman Coar of Edmonton, Alberta, sharply criticized The Hague conference which "has mutilated the Young plan past recognition."

The reparation problem, he said, should be put on a purely economic basis, but, despite the greatest efforts on the part of reasonable industrialists, and especially those from America, economic cooperation has been hindered by the reparation policy. The present plan, he asserted, represents the spoiling of the Dawes plan, by which, anyhow, Germany's and the world's economics had been doomed to destruction.

Professor Coar drew the conclusion that it is up to the Reichstag to reject the mutilated plan and to demand the restitution of the original plan on which the experts of all the participating countries agreed with the precise understanding that it must be accepted as it was, if expected to work satisfactorily.

MESSAGE BY GRANDI IS READ OVER RADIO

STRESSES NEED FOR ACTION

Says Nation Wants Actual Cuts—Will Reduce to Minimum if Others Follow Suit.

A message to America from Dino Grandi, Secretary of Foreign Affairs and head of the Italian delegation to the London Naval Arms Conference, came clearly across the Atlantic yesterday by short radio waves and was distributed to a network of stations scattered from coast-to-coast linked with WOR, WEAF and WJZ in New York. Business affairs of importance in London prevented the Italian leader from appearing personally before the London microphone, so his address was interpreted and read by Commendatore Rosso of the Italian delegation.

Reception was so good that every word of the message was heard on this side of the Atlantic as it came from loudspeakers.

Text of Grandi's Message.

I have been asked to give you the Italian view of the limitation and reduction of naval armaments. Addressing directly the American people gives me a great deal of pleasure. The knowledge that my message is reaching you across the great expanse of ocean and entering your homes seems to bring us into personal and friendly contact. It is like having a heart-to-heart talk with old friends, and I use the word "friends" advisedly, for it expresses my feelings toward the American people.

As a matter of fact, one of the first events in my political career was connected with your country. My first diplomatic mission abroad was to the United States, when I went to Washington in 1925 to discuss with your government the settling of the Italian war claims. The satisfactory settlement then made, the cordial hospitality extended to me in your country, the friendly contact with your statesmen, the interesting visions of some of your fine cities, and, above all, the glimpse I then got of American life with its splendid, disciplined energy and great enthusiasm, made an impression upon me which nothing will transcend.

Italy Seeks Results.

But you want me to discuss disarmament, and I will get to my subject. As you know, the representatives of the five naval powers have met here in London to see if they can agree upon a means to check competition in naval armaments. Of late years we have heard much talk and lots of fine speeches have been made on the subject, but so far no positive results have been secured. Now we want to see whether we can stop talking and begin acting.

The instructions of the Italian delegation are simple, clear and precise, like all those given by my chief, Signor Mussolini: The Italian delegation is to collaborate wholeheartedly in helping the conference to achieve real, tangible results. This is why I stated at the opening meeting that the problem is one calling for courage and action, for in the field of disarmament there is much truth in the saying that half measures are always a failure. This is why Italy desires not only the limitation but the actual reduction of armaments, and I believe that in this we are at one with American opinion.

Must Safeguard Supplies.

Speaking through Signor Mussolini, the Fascist government stated its position on this matter no later than three years ago, in the following words: "Italy is ready to reduce her armaments to any level, no matter how low it may be, under one condition, that that level be adhered to by every other power on the continent of Europe."

When you remember that Italy's very life depends on the freedom of the seas, as most of her supplies of such essentials as wheat, oil, coal and cotton are brought across the Atlantic, and when you remember that her coasts are bathed by seas whose access can only be had through such narrow straits as those of Gibraltar, it is easy to understand that it is both our duty and our right to claim for Italy that minimum of security needed to insure her against the danger of being cut off from her sources of supply.

This accounts for the great interest and favor with which Italy received President Hoover's suggestion for assuring the freedom of the seas for food supplies in time of war. In my opinion there can be no doubt that the problem of the freedom of the seas is closely connected with the problem of disarmament and that the solution of the one is largely dependent on the other.

Italians Desire Peace.

My time is nearly over, and I wish merely to summarize for you the Italian stand on disarmament. We in Italy neither think of war nor wish for it. The last great world struggle clearly showed that war with its destruction of human life and wealth can be as disastrous to the victor as to the vanquished. Italy wishes to go on her way in peace with all the world.

We have before us a vast program of work for the advancement of our country to which the natural resources and best energies of the Italian people are devoted. Italy desires nothing better than to carry out this program in a peaceful Europe and in a peaceful world.

Already, of our own accord, we have reduced our armaments, but we are prepared to reduce them to a mere minimum if the other powers are willing to do likewise. We are, therefore, ready to accept any measure of disarmament so long as it is fair all around and so long as it affords what has been expressed by a prominent man of the American Navy with the words, "An equal opportunity upon the seas." These are our guiding principles.

Let me say we have come to London with an open mind permeated by sincere good-will. Let me conclude by expressing the earnest hope that the results of our labors will reach the expectation entertained by the nations of the world, and more especially by the great American people.

Broadcast Halts Today.

No addresses from the London conference are to be heard on the radio today and tomorrow via the WEAF and WJZ networks, as station 5SW, the Chelmsford, England, short-wave transmitter of the British Broadcasting Company, shuts down on these days each week.

Harold Nicolson, official British commentator on the conference, was heard clearly yesterday afternoon at 4:20 o'clock over the National Broadcasting Company's chains and WOR. There was some doubt in the minds of the engineers as to whether the radio waves would bring his message clearly to American listeners at such a late hour, but little interference was encountered. Mr. Nicolson was introduced by Mr. Hard, and spoke for about ten minutes about the conference proceedings.

On Monday at 1 P. M. over WEAF and WJZ, it is expected that the speaker will be Reijiro Wakatsuki, Japanese delegation leader. Secretary of State Stimson is scheduled as the speaker for Tuesday, at the same hour.

LACK OF FUNDS DELAYS SPAIN'S NAVAL PLANS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Jan. 24.—Rear Admiral Marcia de Los Reyes, Minister of Marine, said today that Spain's naval building program was limited to three 10,000-ton "Washington treaty" cruisers, twelve destroyers, twelve submarines and some auxiliary vessels decided upon in 1926.

Admiral Reyes added that it was Spain's intention, when funds become available, to replace by modern vessels three small capital ships, one of which was lost several years ago on the Moroccan coast and the others are becoming obsolete. No definite plans have been made for their replacement.

Cruisers of 10,000 tons are the largest ships that can berthed in the Ferrol drydock. Extensive alternations would have to be made before the long type of fast battleship could be constructed in Spain.

The question of armament is a serious matter. Six-inch guns are the largest made in Spain, but foundries and lathes for 8-inch guns are being constructed. This is a long way from 15-inch guns, but it is contrary to Spanish policy to purchase abroad. An exception was made lately in the purchase of guns to arm the naval bases at Ferrol and Cartagena.

WHALING DIRECTORS PLEDGE AID TO BYRD

INSIST ICE WILL BREAK UP

BRITISH WILL COOPERATE

Owners of the Southern Princess Promise Utmost of Ability—Our Navy Alert to Situation.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OSLO, Jan. 24.—The American Government's appeal for assistance to the Byrd expedition was received today and sent by the Norwegian Government to Chairman Rasmussen of the Norway Corporation of Whaling Companies at Sandefjord.

Whaling officials generally agreed, however, that the ice pack fringing the Ross Sea would probably break up sooner or later and that not until March would there be any chance of Admiral Byrd and his companions being kept on the Barrier for another year.

Discussing the situation in the Antarctic tonight with THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, Mr. Rasmussen said:

"I have not yet received the official request for assistance to Admiral Byrd, but the Norwegian Foreign Office telephoned me that the request would arrive from the American Ambassador, Mr. Swensen. It is my personal conviction, however, that it is absolutely impossible for Admiral Byrd to be in any danger at present.

Expects Byrd Ships to Go Through.

"We think here in Norway that the ice will break up just as it has done in all previous years when our whalers sailed to the Ross Sea. The floes barring the entrance usually break up beginning in January, but this year is evidently more difficult than usual.

"Admiral Byrd's two ships, the City of New York and the Eleanor Bolling, presumably will get free passage in a week or two and then enter the Ross Sea. They can rely upon being able to get out by the end of February.

"Naturally, it will be a matter of course, if a dangerous situation arises, that all Norwegian whalers will be prepared to yield all possible assistance but, as I said, I do not think such is likely to be the case. We shall deal with the matter tomorrow and then send instructions to the whaling fleet."

Officials of the Norwegian whaling companies do not consider that there is any cause for alarm over the ice pack which is blocking the Byrd Expedition's start for home.

Veteran Whaler Optimistic.

Reports of Admiral Byrd's difficulties, which are not felt in Norway to be particularly serious, led THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to telephone to Director Jahre of Sandefjord, who manages the Kosmos Company, one of the world's largest whaling organizations.

"There's no reason to be worried," said Mr. Jahre, who is probably the best informed man in Norway regarding Antarctic ice conditions. "Certainly the ice which blocks the entrance to the Ross Sea is exceptionally firm and compact this year, but it has never so far happened that ice has not broken up sooner or later. In any case, passage ought to be open in February or, at the latest, at the beginning of March.

"But, of course, if there is danger, the Norwegians will be ready to give any assistance within their power."

The Norwegian floating whale factories outside the Ross Sea have modern equipment including not only complete whaling machinery but also wireless and scouting airplanes.

Norway Promises to Do Its Best.

OSLO, Jan. 24 (AP).—Replying to a request through the United States Minister for Norwegian whalers to assist the Byrd Expedition, the Norwegian Government today informed the American Government that it would do its best.

The Norwegian reply said that the government had approached the Whalers' Association, which had expressed the opinion that the ice pack cutting off Admiral Byrd's camp from open water and his supply ships would break up, as it has done in previous years.

The association, however, stated that if Admiral Byrd were short of provisions, a whaling factory ship would be sent, in an effort to give assistance.

Directors of five whaling expeditions now in the Antarctic at a meeting today decided they would take every step necessary to render assistance, but that in any case it would be impossible to supply aid during the next fortnight.

British Will Aid to the Limit.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The American Embassy today requested the Southern Whaling and Sealing Company of Liverpool to instruct the captain of its floating factory, the Southern Princess, to extend all possible assistance to the Byrd Expedition.

Assurance was given by Captain N. C. Watt, managing director, that his company would cooperate to the limit of its ability in getting Admiral Byrd from the Ice Barrier.

Captain Watt made it clear, however, that the Southern Princess was not equipped for battering through thick ice, and that if it became a question of penetrating through a heavy pack to Little America it would mean almost certain destruction to his ship.

Captain Watt told the embassy officials that his officers in the Antarctic did not regard the situation as serious and that they were confident the ice would break up in two or three weeks.

BRITISH REPLY RECEIVED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The State Department was informed today by Ambassador Dawes at London that the British owners of the whaler Southern Princess, which is near Ross Sea, was not an ice-breaker but that they were willing to be of any assistance compatible with safety in bringing out the Byrd Antarctic Expedition. No reply to the appeal to Norway has yet been received by the department.

The message from Ambassador Dawes was announced in the following official statement:

"In reply to the department's telegram sent Jan. 22 to Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, Ambassador Dawes has informed the department that the Southern Whaling Company states that the steamer Southern Princess is outside of Ross Sea, together with two Byrd supply ships and one or two Norwegian vessels, all of which are waiting to get into the Ross Sea where the Byrd expedition is.

"The Southern Whaling Company adds that although the steamer Southern Princess is a steel ship with reinforced steel bows she is not an ice-breaker and could not be navigated with safety in more than two or threee inches of ice. The owners are entirely willing to be of assistance if compatible with safety. The whaling company adds that it was informed that more than a month ago two Norwegian vessels found passage into Ross Sea, but that since then no vessel has been able to get through."

Thus far, according to Secretary Jancke, the navy has given no consideration of going to the assistance of Admiral Byrd, but, should it be informed that a grave emergency existed, Mr. Jancke said, the navy would be prepared to do its utmost.

The Hydrographic Office has no data to explain the abnormal massing of ice at this time of year beyond that it evidently is due to winds and the course of the Australian current.

PREDICTS ICE PACK WILL BREAK UP SOON

Dr. Bowman Says Currents Have Always Previously Shifted the Floes in Ross Sea.

Scientific aspects of the problem confronting Admiral Byrd in getting his men safely out of Antarctica before the Ross Sea ice pack imprisons them for another year in walls of frozen sea water were outlined yesterday by Dr. Isaiah Bowman, director of the American Geographical Society.

"The drama is coming to a climax within the next few weeks," he declared. While holding that "Admiral Byrd's anxiety is only natural," he asserted that it was impossible to predict the outcome until well on in February.

"February is really the open month," he said. "We shall not know till then whether or not the ice pack will behave as it has in other years."

Although reports from Little America received to date indicate that the pack is clinging together in greater and more impenetrable masses than recorded hitherto, Dr. Bowman held that this did not necessarily mean that it would not break.

He pointed out that just as the coldest weather follows several weeks after the shortest day, and the hottest weather lags behind the longest day, the period of break-up in the ice pack comes far behind the period of coldest weather. Scientists have not yet enough accurate data to say definitely that the ice pack always breaks up.

The weakening of the ice pack, as evidenced by the appearance of leads, should take place by the end of this month or the beginning of the next. Toward the end of February the cold again becomes so severe that the pack re-forms; and should the break-up fail to come before well on in February, the time element enters in. It is to this that Dr. Bowman referred as the climax of the drama, for the bark City of New York and the Eleanor Bolling must travel at least 1,000 miles in order to get from the outer edge of the pack to Little America and back again to the open Pacific. Additional time will be required for the loading aboard of men and supplies. A vessel entering the pack now might be trapped on the inside.

Contrasts Whalers' Problems.

"Any explorer who finds himself within that ring of ice in the Ross Sea, or in similar conditions anywhere else, would naturally be anxious," he said. "At this time of year come all the possibilities of escape.

"We should not be misled by the operations of whalers into thinking that one could run down to Little America as a care-free cruise.

"The whalers stay outside the pack, or enter it for short periods when they think it is sufficiently open to be safe. Admiral Byrd's exploratory program, by contrast, called for a base camp at a fixed point, not a ship that moves about in relatively open water. He therefore had to pass through the pack, and come out on the other side.

"In addition Admiral Byrd has carried on a scientific program and this has occupied all of his time till now.

"With his flights completed and with the geological party safely back, he is ready to leave at just the moment when he had every right to expect that the pack would have begun to open up.

"That it has not yet opened up does not make his situation desperate or even critical. Indeed, there would be no cause for alarm, but for the fact that the pack is unusually heavy. If, in spite of this, it begins to develop leads that make it passable, it will do so in the next few weeks.

"No commander could feel otherwise than anxious about what the ice is going to do, and whether it will do enough to let his low-powered ships through."

More From Dr. Gould Tomorrow.

The second instalment of Dr. Lawrence M. Gould's account of the trek of the Byrd expedition's geological sledging party, now safely returned to Little America, will be published in tomorrow's NEW YORK TIMES.

G. F. KUNZ MARRIAGE ANNULLED NOV. 21

STILL LIVE IN SAME HOME

"Hope to Remain Friends the Rest of Our Lives," She Says—Were Married in 1923.

The marriage of Dr. George Frederick Kunz, vice president of Tiffany & Co., and Mrs. Opal Giberson Kunz, performed on May 15, 1923, was annulled last Nov. 21, it was learned last night.

Mrs. Kunz, in confirming this report, revealed that the decision to seek an annulment had been reached jointly by herself and Mr. Kunz and that the proceedings had been carried out in complete amity.

Since the annulment the former Mrs. Kunz has continued to reside at the doctor's home, 137 Riverside Drive, and to retain charge of his household. She said that both she and Dr. Kunz hoped that this relationship of platonic friendship would continue for the rest of their lives.

The annulment suit was brought by Mrs. Kunz last Fall before Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins at Nyack. The papers in the case were sealed. The grounds were not made public. Mr. Kunz is 73 years old and his former wife is about 30.

"There was nothing unpleasant in the proceedings, either on my part or Dr. Kunz's," said the former Mrs. Kunz last night. "We are very good friends and expect to remain so for a long, long time—the rest of our lives, I hope.

"I had my work to do. I am greatly interested in aviation, you know, and am frequently away from home on long cross-country flights. This has made it impossible for me to be a good wife for any man.

"I am continuing to run Dr. Kunz's house and I continue to be the family chauffeur. This morning I ran him downtown in the car and this evening I brought him home.

"We have managed to settle our little trouble without doing anything unpleasant or anything insulting to each other. The doctor and I both think it is about time that grown people found a way of adjusting their difficulties without acrimony. If more people could settle things in an amicable way, it would be a much better world.

"I think that Dr. Kunz is one of the finest men who ever lived, and I am inclined to think he believes I am rather fine myself."

The marriage of Dr. and Mrs. Kunz was a social event of seven years ago. It was performed by the Rev. Harry Townsend Scudder in Christ Episcopal Church at Tarrytown. The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Giberson of St. Louis and was a graduate of Wellesley. Dr. Kunz is one of the world's authorities on gems and is prominent in many scientific organizations.

The former Mrs. Kunz has been interested in aviation in the past year and is one of the well-known women pilots. She obtained her license as a pilot in June, 1929. Shortly afterward she was in a crash at Morris Plains, N. J., but escaped injury. She is an organizer of the Ninety-nine Club, composed of women aviators and is temporary president of the organization.

FINDS RARE PERSIAN RELICS

Prof. A. U. Pope Says New Light Is Thrown on Early Civilization.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, Jan. 24.—Professor Arthur Upham Pope, adviser on Persian art of the Pennsylvania Museum, arrived here from Persia today on his way to London and New York. This was Professor Pope's third visit to Persia, where he has been advising the Persian Government on the restoration of monuments. During his investigations he discovered inscriptions and decorations throwing new light on the Persian civilization, on its origin and its relations to the Occident.

Professor Pope said he anticipated startling revelations from further research. He brought from Persia 1,500 photographs of mosques, shrines and Moslem colleges never previously photographed. He obtained the photographs despite the Moslem prejudice, which was overcome by the personal influence of the Shah.

He is proceeding to London to make arrangements for an international exhibition of Oriental art next Summer. From there he will go to the United States, returning to Persia in April for the selection of exhibits. He purchased a number of historic objects for American museums and is now editing a three-volume survey of Persian art to which thirty-five specialists contributed.

ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP ELEANOR BOLLING, at Sea, Jan. 23.—The position of the Eleanor Bolling at noon today was Lat. 54.08 degrees S., Long. 176.29 degrees E.

The Eleanor Bolling, according to her position report, was approximately 750 miles distant from Dunedin, N. Z., from which port she sailed last Monday. She was to meet the bark City of New York at the edge of the ice pack and, if possible, break a path through the ice for the two ships.

Her position as given for noon Thursday is roughly 1,500 miles from Little America and several hundred miles from the line that normally marks the northern edge of the solid drift ice.

She is considerably to eastward of an air-line course, presumably in order to avoid outcroppings of the pack ice, of which she may have been informed by whaling vessels in the vicinity, or by the City of New York.

Shaw Admires Will Rogers's Admiration, But Rogers Has No Chance to Express It

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—A naval conference of sorts was held in Bernard Shaw's flat today between the dramatist and Will Rogers. According to Charles Graves, a member of the staff of the Daily Mail, who arranged the interview, Mr. Shaw admired Mr. Rogers' admiration, and talked so fast for an hour that Mr. Rogers had continually to hold up his hand for permission to speak.

Mr. Shaw, in the words of Mr. Graves, "bounded into the room, shook hands, pushed Mr. Rogers on to a sofa, seated himself on a backless stool and crossed his long legs before him." Both had a grand time. As Mr. Shaw spoke, he rocked the stool with his hands, forward, sidewise and backward, and when he laughed he slid almost on his back and jerked his head as if ducking a right hook.

Meantime, Mr. Rogers would clutch a sofa cushion between his knees, tilting himself excitedly in the opposite direction to Mr. Shaw.

"It is not a disarmament conference," Mr. Shaw in one sally, "it is an armament conference. They are just arguing whether it will be better to kill people with twelve-inch or fifteen-inch shells."

"Yeh," said Mr. Rogers, "it's all about battleships and now how does that affect one? Very few folks can point to an ancestor who was killed by a battleship."

Then Mr. Shaw told how he had suggested to the Admiralty an idea of building aircraft carriers. Mr. Rogers finally had a chance to say he had been to see Mr. Shaw's "Applecart."

"I ain't a educated feller, but I got enough sense to see what I am missing," he said. "Occasionally I put up my hand and grab $10 worth of epigram flying over my head."

Mr. Shaw said that Russia would compete with America for supremacy of the world and he considered there was great melody and rhythm in the American voice which was "a new instrument in the orchestra of conversation." When the time came to part Mr. Shaw said, "I asked somebody today who you were and was told you were a Cherokee Indian by extraction. I thought you would come in feathers and paint."

REDS DELAY ACTION ON MEXICAN BREAK

MOVE PLEASES WASHINGTON

Rupture Comes Three Years After Charge Southern Capital Was Aiding Plots Against Us.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 24 (AP).—Alexander M. Makar, Minister to Mexico of the Soviet Union, said this afternoon that he had not yet been advised by Moscow as to what steps to take in consequence of the withdrawal of the entire staff of the Mexican Legation at Moscow. Until he does receive such advices, he said, he will be unable to comment in any way on the situation or on his plans.

The statement by Foreign Minister Genaro Estrada last night explaining the reasons for the action by Mexico has been transmitted to Moscow, but it was learned from an authoritative source that M. Makar has not yet received any official communication from the Moscow Department of Foreign Relations.

The Russian Minister denied that either he or the legation here were under guard or that the movements of his staff were restricted in any way.

Washington Refuses Comment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The recall by the Mexican Government of its diplomatic staff at Moscow was accepted here as marking definitely the end of a chapter in international relations that at one time caused tension between Mexico and the United States.

The end of that disturbed diplomatic period, when there was bitter controversy over the oil and land laws and suspicions of Bolshevist manoeuvres against the United States through Mexico, came with the mission of Dwight W. Morrow as Ambassador to Mexico, but the sharp swing that Mexico City has now taken away from Moscow is a source of gratification here and is regarded as one more indication of community of interests and aims between Mexico and the United States.

Officials would not comment today on the severance of diplomatic relations, pointing out that it would be improper to take formal notice of an incident in the relations of two other governments which did not touch directly or immediately the United States. The State Department insisted that it was not advised in advance of the step Mexico has taken, but there is reason for believing that enough had been learned informally for it to cause no surprise.

Reds Denounced Ortiz Rubio.

President-elect Ortiz Rubio, on his recent visit to the United States, had opportunity to acquaint American officials with his plans and there was every evidence of the friendliest of feeling between them. That the president-elect would have no sympathy with Communist activities was indicated when his arrival in Detroit was the signal for an unfriendly Bolshevist demonstration, while a few days later Communists attempted to picket the Mexican Embassy here, and before their efforts were stopped by the police denounced Señor Ortiz Rubio and President Hoover with equal force.

The situation presented then, and again with severance of diplomatic relations between Mexico and Russia, was in marked contrast to that of less than three years ago, when Frank B. Kellogg, as Secretary of State, charged that Mexico was the seat of Bolshevik plottings in Latin America aimed at the United States. On Jan. 12, 1927, during the appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, when the Nicaraguan revolution was at its height, Mr. Kellogg asserted that the Mexican Government was seeking to establish in Nicaragua a Bolshevik régime hostile to the United States.

The charges were denied promptly by the Mexican Government, but the atmosphere of suspicion did not change until Ambassador Morrow began his notable service in Mexico City.

NIP PLOT AGAINST IRIGOYEN.

Buenos Aires Police Arrest Armed Anarchist Near President's Home.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 24 (AP).—The police tonight announced they had arrested a well-known anarchist who was armed with a revolver and who was idling near the home of President Hipolito Irigoyen ten minutes before he was to leave for the government palace. The name of the man was given as Pedro Aguirre, and he was said to have been unable to explain what he was doing.

On the day before Christmas the President escaped injury when an alleged Italian Anarchist fired three shots at the Presidential automobile. Two persons were seriously wounded, and Gualberto Marinelli, the attempted assassin, was killed.

EMPLOYMENT GAIN REAFFIRMED BY DAVIS

Secretary Gives Dates on Which He Based Statement Used by the President.

"There is developing an inclination in some quarters to make politics out of our employment situation," he said, "even to the extent of questioning the accuracy of the statement that the latest figures show an upward trend in employment.

"The statement by President Hoover that at last the trend of employment was upward was not coupled with any date whatever. The statement that I gave out was as to employment of Jan. 6 as compared with Dec. 30.

"There is no disputing the fact that the month of November and the month of December were the worst we have had in years. Neither is there any disputing the fact that there was a very appreciable trend upward on Jan. 6, as compared with Dec. 30.

"Iron and steel went up 11.1 per cent, automobiles went up 3.6 per cent, automobile tires went up 14.7 per cent and all industries went up 3.4 per cent, and this was based upon 7,564 manufacturing establishments."

Mr. Davis added that the increase was by no means uniform throughout the country and that New York State, for instance, may not show any increase. He went on:

"The fact remains, as stated by the President and myself, that Jan. 6 showed the first tangible evidence of returning employment.

"Not only that, but a preliminary report, comparing Jan. 13 with Jan. 6, shows that the automobile industry was still gaining on the 13th as compared with the 6th by 3.5 per cent, which for a gain in one week is not inconsiderable."

SPAIN FEARS REVOLT AGAINST DICTATORSHIP

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Jan. 24.—Rumors of an impending general military revolt are current. Undoubtedly many elements would like to hurry the departing dictatorship, now that it has forecast its exit. Reports from the provinces show the same unrest.

The striking students were generally quiet in Madrid today, but the police were forced to disperse one gathering, which demanded the immediate resignation of Premier Primo de Rivera. Some of the students' leaders remain in jail. Forty were arrested in one gathering but were released. Young army officers were reported to have been in this group. This was not regarded as significant because there always are a few malcontents in the army.

Students struck today at several schools in Northern cities, including Oviedo and Santiago, and the military cadets at Cadiz are restless.

The taxicab drivers' strike failed to materialize. It was pointed out to them that the government makes arbitration of strikes obligatory.

The shooting of a worker by Syndicalists in Barcelona resulted today in eighteen arrests.

Commander Cuerda, the Premier's Adjutant, told correspondents there had been no disturbances anywhere and no arrests. Another official admitted the situation was serious.

"We hope there will be no outbreak," he said, "but when military revolts occur here they come suddenly and without warning."

NEEDS 2 YEARS AT 80 TO WIN INSURANCE BET

Panama Doctor Will Recover $17,200 Then With $1,000 Quarterly for Rest of His Life.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Jan. 24.—If Dr. Innocencio Galindo, former counsel for the Isthmian Canal Commission, who celebrated his eightieth birthday today, lives two years more he will win a bet of $17,200 with the life insurance company which he posted two years ago when they refused him insurance.

When Dr. Galindo was 60 years old he went to the insurance company and asked to be allowed to insure his life $1,000 for each year of his life, but a policy was refused because he was too old. When he reached 78 years he went again to get insurance but was again refused. Then he asked how much they would require to pay him $1,000 every three months as long as he lived.

The company agreed to pay him that for a down payment of $17,200, which offer he accepted. He has already had $9,000 returned and if he lives until March 23, 1932, he will have all his money back and after that time the company must pay him $1,000 quarterly, plus interest of 8 per cent on the original amount.

"I am sure I shall win the bet and live many years more," said Dr. Galindo tonight. "I feel very well and my grandmother lived to be 113. Other members of my family have averaged 96 to 98 years."

SAYS GERMANS FACE BIG DEFICIT BY JULY

New Finance Minister Warns of 273,000,000 Marks Shortage Without Match Trust Loan.

MONOPOLY PLAN HITS SNAG

Opponents in Reichstag Fear Higher Prices or Inferior Quality of Matches.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—The financial position of Germany, as explained to the Budget Committee in the Reichstag today by Dr. Paul Moldenhauer, the new Minister of Finance, continues to reflect a condition of high tension. While estimates presented are based on adoption of the Young plan and the government's ability to realize the full amount of taxes included in its advance computations, Dr. Moldenhauer stated that the Reichstag exchequer is confronted with a cash deficit of 273,000,000 marks by next July unless the Reichstag approved the deal with the Swedish match monopoly and the government received the first instalment of its loan from that source.

Another danger which threatens to upset the government's calculations is suggested in the further growth of unemployment doles, which, combined with the shrinkage in revenues from taxation, might adversely affect the Reich's cash status to the extent of 120,000,000 marks. Even with the new reparations plan in full operation, the Federal treasury would still continue in an uncertain state, the Minister told the Reichstag.

No Fear for January.

Reverting to the year-end crisis, when the Reich's cash position revealed a deficit of 1,750,000,000 marks, according to the statement of Chancellor Mueller to the Reichstag, and the flotation of an emergency loan of 350,000,000 marks through the intervention of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the Reichsbank, saved the situation for the government, Dr. Moldenhauer announced that the Reich would be able to negotiate the month of January without acute danger, as a temporary credit of 200,000,000 marks advanced by the German banks had been extended from six to nine months. As the flow of revenues from taxation sources also had been up to expectations the Reich's balance sheet would show a surplus for January of 117,000,000 marks, he said, which, however, would be canceled by a shortage of the same amount for February.

During March the government will have to reckon with a deficit of 140,000,000 marks, a portion of which will be offset out of receipts from credits with the Agent General for reparation, due to the release of reserve funds in connection with annuities paid by the Federal railway system under the Dawes plan. The balance of the deficit for March will have to be covered from sources not yet determined, but negotiations to meet it are now in progress, Dr. Moldenhauer announced.

Approaching the first quarter of the fiscal year beginning April, the Minister's estimates are as follows: April surplus, 5,000,000 marks; May deficit, 194,000,000 marks; June deficit, 84,000,000 marks, making a total deficit for the three months of 273,000,000 marks.

For the second quarter of the new fiscal year the government envisages a surplus of 96,000,000 marks after allowing for a deficit of 101,000,000 marks for August and September, the July surplus being computed at 197,000,000 marks. Its cash position at the end of September promises to show cash assets in excess of 96,000,000 marks if the Reichstag approves the match monopoly loan bill, as it will then receive the first advance on this loan, amounting to 195,000,000 marks, in addition to 14,000,000 marks in foreign currencies, which will revert to the German Government as a result of the change in the operation of the recovery act under the new plan.

Match Monopoly Opposed.

While the government is encountering unexpected opposition in its determination to force the Reichstag to accept a bill establishing a match monopoly, with the participation of the Swedish monopoly, which already controls 75 per cent of the German production, the measure has good prospects of being enacted into law, especially as the government's representatives today succeeded partly in allaying the fears expressed by members of the Budget Committee of an advance in the cost of matches and the possibility of their becoming inferior in quality, once production is completely controlled by the monopoly.

The spokesman for the government told the committee that opposition to the Swedish trust would be futile and that the bargain negotiated with it accorded it only 50 per cent of the voting power in the affairs of the German monopoly. As for throttling an important industry, it was stated that German makers, all told, employed only about 3,000 workers and that the value of their annual output of matches was about 22,000,000 marks.

The government does not propose to impose a tax on matches, and there is no danger of material increase in their cost to the poor man who is not a heavy user of matches.

"Seventy-five per cent of the German output of matches is burned up by men and women smokers, who consume 32,000,000 cigarettes annually," the government's representative told the committee, adding that the establishment of a monopoly would coordinate the industry and reduce overhead and operating costs. The committee adjourned its deliberations until Saturday to give the government coalition parties an opportunity to canvass the situation.

Among repercussions of the last Hague conference discussed in the Reichstag is a report that in the course of negotiations there Foreign Minister Curtius discussed freely with Premier Tardieu the future relations of Franco-German finance and industry, especially a closer working union on the industrial side, as well as the prospects of France becoming a capital lender to Germany. This last development is being envisaged as wholly within the realm of possibility now that the reparations issue appears practically settled and in view of France's strongly enhanced position as the second leading owner of the world's gold.

Final details of the American School of the Air to be opened on Feb. 4 over WABC's coast-to-coast network will be discussed today at Chicago by William S. Mr. Paley will also confer at Chicago with Harold Swift, chairman of the board of the university.

place both on the free list will save the American people $100,000,000 a year. The manufacturers of my State do not need any protection, and are willing to face a world competition. Shoes are a direct tax on everybody, and if the Senate places hides and shoes on the free list, it will be to the greatest benefit of the people."

Senator Howell, Republican, of Nebraska, criticized the East as selfish, and said that the 10 per cent ad valorem duty in the Senate bill would have meant a return of 56 cents to the farmer on the average hide, while the 20 per cent ad valorem duty on shoes would have increased the return to the shoe man to $1.20 on a $6 pair of shoes.

The debate became general while the Borah amendment was pending, with one Senator after another attempting to get the floor to state his position. Senator Glass exclaimed:

"If this explanatory lament continues on every vote, will we ever get through with the tariff?"

Senator Borah's second amendment to strike out Section 153, which provided for a 40 per cent ad valorem duty on leather bags, pocketbooks and other leather articles, was adopted without a roll-call. This amendment also restored the items to the rate of 30 per cent ad valorem, as in the present law. The House had voted to increase the duty to 35 per cent.

Changes in Glove Rates Voted.

Senator Borah offered a third amendment to restore the existing duties on gloves as carried in Paragraph 1532. Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, amended the amendment to give some gloves a higher duty than the existing law, but in most respects the duties are similar to the existing law.

The Thomas amendment, adopted by a vote of 38 to 24, reads:

"Par. 1532 (a) gloves made wholly or in chief value of leather, whether wholly or partly manufactured, shall pay a duty at the following rates, the length stated in each case being the length when stretched to their fullest extent, but not to include unfolded length of cuff or other appendages. Men's gloves not over twelve inches in length, $6 per dozen pairs; women's and children's gloves made of leather goat, or kid origin, up to 14 inches, $5 per dozen pairs. For each inch in excess thereof, 25 cents per dozen pairs.

"Women's and children's gloves made of leather of sheep or lamb origin, up to 14 inches, $4 per dozen pairs. For each inch in excess thereof, 25 cents per dozen pairs. Provided, that in addition thereto, on all of the foregoing there shall be paid the following cumulative duties:

"When lined with wool, cotton, or silk, or any other fabric of whatever name or kind, $2 per dozen pairs. When lined with leather or fur, $2 per dozen pairs.

Debate Turns to Carillons.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP).—Jumping from leather to carillons in the tariff debate today, the Senate got into a row over the Finance Committee's proposal to restore the present levy of 40 per cent on these musical bells, which the House cut in half. A vote was put off until tomorrow.

Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, proposed an amendment to cut the duty to 20 per cent, but to apply it only to carillons of twenty-five bells or more, and to allow any one desiring to import carillons for philanthropic, charitable or patriotic purposes to do so free of duty.

Hide Market Here Drops Sharply.

There was a sharp drop of 25 points between sales on the New York Hide Exchange yesterday with news of the Senate's votes on the hides and leather tariffs. The market closed from 35 to 45 points below the previous close.

The decline of the market was said to have been caused by the fact that prices have been held up in the hope that a protective measure would be passed. Hope was expressed in some quarters that yesterday's action in the Senate would not be final and that some protection might yet be obtained.

The liquidation which took place on the Hide Exchange yesterday was not extraordinarily heavy and the whole day's turnover was only 760,000 pounds. Trading was confined to three of the eleven trading positions.

ASSAIL TREATMENT OF CRIME WITNESS

SUGGEST SEVEN CHANGES

Proposals for improvements in handling material witnesses in criminal cases, following charges of many serious abuses, are contained in a symposium written for the Association of Grand Jurors of New York County by three members of the New York bar and published yesterday in the Panel. The contributors to the symposium are George Z. Medalie, Edward A. Alexander and George E. Worthington.

Appended is also the report of Commissioner John S. Kennedy to the State Commission of Correction describing what he terms intolerable conditions in the West Fifty-third Street prison, especially in the detention of material witnesses.

All the authors of the symposium call attention to many manifestations of injustice and inefficiency in the handling of material witnesses under the present system and declare that the situation requires serious consideration and reform.

While all three agree on the necessity and importance of giving this matter further study, they all believe that enough facts regarding abuses are already at hand to make possible remedies that will result in considerable improvement.

The practical suggestions made in the symposium for immediate application are:

1. Elimination of delays by reducing the number of adjournments in the magistrates' courts. This can be assured in Manhattan by the establishment of the Centralized Magistrates' Court.
2. Prompt prosecution by the District Attorney and the discouragement of dilatory practices by the defense.
3. Release on moderate bail wherever practicable.
4. Establishment of Houses of Detention for those material witnesses for whom there is no other alternative than detention coupled with more adequate compensation.
5. Compulsory attendance and bail for defense witnesses as well as for the people's witnesses.
6. Conditional examination of a witness in the presence of the defendant within three days after the Court finds witness is unable to secure sureties, and authorizing this deposition to be used at the trial, in case the witness leaves the jurisdiction.

This might be facilitated by the suggestion that an immediate examination be had of all material witnesses for both the prosecution and the defense, with the testimony reduced to writing and signed by all of them. This could be accomplished before the magistrate at the time of arraignment in that court.

7. Uniform State laws for the compulsory attendance of witnesses at a criminal trial.

The critics of the system dwell at length on the injustices of detention suffered by material witnesses, while criminals charged with serious crimes are permitted to be out on bail. This is the one feature, they insist, which should be corrected without delay.

BAIL BOND GRAFT PAID TO POLICE

any bail bond runner with whom the United States Attorney became dissatisfied would be discharged.

"The investigation which this grand jury has now been conducting discloses that the clause in this agreement that not more than the maximum premium allowed by the State law, to wit, 3 per cent, would be charged, is not being kept; and that in fact the provisions of the State law on the subject are not being observed in general, either as to State or Federal offenses in the matter of the smaller bail bond such as $500 or $1,000. We have had before us the heads of several of the surety companies engaged in this business and a large number of the runners.

"These runners are reluctant to testify in public for fear, as they say, of reprisals and even of bodily harm; but they have stated before us under oath in the privacy of this grand jury investigation that the reasons why it is impossible for them to comply with the State law are the following, to wit:

"Each surety company doing this class of business requires the bail bond agent to deliver to it in payment for the bail bond 2 per cent of the face amount of the bond, and in addition requries the bail bond agent to be personally responsible for the amount of any forfeiture which occurs. The agent is obliged to put up with the surety company at the time of his original employment collateral to the extent of from $5 to $10 to secure the company against loss by reason of any such forfeiture. One of the companies in lieu of such collateral requires the agent to turn over to it an additional one-half of 1 per cent of the face amount of the bond for the purpose of building up a fund to protect the surety company against forfeiture.

"In addition, the surety companies do not limit the number of their agents and exercise no actual supervision over the manner in which the agents conduct business. Indeed, by reason of the arrangements just mentioned the surety companies who do this business have little incentive for exercising such supervision or for protecting the public against extortion. Because of the competition between these agents for the getting of business (the competition often being between agents of the same company), a widespread practice of paying tribute has grown up.

"According to the testimony before us, it is customary for the agent, in order to be facilitated at the station house and to get the business which might otherwise go to some other agent, to pay $5 to the officer at the desk and $1 to the turnkey or other official who arranges for the telephone or for access to the prisoner. By this means the bond runner is facilitated in obtaining transcript which he then takes, together with a bail bond form, to a magistrate's court or to the night court or the magistrate's home for signature.

"In cases where such transcript is taken to the magistrate's court, it is customary, according to the testimony before us, to give another dollar to the clerk 'at the bridge' to insure a speedy admission to the presence of court. Many bail runners are not equipped to fill out the blanks and the bond forms, and if they are aided by a clerk of the court it is customary to give him also a dollar or two in order to obtain bond facility. The runner then returns to the station house to release his client from custody, and not infrequently he finds that competitors have already beaten him and the prisoner is already released.

"According to the testimony, the tribute runs anywhere from $6 to $10 per bond, and is one of the basic reasons why bail bond runners cannot do business of writing small bonds within the limits of the State law, whether the offense be a State offense or a Federal offense. It is testified in consequence that for a bond of $500 it is not infrequent to extort from the prisoner as much as $30 to $50, and that in connection with a $1,000 bond as much as $100, or 10 per cent, is sometimes extorted. This burden falls on the poorer class of people and constitutes a disgrace to our civilization.

"Other evils likewise are present. Favored bondsmen have offices in the immediate vicinity of the station houses. It is testified that in some instances they even sleep in the station houses. Furthermore the printed form of affidavit required by the State law to be made out by the surety company or its agent is so mutilated as to make a prosecution for perjury almost impossible.

"If there ever has been any prosecution by the State authorities of any bail bond runner within the last several years for violating the State law, we have not heard of it.

"Approximately $50,000,000 in bail-bonds was written in the Greater City of New York during 1929.

"We deplore the utter absence of Federal legislation regulating the bail-bond business, and we approve the purpose of the United States Attorney to send a copy of this report to the Wickersham committee with a strong recommendation that it give consideration to affording protection from extortion to persons arrested for minor Federal offenses.

"There are a large number of private persons who have a license as bail-bond brokers and yet write bail-bonds as principals, although not possessing the capital of $250,000 required by the State law of those undertaking to do an insurance business as principals. We strongly endorse the refusal by the State Superintendent of Insurance to renew the licenses of these professional bondsmen, and the prosecution of those who continue to violate the State law in this respect.

"Two remedies which will partially remove some of these evils can be applied immediately. Under the State law the State Superintendent of Insurance can by regulation require the bail-bond agents to keep books of account in which they will set forth the circumstances concerning each bond, the charge made, the premium actually received, the names of any subagents or intermediaries and the amount and nature of the collateral received—such books to be open to the inspection of the police, the District Attorneys and the Superintendent of Insurance; and the Superintendent of Insurance can by further regulation require that the agents submit to him, the District Attorneys and the police daily reports (precisely as do pawnbrokers) of their daily transactions and of the collateral daily received.

"The other partial remedy that can be applied immediately is a system under which one of the twenty-seven magistrates in the counties of New York and Bronx will be on a given night in the month at a given place accessible to bail-bond agents. This will cover twenty-seven days in each month, and we have reason to believe that the Federal court will authorize each of the two United States Commissioners to sit at one or two of the remaining four nights in the month.

"A third remedy, which can be accomplished only by agreement between the surety companies or by legislation, is to pool in some central bureau business of the companies now writing this class of bonds; pay salaries rather than commissions; and reduce thereby the bail bond agents to one-third the present number. This plan will also cut out tribute and enable compliance with the State law and operation on a clean basis. The $50,000,000 of bail bonds written in 1929 in this city were written in the main by four companies.

"In the main these companies are willing to aid in the elimination of the present evils.

"Suggestion has also been made that for petty offenses summonses be used as at present in traffic violations; or that small cash bail be accepted in the station houses in lieu of bonds. Both these proposals in order to become effective would require amendment of the State and Federal law."

In addition to Mr. Tuttle and Mr. Flagler, the presentment was signed by William P. Sears, Lester J. Saul, Harold H. Weekes, Galen M. Harris, Ralph B. Austrian, E. C. Mears Kemp, William Pedrick Jr., Robert D. Sterling, J. Henry Halsted, E. Catlin Jr., Percy W. Lansburgh, Milton J. Vogel, George R. King, Raymond W. Pendergast, Henry C. Pelton and Henry B. Keckeley as secretary.

FALSE BONDS POSTED, CRAIN AIDE FINDS

Prosecutor Sifting Dozen Cases in Which Bondsmen Did Not Own Security.

GRAND JURY ACTS MONDAY

Magistrate Dodge Denies Charge—Tombs Can Take No More Prisoners, Warden Says.

As a by-product of his general investigation of conditions in the magistrates' courts, which is scheduled to be initiated by the grand jury on Monday, District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain began yesterday an inquiry into bail bonds. He appointed Assistant District Attorney Charles Garrison of the indictment bureau to conduct the investigation.

Mr. Garrison said that he was looking into a dozen cases where bondsmen are reported to have sworn falsely to ownership of property in order to bail out prisoners. If the alleged perjury is substantiated the cases will be put before the additional grand jury, of which Joseph P. Day, real estate operator, is foreman.

The examination of bonds was begun when the attention of Mr. Crain was directed to the matter by Assistant District Attorney Joseph Forrester, in charge of the bail bond bureau. One of the cases under scrutiny is that of Julius Cohn, who said that he lived at 226 East 203d Street, the Bronx.

Bronx Case Is Cited.

According to the investigators, Cohn appeared before Magistrate Henry M. R. Goodman on Dec. 2 and represented himself as the owner of the 203d Street property. He offered it as security for bonds of $500 each required of three men charged with violation of the policy law. The men bailed out were Fitzgerald Wright of 280 St. Nicholas Avenue, Pablo Delabert of 210 West 140th Street and Paul Marcelino of 237 West 111th Street.

According to Mr. Garrison, the bonds were forfeited when the men failed to appear for trial in Special Sessions on Dec. 19. Mr. Forrester found that the property in question was listed as owned by the Elsie Realty Corporation and that letters sent to Cohn were returned undelivered.

Another case cited by the Assistant District Attorney related to a bond of $500 which was acceped on May 19 by Police Lieutenant Frank Hillum of the West Thirtieth Street Station. The bond was posted by Louis H. Brown of 130 West 118th Street, for the release of Charles White, charged with disorderly conduct. The property tendered was that at the West 118th Street address, and when the bail was forfeited the property, according to Mr. Garrison, was found to be owned by the Pauline Realty Company.

Still another case under investigation is the $500 bond put up on Nov. 6 by Max Wexler of 25 East 109th Street for the release of George Brown, charged with disorderly conduct. The property offered as security for the bond was at 502 West 135th Street. The bond was forfeited and, said Mr. Garrison, the property was found to be listed in the name of the Polwex Realty Corporation of 1,655 Madison Avenue, and not in Wexler's name.

The next case mentioned by the Assistant District Attorney was that of Joe Lewis of 315 Lenox Avenue, who posted the property at 214 West 126th Street as collateral for the $500 bond of Louis Turetzkin, charged with disorderly conduct. After the bail was canceled on Nov. 16 Mr. Garrison said that an investigation had shown the property to be part of the Harlem Opera House, which is not owned by Lewis.

The last bond cited by Mr. Garrison as being investigated was one for $2,000 put up by Jack Eichner on July 3, 1928, for Joseph Jonas, charged with grand larceny. The property in this case was at 352 East 120th Street. Eichner is alleged to have claimed ownership of the realty. Mr. Garrison said that the bond was forfeited in General Sessions and the property was found to be owned by the Gophir Realty Company. Mr. Garrison added that Eichner subsequently received the privilege of paying off the forfeited bond in instalments and that after $1,250 had been paid, no other payments were made.

Crain Withholds Witnesses' Names.

Judge Crain said yesterday that he did not care to disclose at this time the identity or the number of witnesses at his inquiry. He will outline the purpose and scope of the investigation to the grand jury on Monday.

Several complaints of alleged irregularities in the lower courts have been received by Mr. Crain as a result of his appeal to the public to give him such information.

Mr. Crain said that he was pursuing his investigation into the bail bond "night riders," who bail prisoners, chiefly women, out of prison late at night and then ride them around town trying to get exorbitant fees out of them.

Dodge Replies to Report.

Magistrate William C. Dodge issued a statement yesterday in reference to a story in an evening newspaper to the effect that he had reduced charges of burglary against two prisoners to disorderly conduct and then fined them $25 each. The statement was as follows:

"I recall nothing whatever concerning this case. If this case was reduced from burglary to disorderly conduct by me, it was done with full knowledge of the facts taken down by the stenographer in the court where I may have been sitting, and with full consent, knowledge and recommendation of the complainant."

Warden Robert Barr of the Tombs announced yesterday that the prison had reached capacity. He said that he could not take any more prisoners and added that he was sending the new ones to the district prisons. The overcrowding of the Tombs is owing to the magistrates' present attitude of holding rather than bailing prisoners, an outcome of the agitation over the lower courts.

There are 744 inmates in the Tombs now. The prison's real capacity is 986 persons but this cannot be utilized because many of the cell doors cannot be locked. This is due to the sinking of the building. Repairs are being made.

The Sackville $37.50 overcoat holds its shape under this everyday strain, because the makers have taken their sewing and thread seriously. Silk thread is used because it is stronger and more satisfactory. It has elasticity and "give", so it is used in the Sackville.

Then there is the matter of how the thread is sewn. The best thread in the world wouldn't hold a coat together properly, if the right amount of hand stitching is not employed. The Sackvilles have hand-stitching where it is needed,—in hidden, strategic points where it may not show, but where it does a lot of good.

THOMPSON YIELDS TO FOES ON FINANCE

Chicago City Council Appeals for Special Session of the Legislature for Rescue.

OFFICIALS FEAR 'CIVIL WAR'

Mayor Cites Anger at Drop in Loop Taxes as He Quits Fight on 'Economy Budget.'

'RESCUE COMMITTEE' WAITS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Chicago's financial chaos, attributed by Mayor William Hale Thompson to the "reformers'" successful efforts to bring about a reassessment of Cook County real estate, with its consequent delay in collecting taxes for 1928, and by Thompson's political opponents to City Hall graft and waste, is leading to a public demonstration akin to civil war, it was asserted today by officials in the confidence of the higher councils of the municipal administration as Mayor Thompson in his message to the City Council announced that he would not again veto the city's $55,000,000 "economy budget."

The council today adopted a resolution asking Governor Emmerson to call a special session of the General Assembly to rescue the city from its predicament. Consolidation, unification and reorganization of the various governing and taxing bodies within the city of Chicago were asked in the interests of efficiency and economy. Committees of the council were ordered to draft for consideration of the Assembly legislation to enable the collection of general taxes at or near the close of the calendar year in which they are levied.

There is a wave of angry resentment throughout Chicago and Cook County among the small tax payers, it was said, created by the lopping off of $300,000,000 in valuations of assessment values on property in the city's Loop or business district that may eventually culminate in a torch and flag parade of angry citizens down La Salle Street.

Should the fears of those close to Thompson materialize and the mob spirit develop, there is but one man who can "still that mob," and "he is 'Big Bill' Thompson," is the belief of Thompson followers.

Within the last few months there have been meetings in outlying districts of Chicago which have given unmistakable indications of what may be expected, according to information gathered around the City Hall. Unless this alleged state of unfair taxation is readjusted and the $300,000,000 valuation restored, there is no foretelling where it will end, according to opinions expressed today.

Cicero's Demonstration Cited.

At Cicero, recently, it was said, irate taxpayers gave unmistakable evidence of the feeling of the average Cook County home owner when they marched into the meeting with flags flying, and, before the gathering adjourned, all but threatened the speakers with bodily harm.

"The huge sum which was lifted off the Loop was crushed down upon the bungalows and small stores in the outlying districts," said Mayor Thompson in his budget veto message of Jan. 18.

"In the town of Calumet alone, 25,000 complaints against the doubling and trebling of assessments will be filed with the Board of Review through the Calumet Township Citizens' Association. This is typical of the protests of other outlying districts.

"Now that the storm is breaking, the assessment 'reformers' are trying to get out from under. Those who are responsible for the present and increasing chaos are attempting to shift the blame."

The Mayor's message to the City Council this afternoon admitting defeat—the first successful rebellion by that body during Thompson's three terms—came as large taxpayers were voicing sympathy with the plan to meet the $11,000,000 overdue city and county payrolls through the purchase of tax anticipation warrants.

The Mayor's failure to veto will allow the budget ordinance to become a law. Beginning tomorrow it will be published for ten days and then a tax levy ordinance will be passed on Feb. 4, after which tax anticipation warrants against 1930 taxes can be offered for sale.

The Mayor attacked the "tax reformers" and assailed the majority of the City Council—the majority which twice refused to obey his veto—for failure to make larger appropriations for police, fire and health departments and other municipal activities.

Says Aldermen Violated Law.

"I have vetoed the appropriation bill twice and can see no good in vetoing it again," said the message. "Another veto might result in a state of chaos.

"The majority of the Aldermen did not obey the law of the State of Illinois, which requires appropriations for necessary municipal activities, nor did they exert their energies toward obtaining additional revenues through ways suggested by the Mayor, particularly in the matter of urging that the $300,000,000 reduction be put back on Loop real estate valuation.

The message challenged the statement recently made by George O. Fairweather, chairman of the Joint Tax Commission, that Loop valuations had been reduced by only $19,000,000. The Mayor said the Board of Assessors in 1927 valued the Loop district at $761,694,320, whereas the 1928 assessed valuation of the Loop as it appears today on the assessors' books as a "result of the reform assessment" is $471,491,711.

"Rescue Committee" Ready.

The Silas H. Strawn "rescue committee" has its taxpayers' pool practically ready, with perhaps $20,000,000, to relieve the most pressing needs of the local governments, but "there is nothing available for spendthrifts."

The large property owners will advance the millions until assured that they will be spent for hospitals, mothers' pensions, sanitariums, fire and police protection and other like municipal necessities, it was learned. They also want some solemn promises on legislation which will prevent wasteful and extravagant expenditures in the future. Before they put in the $20,000,000 they want to see a "way out to safe ground," members of the committee said.

Following the committee's session today it issued the following statement:

"We have been assured of the cooperation of many of our taxpayers, but the committee cannot be constructively helpful without the full cooperation of the officials whose duty it is to finance and perform our several municipal functions."

The sanitary district has given "full cooperation." The county has been "off and on" in its cooperation; and the city and school board have indicated no cooperative attitude.

To Give Tax Warrants for Pay.

Today was an "off" day of the county. Its county commissioners voted to pay the 3,862 county employes the $1,133,000 in salaries by giving each a tax anticipation warrant for the amount of his wages.

The board has twice failed since Christmas to sell $7,000,000 of the same tax warrants. The banks and investment houses refused to bid. The unpaid bills of the county for meat, butter, eggs, coal and other supplies total $7,035,000.

There is no cash in the county treasury and it is unable to borrow on the security which it will try to give the employes as cash in payment for service rendered. Bankers said that this method of hawking tax anticipation warrants would decrease their market value. But the commissioners announced that the printing of warrants in $5 to $100 denominations started tonight and that "pay-day" will be next Wednesday.

City Controller Schmidt asked Corporation Counsel Ettelson for an opinion on the validity of adopting the same plan for the city corporate employes. These number 18,000 and have $4,160,000 in unpaid salaries.

Situation Is Reviewed.

A spokesman for the Mayor, reviewing the Chicago fiscal situation today, said that temporary and permanent relief can come through two avenues:

1. A special session of the Illinois Legislature.

2. Restoration of the $300,000,000 valuation reduction granted to Loop property owners.

The causes for the dilemma were listed by him as follows:

1. The fact that real estate taxes have not been collected for the past twenty months, due to the reassessment of property ordered by the State Tax Commission, which reassessment is yet far from completed.

2. The fact that the municipalities of Cook County, deprived for twenty months of their normal tax revenues, have been compelled to borrow approximately $280,000,000, on which borrowed money they are now paying $1,400,000 a month in interest. The city's share of the interest, exclusive of the Board of Education, on the enforced tax-anticipation debt, is $326,645.85 a month, or approximately $4,000,000 a year.

3. That the members of the General Assembly, in acting on tax-rate legislation at the regular session of the last General Assembly, reached their decision in the belief and assurance that the new reassessment total would be at least as great as the old total assessment. The City Council Finance Committee and other representatives of the city received this assurance from the reassessment forces before adding 750 policemen to the Police Department last July and because of that assurance voluntarily asked the General Assembly to reduce the then existing tax rate 5 cents. It is now apparent that the reassessment total, as equalized by the assessors, reduces the Loop valuations by $300,000,000, and will make the grand total assessed value of Chicago real property at least that much lower than the total estimates on which the tax rates were based.

BUDGET TO INCLUDE $4,172,460 PAY RISE

there are three possible methods of procedure to raise the money required for the salary increases, but that the legality of two of them he considered doubtful. The third procedure—the reopening of the budget—he said is the one he recommends. His suggestion is this:

That the budget be reopened and the amount needed be placed therein, if authorization for such procedure be obtained by appropriate legislation before March 1, when the tax rate must be fixed.

The two doubtful methods referred to are: First, there are unappropriated balances which now exist in the city treasury which in the course of time will find their way into the general fund. Some of these might be used to the extent of the amount needed. Specifically, this means that during the month of February the Controller is required by law to certify to the Board of Aldermen the estimated amount which will be available in the general fund of the city to be used in the reduction of current taxation.

Secondly, there exists in the budget different appropriations for certain specific purposes, among them one of $2,000,000 for repaving and resurfacing of streets. This amount, due to a local law, passed last year, can only be used for the specific purpose included in the budget, and any balance remaining, under the same law, is available in the next ensuing year. By the repeal of this local law and the change in the budget designation, funds to the amount of approximately $4,172,460, may be made available for the purpose of these salary increases."

The Controller explained in his report that the city suffers from no financial stringency. He declared that it has an abundance of money, but he likened the city to a business man, who keeps his money in separate containers.

He called attention to the fact that there are legal limitations on the use of funds in each separate city account.

The proposed increases in the lower ranks of the force are now reduced as follows:

	Original Request.	New Request.
7th and 6th grade	$1,769-$2,000	$1,769-$2,000
3d grade	2,040- 2,700	2,040- 2,500

Original Number.	Modified Number.
10 Captains	8
20 Lieutenants	8
25 Sergeants (acting lieutenants)	25
40 Sergeants	16
25 Detectives (first grade)	15
50 Detectives (second grade)	25
60 Patrolmen (added pay)	40

Deputy Chiefs	$300
Battalion Chiefs	310
Lieutenants	350
Engineers	380
Pilots	300
Chief Marine Engineer	280

The requests for firemen remain the same:

Fourth and third grade	$1,769 to $2,000
Second grade	$1,980 to $2,500

The suggestion that the budget be reopened is not without precedent. The budget was reopened on an occasion during the administration of Controller Charles L. Craig, it was said.

Word of the postponement of action on Mr. Whalen's proposal for higher wages was received at Police Headquarters with misgivings. Many of the men of twenty-five or more years' service, between the grades of sergeant and deputy chief inspector, had planned to retire on pension on the basis of the proposed wage scale, and their plans were necessarily upset. This also affects promotions, in view of the fact that those who had planned to retire will continue in their jobs until something definite develops as to a pay raise.

Those affected included 8 deputy chief inspectors, 24 inspectors, 22 deputy inspectors, 100 captains, 594 lieutenants, 1,027 sergeants and 250 first grade detectives.

WALTER J. HILL IS SUED.

Alienation of Wife Charged by St. Paul Man, Who Asks $100,000.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 24 (AP).—Walter J. Hill, youngest son of James J. Hill, railroad magnate, was named defendant in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit filed today by L. M. Hoffman. The complaint alleges that Mr. Hill stole Mrs. Hoffman's affections in 1925 and 1926.

Frank Drill, the attorney who filed the suit, refused to reveal his client's address or occupation.

Mr. Hill lives on a ranch near Livingston, Mont. Mildred Richardson Hill, his third wife, filed suit for divorce Nov. 25, asking $5,000 monthly temporary alimony, $5,000 monthly permanent alimony, $35,000 attorney's fees and to have $750,000 set aside from the estate for redress pending settlement of the suit. The case had not come to trial.

PROPOSE TRIBUNAL FOR BUILDING UNIONS

COMMITTEE TO STUDY PLAN

Will Report Here or at Capital—Hoover Letter Voices Hopes for Amicable Settlement.

Special to The New York Times.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 24.—Action to end jurisdictional disputes in the building industry, which representatives of the American Federation of Labor and of the National Association of Building Trades Employers declared will save millions of dollars annually to the public, was taken here today at a joint meeting of both forces.

A subcommittee of six was named to consider a proposal for the establishment of a medium through which an amicable settlement of jurisdictional disputes can be reached.

Several proposals will be taken up tomorrow by the subcommittee, and when an agreement is reached on a plan it will be submitted to the entire committee, either in New York or Washington, at a meeting in which the heads of all international unions will be invited to participate. Today's conference was said by President M. J. McDonough of the building trades department of the federation to be the most important step taken in recent years to bring peace to the building trades industry, with every one in accord and recognizing the need of reaching an amicable settlement.

A system similar to the court system of the nation, with various branches of labor privileged to appeal to regional boards and a supreme tribunal, will be among the proposals discussed.

The subcommittee to consider the proposals includes Mr. McDonough, Paul J. Mortin of St. Louis, iron worker; John J. Hynes of Boston, sheet metal worker; Christian J. Norman, chairman of the New York Building Trades Federation; James J. Skelly of Boston, and O. W. Rosenthal, president of the Building Trades Council of Chicago and national vice president of the Building Trades Employers.

Thomas J. Williams, former President of the Building Trades Department and a member of the staff of Secretary Davis, read a letter from President Hoover, as follows:

"I have been asked if, in view of the momentous importance of the conference you are about to undertake, I will address to you a word of kindly encouragement. I am glad to do so.

"To find a method for the amicable settlement of jurisdictional disputes is indeed one of the most important questions in our labor relations. It is capable of solution. Failure to solve it results in losses to labor, to the employers and the public at large.

"It is evidence of the advancing understanding of the whole of our social and economic problems that this conference should take place, and I am indeed glad to wish success to your endeavors."

POLICE RAID OFFICES OF MONTREAL BROKERS

Warrant Charges Fraud—Books Sent to Canada by Houses Closed Here Seized.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.—Following complaint of the Montreal Stock Exchange, the police raided the office of Martin & Martin, Ltd., at 276 St. James Street, this afternoon and seized brokerage business equipment, lists of names and thirty telephones. The offices occupied nine rooms. No arrests were made. Court proceedings are expected tomorrow.

The seized goods were taken to provincial police headquarters this afternoon. A telephone message from New York stated that a raid had been made there on a firm through which Martin & Martin are alleged to have transacted their business.

The large mailing list found on the premises was augmented by lists compiled by brokers in the United States who had either been suspended by the authorities or had gone out of business. Included in the six truckloads of records seized were books taken from brokerage houses closed by the States of New York and New Jersey and spirited away to Canada before the United States authorities could get them. The provincial police have been informed by the New York Attorney General that many firms driven from business in that State have moved to Montreal to continue their business with United States customers beyond the jurisdiction of the State laws.

The charge on the warrant was conspiring to defraud, conducting a common gambling house, and gambling in stocks and merchandise.

The firm apparently operated chiefly over the telephone. The telephone bills range from $500 to $1,000 a day. Investors all over the country, both here and in the United States, were solicited by telephone.

Silberstein Acquitted in Linden.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 24.—At the conclusion today of the State's case against A. J. Silberstein, Linden (N. J.) architect charged with grand larceny, Judge Alfred A. Stein directed a verdict of not guilty. The order followed a motion by Merritt Lane, defense counsel, who argued that the indictment was for larceny while the evidence had to do with alleged bribery and not larceny. Silberstein was alleged to have received $750 from Harold Cohen of the Harco Steel Company for allowing a smaller amount of steel than specified in building a Linden firehouse.

LEAGUE CAUTIONS CHACO DISPUTANTS

Zaleski's Messages to Bolivia and Paraguay Remind Them of Obligations.

ARGENTINA SHOWS INTEREST

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 24.—August Zaleski, Foreign Minister of Poland and acting president of the Council of the League of Nations, cautioned Bolivia and Paraguay against further violence in their dispute over the Chaco Boreal region in his messages to both countries yesterday, it was revealed today.

The League intervention is considered here to be most important and likely to lead to settlement of the basic territorial conflict as well as the boundary clashes of patrols.

M. Zaleski reminded the disputants of their covenant obligations and appealed to them not to deviate from pacific procedure in their policies The plea is held to furnish a new example of the possibilities of applying concretely the Leagues' machinery for the maintenance of peace.

The League Secretariat released the text of M. Zaleski's telegrams, which were identical and were signed by Sir Eric Drummond, the Secretary General. They were addressed to the Foreign Ministers of Bolivia and Paraguay and copies were sent to all members of the Council. They read:

"I have the honor to bring to the knowledge of your Excellency the following communication, which has been addressed to me by the acting president of the Council:

" 'Concerned at the news regarding the Chaco Boreal region, I request you, in my capacity as acting president of the Council of the League of Nations, to recall to the Bolivian and Paraguayan Governments that, after the session of December, 1928, the acting president of the council, M. Briand, and last September the League Assembly congratulated the two noble nations on having adopted a pacific procedure for the settlement of their dispute in conformity with the undertakings of the covenant.

" 'I believe I am interpreting today the feelings of the Council and the whole League of Nations in requesting you to express to both governments our confidence that no serious incident will compromise the success of the pacific procedure under way.

" 'ZALESKI,

" 'Minister of Foreign Affairs of Poland, Acting President of the Council.'

"DRUMMOND, Secretary General.

Telegram from Bolivian.

The Secretary General received today from the permanent Bolivian delegate to the League, Ramon Cortadellas, the following telegram, which he immediately forwarded to the Paraguayan Government and members of the Council:

"In the name of my government I make formal protest to the League against the false information and attempts to attribute to Bolivia responsibility for the latest incident in the Chaco provoked by a Paraguayan patrol which attacked a Bolivian observation post. My country, faithful to the conciliation agreement which it subscribed at Washington after the investigation made by delegates of the United States, Cuba, Mexico, Colombia and Uruguay, who found that Paraguay had been the aggressor in December, 1928, never for a moment departed from the line of conduct traced for it by its duties as a member of the League, and hopes the formula proposed by the Uruguayan chancellery and immediately accepted by Bolivia will be carried out peacefully."

This telegram reached the secretariat a few hours after a mail communication from Señor Cortadellas in which he acknowledged receipt of the first Paraguayan accusations on the "alleged surprise attack by Bolivian forces of a Paraguayan column on the Isla Poi." The letter adds, "I must state that I have as yet no official information regarding the incident referred to in the Paraguayan representative's note. I would venture here and now to question the accuracy of all statements and suggestions contained in a communication from the Minister in question. In doing so I rely not only on my knowledge of policy but on previous incidents between Bolivia and Paraguay when similar or even more explicit charges were made by the latter against Bolivia with the intention of throwing on Bolivia responsibility for having occasioned a serious dispute. However, notwithstanding all those official accusations, the conciliation commission met in Washington and proved the contrary. That is to say, it found Paraguay had disturbed the peace and was the original aggressor."

In the course of the last few days Eduardo Diez de Medina, the Bolivian Minister, has issued statements repeatedly denying the authenticity of messages the Paraguayan Government has reported to have intercepted from General Kundt. The Bolivian Legation has characterized the Paraguayan charges as untrue and absurd.

In support of this counter-allegation, the Minister has said the alleged orders for Bolivian troop movement were directed against Bolivian forts and were therefore impossible.

Argentina Watching Events.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 24.—It is rumored here that President Irigoyen has been considering again offering the good offices of Argentina to settle the Chaco territorial dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay, but official circles close to the President insist that no such offer will be made, although Señor Irigoyen is keeping closely informed of developments and is ready to lend his good offices if requested by both parties.

Dispatches from La Paz, however, indicate no such request is likely from the Bolivian Government, which is not enthusiastic over a suggestion from several sources that the ABC republics, Argentina, Brazil and Chile, be requested to seek a solution of the difficulties.

The Paraguayan Ministry of War has published two more coded wireless messages which, it alleges, were sent by General Kundt, a German former General, who is acting chief of staff of the Bolivian army. One of these messages purports to order an offensive concentration against Fort Vanguardia and the other rescinded an order for an attack on four Paraguayan forts.

General Kundt has explained the original order for concentration against Paraguayan forts as a defensive measure against further Paraguayan attacks.

Both Bolivia and Paraguay have presented protests to the League of Nations, which mutually contradict each other, and have also presented formal protests to the Uruguayan Government, under whose good offices the negotiations have been proceeding in an effort to carry out the agreement reached before the commission of neutrals in Washington to exchange the forts captured in the skirmish of December, 1928.

The recent skirmish is occupying the principal attention of the leading South American foreign offices, which are extremely concerned lest a continuance of violence in the Chaco endanger the peace of the continent.

New Report of Attack Order.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP).—The Paraguayan Government tonight ordered its Chargé d'Affaires in Washington, Pablo M. Ynsfran, to report to the State Department that a new order had been intercepted from General Hans Kundt, chief of staff of the Bolivian Army, ordering preparations for a general offensive against Paraguay.

The governmental instructions said that the following message, sent in code, had been intercepted by Paraguayan forces:

"Report members of the patrol, 'Trugillo.' Report who saw Private Fernández fall. The division must be ready for a general offensive, with the centre of gravity in the northern centre.

"(Signed) KUNDT."

Señor Ynsfran will inform the State Department tomorrow that Private Fernández was the Bolivian soldier reported slain. The Trugillo patrol is the one which the Paraguayans contend was engaged in the action of Jan. 16 at Isla Poi, which precipitated the present tense situation between the two countries over the question of their opposing claims to the Chaco Boreal.

British Naval Officer Held in China; Arrest to Test Extraterritoriality Decree

HANKOW, China, Jan. 24 (AP).—The arrest today of a British naval officer whose automobile killed a Chinese coolie may result in a test of the Nationalist Government's decree of Dec. 28 abolishing extraterritoriality in China.

Upon representation of the Chinese Mayor to the Chinese police, coupled with the written guarantee of the British Consul assuring the naval officer's appearance for investigation before Chinese officials, the officer was released.

The Chinese police said they were acting "upon specific instructions from Nanking saying that all foreigners under Chinese jurisdiction will be tried in Chinese courts."

The arrest of a British naval officer in Hankow is the first important case that has developed since the Nationalist Government's insistent revival in December of its long negotiations with foreign governments for the abolishment of extraterritoriality rights. These rights for eighty years have given foreigners the privilege of trial in China in courts presided over by their own countrymen.

The British officer was driving the automobile this afternoon when it struck a coolie laborer, who died soon afterward. The Chinese authorities arrested the officer, placing him in a Chinese jail, and for a time refused to heed British consular representations that he be freed.

Child Born to Mme. Ying Kao in Jail

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 24.—A son was born yesterday at Soochow Jail to Mme. Ying Kao, wife of the ex-Consul at San Francisco, where both father and mother were awaiting the results of an appeal from conviction for smuggling $1,000,000 worth of opium into America.

WORLD BANK FINDS PICKING CHIEF HARD

Five Americans Reported Under Consideration, but Reluctant to Make Sacrifice.

McGARRAH IS MENTIONED

Head of New York Federal Reserve Won't Comment on Rumor He Has Agreed to Serve.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—The selection of two American members of the board of directors for the Bank for International Settlements is encountering some difficulty, it is said here, owing to the disinclination of prominent American bankers to accept the position under the conditions which have been imposed.

The names of many men of high reputation have been mentioned, including those of Dwight W. Morrow, S. Parker Gilbert, the Agent General for Reparations; Gates McGarrah, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York; Jackson Reynolds and Melvin E. Traylor, but thus far no definite acceptances have been obtained from any of them, it is understood.

According to the provisions established at The Hague and Baden Baden, it has been virtually agreed that one of the Americans selected shall be chosen president and therefore the principal administrator of the bank. Technically, however, this selection must be made by the first board of directors itself after assembling at Basle some time late in February or in the beginning of March, so that even though it is understood that a particular man had been selected he would be extremely reluctant to confirm the public announcement until after that date.

Several Drawbacks to Post.

Acceptance of membership on the bank's board, however, entails such drawbacks that few leading American financiers would be willing to consider it. First, it will require residence in Europe and therefore resignation from active participation in activities in America. Second, in view of The Hague decisions, it is likely to be an office with a distinctly secondary financial remuneration. This means that the bank's organizers are faced with the task of finding a man of the highest repute in world finance whose presence on the bank's board would give it prestige, but who was willing to practically donate his time and retire from all other activities in return for the distinction of being the first president of an institution which, in all probability, cannot, in view of its statutes and restrictions, become anything like an independent financial power for many years to come, at least until statutes are so modified as to liberate it from the tight control which has been imposed by the central banks of issue.

Bank Committee Assembling.

BASLE, Switzerland, Jan. 24 (AP).—The governors of the central banks involved are assembling here for the purpose of naming two members from each country to the board of the Bank for International Settlements created under the Young plan. This board, when constituted, will appoint two American members and then the entire board will select the president.

McGarrah Reports Unconfirmed.

Reports that Mr. McGarrah was slated to become president of the Bank of International Settlements received no confirmation in Wall Street yesterday.

A Dow Jones despatch from Paris stated that it was reported there that Mr. McGarrah had accepted the presidency of the bank. At the Federal Reserve Bank it was said that Mr. McGarrah refused either to affirm or deny the report.

RUMANIAN STUDENTS RIOT.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 24.—A big demonstration of students was held at Czernowitz today against forty-two Communists, who were sentenced to long years of imprisonment. M. Petroshcano, the Communists' lawyer, remained concealed for some time in the court house, finally entering a closed auto brought by the police.

A student opened the door and threw out the lawyer into the mob, which beat him with cudgels until the police intervened. Many students were injured by the police.

When the news of the attack reached the working class districts a huge crowd of workmen paraded the streets, intending to attack the students' headquarters. Large police forces prevented clashes.

CRANIUM OF MURDERER LIKE ANTHROPOID APE'S

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 24.—A discovery which is regarded of first importance to medical science and jurisprudence has resulted from an examination of the skull of Frederick Deeming, a murderer who was executed in 1892 and whose remains have been removed from the Melbourne jail cemetery.

Professor Sir Colin Mackenzie, director of the Australia Institute of Anatomy, declares Deeming's skull is typical of prehistoric man of the most primitive type known to science. The skull revealed striking resemblances to the skull of the anthropoid ape, notably in the opening at the base, which in the modern skull is situated at the centre of the base, but which in Deeming's case is located further back as in the ape's. A cast of the Java skull—pithecanthropus erectus—fits Deeming's skull exactly, and there is the same heavy bony structure of brown and low cubic contents of the brain pan.

Dr. J. W. Springthorpe, whose theory of insanity at Deeming's trial was ruled untenable, now considers that Deeming was incapable of absorbing and retaining moral precepts and was little more than a dangerous animal. In 1891, while in England, Deeming murdered his wife and four children, burying the bodies in the concrete of a cellar. Later in Australia he murdered his second wife, for which he was executed.

BOLIVIAN AIRMEN DOWN.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLOGNE, Jan. 24.—Two Bolivian fliers, Captains Lucio Luizago and Horacio Vasquez, who started today from the Junkers flying field at Dessau on a transatlantic flight to South America via Paris, Africa, the Cape Verde Islands and Fernando Noronha, were forced to land here on account of a dense fog. They will proceed tomorrow to Paris, where their exact route will be definitely decided.

The pilots are using a Junkers plane of the Bremen type, which has been painted in Bolivian colors. The Bolivian Government is financing the enterprise.

final plea to the judge not to give such punishment as would destroy hope, the "last earthly thing a man could have."

Hatry turned with a stifled sob, adjusted his immaculate tie and faced the judge again. But it was a quarter from which came justice but no mercy.

"Your frauds," said the judge in a dry voice, "have been carried out by means of wholesale forgeries of securities in trustee stocks which neither a banker nor a broker nor any member of the public would ever dream of suspecting to be otherwise than genuine.

"I do not think there is much, if any, merit in your confession," the judge added later, "because you knew an investigation was afoot and these forgeries must inevitably be discovered."

Hatry Recalled to Dock.

Twice the judge called Hatry back to the dock to add sentences of five years' imprisonment on a charge of defrauding and of two years' imprisonment for conspiracy, the sentences to run concurrently with the main sentence. Spectators long inured to court procedure thought surely Hatry's iron self-control would weaken under such a long-drawn-out ordeal. But his face was as steely calm when he faced the judge for the third time as it had been ten minutes before.

Only once previously has the maximum sentence of fourteen years been passed on a financier here. This was on Jabez Spencer Balfour, who controlled the Liberator Building Society and allied companies, which failed for £8,360,000. Whitaker Wright, who controlled the London and Globe Finance Corporation, which failed for £5,500,000, received a sentence of seven years' penal servitude and committed suicide immediately after leaving the dock by taking poison which he had concealed in a cigar. Gerard Lee Bevan, who controlled the City Equitable Fire Insurance Company, which failed for £2,000,000, was sentenced to seven years in jail, and Thomas Farrow to four years' penal servitude for the Farrow's Bank fraud.

The maximum term of hard labor Hatry's associates can receive is two years. They will pass the first twenty-eight days breaking stone or making heavy coal sacks and will afterward be put to making post bags and other appliances for government institutions. If a prisoner is certified medically fit during the first two weeks of hard labor, he has to sleep without a mattress.

Following the court revelations regarding Gialdini's part in the forgery, questions are to be asked in Parliament as to whether the government can do anything about the old extradition treaty with Italy which prevents Gialdini from being brought to England to stand trial. The personal liability of the officials of the municipal corporations which lost money through Hatry's forgeries of the City's stocks also is to be questioned.

The severity of Hatry's sentence came as a surprise to the financial quarter of the City, but not much sympathy was expressed there for him. The young city clerk who, by 1919, had become one of the City's foremost negotiators, made fortunes for many. One of his most dazzling moves was the acquisition of the Commercial Bank of London just after the war. Using this as a base, Hatry negotiated fifty deals involving £30,000,000.

Hatry's amazing mansion in Mayfair is to be auctioned on March 6. It is estimated he spent $625,000 on lavish decorations and improvements, but apart from taking early breakfast in his bedroom, it is said he saw little of it until he returned home to bed after spending fourteen hours in his city office.

In the basement of the mansion in a reproduction of an old English bar parlor, with a cobbled brick floor, oaken beams, mullioned windows, a bar and wide brick fireplace. From the wall hangs the sign, "Ye Old Stanhope Arms," with the words "Free House" underneath.

Hatry has two children, a boy in his teens and a girl aged 15.

Wives Absent From Court.

None of the wives of the accused witnessed the final scene at the Old Bailey. Mrs. Hatry, it is said, has not seen her husband since the day following his arrest and she is understood to have removed to a friend's house in the country. They were an inseparable couple, it is said, and Hatry showered gifts on his wife and her jewelry at one time was estimated to be worth $2,500,000.

Mrs. Tabor watched the trial until today. Her third child was born soon after the inquiry began and the home is being closed. Tabor, while on bail, visited her at a relative's in New Forest.

Mrs. Dixon has no children. Her beautiful home at Oakleigh Park has been closed.

Mrs. Daniels, who has a 4-year-old daughter, was just recovering from a severe illness when the crash came and is now an invalid. She made an unavailing appeal to the authorities to allow her to nurse her husband when he was ill in prison.

The cost of trial is estimated at a quarter of a million dollars and it is revealed that Hatry's expenses were about $95,000, paid by a number of his city friends.

BEAUX ARTS BALL A BRILLIANT FETE

COLORFUL PAGEANTS GIVEN

In settings and costumes suggesting the luxuries of the Renaissance, several thousand persons prominent in society and the artistic world thronged the ballroom suite of the Hotel Astor last night for the annual Beaux Arts Ball, given under the auspices of the Society of Beaux Arts Architects of New York to provide scholarships in architecture, painting and sculpture to deserving students.

In the large assemblage were men and women famous as artists and sculptors, as well as members of the worlds of literature, the stage and music. Their presence in gorgeous costumes and the magnificent embellishment of the ballrooms made the event an artistic triumph of the Winter.

In the decoration of its locale, the costumes and its elaborate pageant the ball has been from year to year suggestive of some notable period of French history. It was decided that this year the motif should embrace more than France alone. In choosing the era of the Renaissance the executive committee did not overlook the contributions to art from Italy and Spain. Outstanding incidents in history were relied upon for the pageant, which had been devised by Philip A. Cusachs and Ben Ali Haggin.

Guests Come From Dinners.

The guests began to arrive from dinners after 10 o'clock, and in advance of the pageant that preceded general dancing the parterre boxes and others placed about the ballroom floor were filled. Others strolled through the various rooms of the ballroom suite, enacting the rôles of visitors to the Florentine palace of Lorenzo the Magnificent, which was reproduced in the decorations.

The entire assemblage was in costume similar to the period that embraced the years from 1460-1600. Men in their trunk hose, puffed breeches and plumes, and women in sweeping skirts and trains mingled with others who impersonated envoys of foreign courts, come to pay homage to Lorenzo, with the less gaudy but fancifully attired peasantry, guilds, monks and street types of the period.

A blast of bugles and the rolling of drums at a late hour heralded the approach of the pageant. Then the reinforced orchestra of Michael Markels, conducted by Kenneth Murchison, a member of the Musicians' Union who had arranged the entire score, swung into the strains of the overture "Columbus," by Herman.

Participants in the pageant passed down an aisle through the costumed assemblage and found themselves in "Il Palazzo," which represented the central court of the palace of Lorenzo in Florence.

Dante and Beatrice Portrayed.

The pageant opened with a prologue of Dante meeting the beautiful Beatrice, whom he immortalized. Harry Allan Jacobs took the rôle of the great poet, while Beatrice was portrayed by Mrs. Fisher Whitney. The scene shifted then to a century later to the Hills of Fiesole, where Boccaccio, played by Tony Sarg, was shown telling his story of the Decameron to a group of maidens portrayed by the Misses Dorothy Parker, Marian Dahl, Ruth Lang, Jean Gause, Lucinda Goldsborough, Betty Ewing and Peggy Fish. The story was enacted in pantomime by four characters—the wife, Miss Margaret Zolnay; the maid, Mrs. Harold W. Gould; the lover, Henry F. Bultitude, and the husband, Harold W. Gould.

The next episode depicted republican Florence, with Lorenzo at the height of his power, at a sumptuous banquet. "Il Magnifico" was shown with his guests, the Pazzis, the Ruccelai, Tornabuoni and many others, and noble delegations from Milan, Rimini, Venice and Rome. The honored guests at the "banquet" were:

Reviling this scene of splendor the grim figure of Savonarola appeared, escorted by his Dominican monks. Pedro de Cordoba enacted Savonarola, while the monks were played by Robert Stott, Samuel Moore, Eldridge Snyder, Shepard Vogelgesang and Alexander Morgan. The ribaldry of the feast was changed to depression as the monks built a "fire" to represent the historic Burning of the Vanities.

Next Episode in Music.

The next episode, "Miseraria," exemplified the spirit of the Reformation, introducing a male chorus. The principal parts in the scene were taken by Bruno Huhn, G. A. Weidhaas and William E. At the Court of Spain.

The final scene was one of great beauty, taking the assemblage by means of pageantry, to the Spanish court of Ferdinand and Isabella at Barcelona. The King and Queen of Spain, portrayed respectively by Philip A. Cusachs and Mrs. James H. Snowden, with the members of their court and foreign ambassadors, staged a celebration for Christopher Columbus on his return from his voyage of discovery. Arthur Ware was Columbus. Members of their crews were:

Preston Moore	Sterling Sinclair
John B. McGuire	Leon J. Homan
C. J. Zettergren	Joseph Reyes

Several Indians and maidens, captives from the New World, were brought in. One of them was a thoroughbred American known as Chief Long Lance. Wallace Harrison, Ralph Miller and Denholm McKie were among the other braves, while the copper-skinned maidens were portrayed by Mrs. Ruth Jaffrey, Camille Work, Ellen Compton and Ruth Bussman.

Immediately after the pageant the floor was cleared for dancing and as quickly again filled with dancers who in their brilliant costumes presented a riot of color. Some danced behind the boxes of the mezzanine, in all the ballrooms and on the floor space surrounding the large rooms where a late supper, in reality a breakfast, was served.

Many of the guests remained into daylight hours and on leaving presented a fantastic spectacle to early promenaders in Times Square.

Mr. and Mrs. Snowden's Dance.

After the pageant several hundred of those who had watched the spectacle as well as most of the participants in it, went to the north and east ballrooms of the hotel, which are on the eighth floor, for the supper dance that Mr. and Mrs. James Hastings Snowden gave. There was a decided difference in the scene presented.

The two rooms were arranged to represent a terrace on the French Riviera at dusk. All the guests were placed at tables for supper, which were surrounded by miniature orange trees, palms and flowers of that section of Europe. Amber-colored lights were used to create the effect of twilight and there was a space in the centre of the room for dancing.

Among the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Snowden were:

Mr. and Mrs. Jorge Andre, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Deering, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner H. Brown, Mrs. Boothe Brokaw, Mr. Adrian Iselin 2d, [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Costumes at the Ball.

Some of the costumes worn at the Beaux Arts Ball had been prepared with great attention to detail of the period represented. One of the most gorgeous gowns was that worn by Mrs. James Hastings Snowden, who portrayed Queen Isabella of Spain in the final scene. It was made of orange brocaded satin entirely draped with gold lace. It had a long train of the same lace bordered with sable. The costume was beautifully embroidered with jewels and the Spanish coat of arms displayed on it was embroidered in gold. To complete the effect, Mrs. Snowden wore a gold crown studded with jewels, as well as a high-standing collar.

Mrs. Gordon Hamersley, who represented Catharine of Aragon, Queen of England, wore a gown of red chiffon velvet with elaborately embroidered panels. A simpler, though effective costume was worn by Mrs. Philip G. Gossler. It was that of a French peasant of bright shades of taffeta and velvet and with it was worn an elaborate lace cap. Mrs. J. Winslow Bixby was in the Spanish court scene a replica of the gown shown in the portrait by Velasquez of Marie Therese, the wife of Philip IV.

Mrs. Walter J. Salmon's costume was that of an Italian lady of rank, made of ivory moire satin with voluminous skirts, the full sleeves and bodice studded with jewels. Mrs. Bradford Norman Jr., as Beatrice d'Este wore a gown of pink chiffon velvet, elaborately embroidered with cut steel. A headdress of the period covered with pearls completed the costume.

COMMERCIAL RADIO TO CHICAGO STARTED

NATIONAL SERVICE PLANNED

Backers, Buffalo Group, Ready Now to Extend It to Eleven Cities and Eventually to 110.

A commercial radio service for sending and receiving messages is in operation between this city and Chicago it was learned yesterday at the offices of the Universal Wireless Communication Company, Inc., in the Bush Terminal Building at 130 West Forty-second Street. The company, which has the financial support of a group of men in Buffalo, has received forty high frequency channels from the Federal Radio Commission. It was admitted that the concern will be in competition with established telegraph companies, both as to tariffs and speed of service.

Mechanical equipment is complete, it was said, to extend the service to eleven other cities. Operation between these points awaits the issuance of operating permits. Permits for the construction of apparatus in 110 cities have been received and the company contemplates a nation-wide network.

Backers of the Company.

Among the financial supporters, John W. Henry, president of the company and head of the Vim Cycle Company; John E. Varry, attorney, and Paul E. Fitzpatrick, of the Fitzpatrick Construction Company, all of Buffalo, were named. The executive offices are in the Liberty Bank Building, Buffalo.

M. J. Blanchard is general manager with offices in Chicago, and E. L. Koch of that city is chief engineer in charge of research, design and manufacture of equipment. J. D. Durkee, who was chief radio operator at the radio central of the Navy Department at Washington, D. C., resigned that position to become communications engineer for the company. Another former navy operator, B. J. Shimeall, is in charge of the New York offices.

At present the company is sending ten words to or from Chicago at the rate of fifteen sent by wire, it was said. Fifty messages were sent to Chicago yesterday and replies received with an average of 6 minutes for each, including delivery at both points. A reply to a test message sent from a desk in the company offices to the Chicago central station yesterday was received in 3 minutes.

The transmitting apparatus of the New York Central offices is located at Scobeyville, N. J. They are linked by telegraphic wires. Telephonic wires connect the receiving apparatus at Englewood Cliff, N. J., and the Manhattan offices, where internal routing of messages and transcribing is cut to a minimum by the latest telegraphic equipment such as endless belts, duplex machines, automatic tapes and arrangements for chain typing.

Can Handle 2,000 Messages Daily.

Mr. Durkee estimates that the New York hook-up is capable of handling 2,000 messages a day with present mechanical facilities. This number, he said, could be increased many times without change in the receiving or transmitting stations. Frequencies of 5,900 kilocycles and 5,885 kilocycles are now being used.

The thirteen cities where apparatus is complete besides New York and Chicago are, he said, Akron, Columbus, Dayton and Cincinnati, Ohio; Springfield and Peoria, Ill.; Trenton and New Brunswick, N. J.; Buffalo, Detroit and Milwaukee. Stations are nearly complete in Cleveland, Boston and Memphis, Tenn.

When these stations are put into operation, he said, messages between the East and West will have to be relayed at Chicago. The company hopes, however, to obtain the use of frequencies which will eliminate this.

The forty frequency channels were allocated the company by the Federal Radio Commission in October, 1928. Soon after construction permits for 110 cities were issued, and prior to last July 1 the New York-Chicago operating permit was issued. The company's messages are called "Unigrams."

Hoover Bars Out Parrots to Check Disease; Gets Reports of Fatal Psittacosis Cases

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—An executive order temporarily barring the importation of parrots from any country into the United States was issued by President Hoover late today. Designed to check the spread of psittacosis, or "parrot disease," the order recognizes that there have been a considerable number of cases of the disease recently among human beings, some of them fatal.

The President's executive order read:

RESTRICTING FOR THE TIME BEING THE INTRODUCTION OF PARROTS INTO THE UNITED STATES:

Whereas there has been officially reported in widely separated portions of the United States since the middle of December, 1929, a considerable number of human cases, some of them fatal, of a disease communicated by infected parrots; and

Whereas there is evidence that such parrots have been introduced from ports outside of the Continental United States; and

Whereas there exists danger of further such introduction;

Therefore, in order to prevent the further introduction of disease communicable from parrots to human beings from ports outside of the Continental United States into the United States, by virtue of the authority vested in me by Section 7 of the act of Congress approved Feb. 15, 1893, entitled "An act granting additional quarantine powers and imposing additional duties on the Marine Hospital Service," it is ordered that no parrots may be introduced into the United States or any of its possessions or dependencies from any foreign port for such period of time as may be deemed necessary, except under such conditions as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

COPENHAGEN REPORTS CANCER STUDY AWARD

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 24.—A report that the Rockefeller Institute has decided to award 1,000,000 kronen (about $267,000) to the Carlsberg Foundation here to employ in cancer research has been received in this city with the greatest feeling of thankfulness. According to the report the Carlsberg Foundation is to erect and equip a building for the work, and it is hoped the Danish State will donate a site. It is expected the institute will be ready in eighteen months and will be under the leadership of the well-known Danish cancer specialist, Dr. Albert Fischer, who at present is working in the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute of Berlin.

Negotiations have been authorized by the Rockefeller Foundation preliminary to consideration by the foundation of a gift to the Carlsberg Foundation of Copenhagen, it was said here yesterday at the offices of the organization. These negotiations are in progress, it was said. The gift would be made by the Rockefeller Foundation and n t by the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, as the latter does not include such activities among its functions.

The gift under consideration, according to Mrs. Norma S. Thompson, secretary of the Rockefeller Foundation, would not be for cancer research, but for the establishment by the Carlsberg Foundation of a more general research laboratory. No further details could be given out at present, she said, as the negotiations were still going on, and the gift has not been decided upon.

The Carlsberg Foundation is not confined in its activities to the medical field, but works in the general field of scientific research. None of the European gifts of the Rockefeller Foundation has been specifically for cancer research, Mrs. Thompson said, although some of the funds may have been used for that purpose.

THOMAS OPPOSES A BUS FRANCHISE

Echoes of the last Mayoralty campaign were heard at the Board of Estimate meeting in City Hall yesterday when Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor last November, appeared with former Assemblyman Louis Waldman and a group of residents from the Brownsville district of Brooklyn to oppose the granting of a franchise to the Eastern Parkway, Brownsville and East New York Transit Relief Association, Inc., which they said was controlled by Democratic Leader Hyman Shorenstein of the Twenty-third Assembly District in Brooklyn.

Mr. Waldman opposed the Mayor's proposal to defer action on the franchise application, indicating that he believed the city would grant it at some time when the opposition failed to be present. Objecting to the implication, the Mayor explained that the board did not favor granting franchises for private operation until its bus policy was determined by the Legislature. He said the city would press a comprehensive transit policy at this session of the Legislature, and that it hoped to obtain permission for additional municipal bus lines.

"This particular bus line is financially controlled by Mr. Shorenstein," Mr. Waldman said, "and it has made about 300 per cent profit from its operation under temporary permit in the last four years. It is hardly conceivable that the 'hand-picked' Assemblyman and Alderman from Mr. Shorenstein's district will support the city bus policy if it means taking those juicy profits away from Mr. Shorenstein."

Mayor Walker objected to the words "hand-picked" and called the speaker's attention to the fact that the city fills such offices by direct primary. Mr. Waldman's response was a broad grin and the assertion that the Mayor's reputation for sophistication would not admit of too great faith in the direct primary.

Mr. Thomas exchanged several remarks with the Mayor bearing on the last campaign. He admitted that the Socialists in Brownsville had been unsuccessful in trying to dislodge Mr. Shorenstein, but asked the Mayor not to make that the basis of granting the franchise. Mayor Walker assured him that the franchise would not be given until the city knew the final results of its attemps to get bus legislation.

"Much as we love Hymie, he won't get away with that," the Mayor said. Mr. Thomas said that assurance was all he wanted. The company's temporary permit was extended to April 25, pending the action of the Legislature.

meanor punishable by a prison term of from one to three years.

The prosecutor was specific. He gave not only the address of each resort complained of, but he described its physical appearance as well. He did this, he explained, not because he thought he was communicating any new information to the authorities, but to conform with the law. Under Chapter 173 of the Laws of 1901, he explained, Mayor McFeely has no power to do anything but act. No further evidence is needed against the resorts, he said. Warrants will be issued on the strength of his complaint.

Tells of Drive on Resorts.

Since his appointment as prosecutor of the pleas Mr. Drewen has succeeded in obtaining padlock injunctions against about 250 saloons in Hudson County. Another 200 cases are pending. Raids upon suspected gambling resorts have led to more than 200 arrests. He referred to this activity in his communication to Mayor McFeely.

"Within the last few months," he said, "raids have been made by this office on gambling resorts in your city, each resulting in the taking of many prisoners. It must be plain to you from the flagrant details set forth in the attached schedule with reference to certain of the premises in question that the obvious public assumption must be that the public authorities of your city cannot but be aware of this continued crime.

The raids which I have mentioned were by their very success, the clearest signal to you of the need of vigilance and an open challenge to duty on your part. But notwithstanding all this I am compelled to write you about nothing less than the charge of extensive and notorious gambling. It is not a healthy thing, either for the people or for the police, that the latter should be permitted to have the idea that the enforcement of the law against such resorts comes only within the duty of the prosecutor to act in the capacity of a police official, it means simply that those who are sworn primarily to perform police duties have utterly failed to do so.

"Every policeman is a sworn officer and every neglect of his duty is a criminal nonfeasance. Where such nonfeasance is the order of the day, a prosecutor might far better exert himself in fighting to obtain indictments against police officials than in performing the policeman's work by raiding gambling resorts.

"The receipt of this letter by you provides you with complete power and immunity to root out the crime to which your attention is now officially called. It leaves you without the least color of excuse."

Elsewhere in his letter Mr. Drewen, referring again to the raids by men from his office, asked:

"If I can learn of crime in your city, why can't you?"

In conclusion, he said:

"The law gives you ten days from the receipt of this letter to end completely the criminal enterprises listed in the annexed schedule. Failure to do so within that time makes you a criminal nonfeasant and indictable for misdemeanor."

Lists Alleged Gambling Places.

Fourteenth and Washington Streets, saloon, southwest corner; gambling resort; taking of bets and bookmaking on horse races; this resort is alleged to be operated by one whose similar place was raided by prosecutor's detectives last September at 41 Third Street.

Hudson Street between Newark and First Street; daily, including Sundays, there congregate a number of bookmakers plying in the open their business of taking bets and making book on horse races. They are there singly and in groups on the sidewalks and in doorways.

Fifth and Garden Streets, saloon on northeast corner; one flight up above saloon is a clearing house for the receipt of bets taken on horse races throughout the city of Hoboken.

The complaint was served in the forenoon by Peter Devine, chief detective of the prosecutor's office, in accordance with the law which stipulates that such a document must be delivered by hand. One copy was addressed to Mayor McFeely in his capacity as Mayor and also as director of public affairs. The other was addressed to Mr. Clark as director of public safety.

STATE COMPLETES FIRST PRISON CAMP

FRENCH ADRIAN PLAN USED

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—Seventeen days after the emergency prison bill was passed by the Legislature the first of the cantonments for which it provided was declared to be fully constructed and ready for occupancy today.

It is one of five camps designed to relieve overcrowding in prisons and to give work to convicts, and was erected at Virgil in Cortland County, where the prisoners will be employed on highway improvements. Transfer of 100 convicts from Auburn prison to the new camp is expected within a few days. Auburn is about forty miles northwest of Virgil.

The prisoners selected for the camp will be honor men who have prison records of reliability and trustworthiness. A Winter cantonment is still a matter of experiment in this State, although smaller Summer camps have not been unusual.

In announcing the completion of the camp Governor Roosevelt said:

"I think this represents a new record for the speedy accomplishment of a project of this magnitude, whether it be a private or a government undertaking."

Colonel Frederick S. Greene, Superintendent of Public Works, who is responsible for the swift work, disclosed that he got his idea for the camp building from the Adrian type of barracks used by the French in the World War. In France as an American army engineer Colonel Greene noticed with approval the light wooden material used and easy construction methods.

"When the matter of prison cantonments was raised I got in touch with our War Department and found they had detailed plans of the Adrian barracks," Colonel Greene said. "They very kindly sent them on to us. It calls for a very strong but light construction that is erected in ten-foot sections. The great advantage is that sections can be added or subtracted in little time and with no great trouble. If a few sections are to be removed to some other place, it means only the unbolting of connections. The roofing paper would be torn but that is all that would be lost."

The emergency bill appropriated $355,000 for the cantonments. Prisoners in the camps will get a special kind of warm clothing.

General Electric Pays State $1,110,000 on New Stock

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—The General Electric Company today handed to Edward J. Flynn, Secretary of State, a check for $1,110,000 in connection with the issue of 22,200,000 new shares of stock. This was the largest check ever received by the State Department.

Some months ago the National Carbide Company paid the State $550,000 when it increased its capitalization.

Two attorneys representing the General Electric Company brought the check to the Secretary of State's office. Under the law, corporations increasing their capitalization must pay the State 5 cents a share.

CUSTOMS GUARDS OUSTED.

Three Dismissed in Smuggling Case at French Line Pier.

Three customs guards were dismissed yesterday, by order of the Treasury Department, on a charge of dereliction of duty at the French Line pier at West Fifteenth Street. The men dismissed are John E. Lenz, who has been in the service since 1908; Daniel L. Beston, since 1917, and Edward J. Grogan, since 1927. Lenz is also an announcer at the Yankee Stadium.

The French Line, in cooperating with the government in stopping liquor smuggling from its ships, placed twenty-five Pinkerton detectives on the pier. Several of them made affidavits that on Sept. 24 last, while the De Grasse was in port, Lenz, Beston and Grogan allowed men with bags on their shoulders to leave the pier without inspection.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—No report had been made to Washington today of the dismissal of three customs guards for dereliction of duty at the French Line pier, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman said. He explained such dismissals had probably been made by Philip Elting, Collector of the Port, and that his action would probably not be reported here unless the dismissed guards appealed from the Collector's action.

PERKINS WILLED HIS BODY

Former District Attorney Offered It to Science—Family Shares Property of D. A. Boody.

William M. Bennett, lawyer and former Assemblyman and State Senator, who won the Republican Mayoralty nomination over John Purroy Mitchel in 1917, left a New York estate of only $500, it was disclosed yesterday when his will was filed in Surrogate's Court. His widow, Mary U. Bennett of 171 West College Street, Oberlin, Ohio, is named sole beneficiary and executrix.

Mr. Bennett died on Jan. 16, exactly six years after he made his will, on Jan. 16, 1924.

Frederick Hamisch, counsel for the estate, said it had not yet been ascertained whether Mr. Bennett had left any property outside of New York State.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Bennett is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Townsend Lodge and Miss Elizabeth Bennett, and by a son, William M. Bennett Jr.

Widow Gets C. A. Perkins Estate.

The will of Charles Albert Perkins, District Attorney of New York County during part of the time John Purroy Mitchel was Mayor, and Special Assistant District Attorney in the cases arising out of the City Trust Company, was entered for probate yesterday. The testator, who died on Jan. 16 at Suffern, N. Y., after an illness of six months, left his gold cuff links to his son, Albert Rogers Perkins of 72 Barrow Street, and the rest of his estate of undetermined value to his widow, Miriam N. S. Perkins of Suffern, N. Y.

One clause of the will requests that an autopsy by performed upon Mr. Perkins's body if it be held that the cause of his death was uncertain.

"It is my preference, though I do not prescribe it," he wrote, "that such autopsy be performed by my friends, Dr. Henry S. Patterson, Dr. Henry P. de Forest and Dr. Otto H. Schultze, or by one of them. If it is the opinion of any physician holding such autopsy that any portion of my body should be retained for the advancement of learning or in the interest of science, I bequeath such portion thereof to such physician, and he shall be free to make any use whatsoever of the same as he sees fit.

"I direct that all parts of my body not so retained shall be cremated, though if I die at sea, my body may be buried at sea if that seems desirable, but in no event shall it be interred."

At the offices of Perkins, Malone & Washburn, 36 West Forty-fourth Street, counsel for the estate, it was said last night that the testator's offer of the use of his body for scientific purposes had not been accepted. He died at the age of 60 after his illness forced him to relinquish his duties in the investigation into the failure of the City Trust Company.

L. W. Ketchum Will Aids Charity.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Missionary organizations, the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations of Yonkers and Miss Mary Adams, his housekeeper, are among the principal beneficiaries under the will of Legrand W. Ketchum, retired hat manufacturer of Yonkers, who died on Jan. 14.

His will, filed for probate here today, names the housekeeper as recipient of the largest trust fund under the will and a cash bequest of $5,000. Her trust fund, $25,000 under the original will, is increased to $45,000 by a codicil. Mr. Ketchum was not married.

The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. of Yonkers receive $20,000 each, the Women's Union Missionary Society of America receives $10,000 and the residuary estate is equally divided between the Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed Church in America and Foreign Missions of the same church.

He left $5,000 in trust for Anna Marie Thompson, adopted daughter of Mrs. Eliza Thompson of 21 Prospect Place, Brooklyn. She will receive the principal upon reaching her twenty-eighth year. Trust funds and bequests were left to several relatives and friends. William J. Wallin, Mr. Ketchum's counsel, estimated the value of the estate as "upward of $200,000." The Westchester Trust Company of Yonkers and Arthur B. Waring, a cousin, are named executors.

Family Shares D. A. Boody Property.

The will of David A. Boody, former Mayor of the old city of Brooklyn, who died Monday, was filed in the Surrogate's Court in Brooklyn yesterday disposing of his entire estate to members of his family. The value of the estate was not disclosed by attorneys.

Mr. Boody left no real estate. His will was accompanied by two codicils, one of which revoked a legacy to a nephew, and the other referred to a debt of one of his sons.

The will divided the estate into five equal parts. One was given to Mrs. Maude B. Carey, a daughter, of 39 Plaza Street, Brooklyn, and another to Edgar Boody, a son, of Englewood, N. J. They each inherited one-half of the personal effects. Another share was bequeathed to Alvin Boody, a son, who lives in Australia, in trust for life, and a fourth was placed in trust for a granddaughter, Miss Constance Boody, of 525 Park Avenue, Manhattan. Three children and the wife of a deceased son share the other part. They are Irving R. Boody, Mrs. Mildred B. Walser and Mrs. Abbie Hatcher, grandchildren, who share equally in one-tenth, and Mrs. Gertrude R. Boody of 115 Henderson Avenue, New Brighton, S. I., who inherits one-tenth.

66 HELD FOR CONTEMPT.

Strikers Are Accused of Violating Picketing Injunction.

Sixty-six striking members of the Independent Shoe Workers' Union of Greater New York were arrested yesterday by Brooklyn police who enforced an injunction restraining members of that union from picketing or congregating within three blocks of the Septum shoe factory at 33 Marcy Avenue, and the Bressler shoe factory at 104 South Fourth Street. The sixty-six strikers found in that area were arrested by policemen under Captain Louis Better of the Bedford Avenue Station. They were arraigned in Bridge Plaza Court charged with contempt of court.

Several of the prisoners at first refused the parole granted by Magistrate Jacob Eilperin for examination on Monday and insisted on going to jail. They later changed their minds and were released.

By W. A. WARN.

instead of the bill box of the Senate and Assembly.

That Speaker McGinnies lent his name to the plan in the first place is said to have been largely the result of pressure brought by other Republican leaders including State Chairman Maier. He also received numerous letters urging the inquiry.

The final straw that led him to overrule his consistent aversion to "scandal" investigations is supposed to have been the outburst made by Mr. Macy against the State leadership and his demand for an action on the inquiry. To take the wind out of the Suffolk County leaders' sails and to head off a possible split in the party ranks on this issue Mr. McGinnies agreed to make the joint announcement with Senator Knight.

Later, however, when the Republican plan had been criticized as being partisan and particularly when it appeared that New York City Republican leaders found the proposed method of investigation wholly unacceptable, Speaker McGinnies resumed his old attitude of caution.

Complaints of one character or another, it was learned today, have been received at the executive chamber from practically every city in the State. Many derelictions, it was stated, had also been revealed through the periodical examinations of municipal accounts that the State Controller is required by law to make.

The Governor and the Controller, it is being recalled here, between them have ample powers to set in motion machinery for a widespread investigation of municipal administrations up-State that would bring considerable annoyance to the Republicans, who politically control a majority of the up-State cities.

TRIED ALL KINDS OF LAXATIVES

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Gave Only Permanent Relief

As everybody knows, the market is flooded with cathartics, pills and patent compounds for the relief of constipation. At best, whatever results are obtained are temporary. Besides, there is the danger in certain drugs and the habit-forming menace.

Mr. P. M. Fisher, 517 Olive Street, Scranton, Pa., has something to say on this subject which will be interesting to all constipation sufferers. He says:

"For many years I suffered from constipation and used, for relief, all kinds of laxatives. After a few days' treatment, I would only find my condition the same as before and at times worse.

"Some time ago I started to use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly, once a day as directed. Since that time, I have found that I do not need any other medicine to procure the desired result, and it keeps me in a very healthful condition."

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation or the purchase price will be refunded.

In addition, it adds needed iron to the diet. You will like its delicious flavor. There are many delightful ways to eat it. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

JOHNSON HALTS LENHART

Scores Knockout in Seventh Round of Semi-Final—Ad Warren Outpoints Buck Weaver.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

The air at Madison Square Garden last night was rent with raucous "vivas" as Primo Carnera, huge Venetian, knocked out Big Boy Peterson, Minneapolis giant, in the first round of what was scheduled as the ten-round feature bout and provoked one of the noisiest demonstrations ever heard in the Garden.

Carnera, the behemoth of the ring, thus made good in his first American ring engagement before a vast throng of 20,000 frenzied fight fans. The actual paid attendance was 17,896 and the net receipts $60,141.

Carnera finished Peterson in exactly 1 minute 10 seconds of rousing action. The action all came from Primo, for, after he let one weak left jab to the face as the starting gong released the boxers from their respective corners, Peterson was too busy portraying the dying gladiator on the ring canvas to be much interested in fighting on his own account.

He was knocked down four times before finally being counted out. Under the ponderous, [illegible] of Carnera, Peterson went down for a count of three, another of eight, another of four and then on the fourth trip he went down for ten and out. And the crowd, much of it composed of those rabid Italian followers of sport idols, went simply wild.

Carnera's Admirers Go Wild.

The action and the finish provoked delirium among Carnera's enthusiastic admirers in the gallery and the mezzanine. Then smiles of enjoyment were visible among the close observers who delighted in the spectacle of the colossus that Carnera is carrying his 269½ pounds and 6 feet 6 inches of stature so lightly about the ring, charging joyously, recklessly and nimbly and bludgeoning his blows rapidly.

Peterson showed no inclination to fight. He dropped under a grazing left hook for a count of three to give the crowd its first thrill soon after the opening gong. Arising, Peterson trumpled soon afterward under a short right uppercut to the jaw, and did not regain his feet again until eight seconds had been tolled over him.

Then Carnera swung a mighty left which caught Peterson in the face and the Minnesotan, pushed bodily across the ring, squatted down for four seconds. Coming erect, Peterson poked his jaw in the way of a prodigious right-hand drive and he went down on all fours, to be counted out punching himself on the jaw with his right, but whether to make certain he was knocked out or in an effort to restore his jarred senses could not be ascertained.

Absence of Betting Noted.

Chairman James A. Farley of the State Athletic Commission, viewing the battle from his front row ringside seat, was not altogether satisfied with the contest, but, at the same time, said he saw no basis for an official investigation. Disquieting rumors which preceded the battle and an absence of any betting on the outcome caused some skepticism.

But, on the result, it can not be denied Carnera has some promise as a fighter. Not alone does his tremendous size recommend him, but he was remarkably fast last night and fought with a reckless abandon which foreshadows an advance beyond the average when and if Carnera gets some more schooling. This he needs, of course. Until the Venetian shows against a more formidable foe, however, it is wise to withhold judgment.

At 269½ pounds, Carnera had an advantage of 60½ pounds in weight over Peterson, who weighed 209 pounds. The difference in size between the two was negligible, for Carnera, instead of standing 6 feet 8½ inches as had been stated before he was officially measured yesterday, stood just 6 feet 6 inches, two inches taller than Peterson.

Fifteenth Knockout for Johnson.

The ten-round semi-final ended in the seventh session when Larry Johnson, Chicago's hard-hitting heavyweight, knocked out Fred Lenhart, Spokane lad, with a series of crushing rights to the jaw, face and head. It was Johnson's fifteenth knockout and stamped the Chicagoan more than ever as something of a ring menace.

He floored Lenhart three times in the fifth session, and, before putting over the finishing blow in the seventh, floored the Spokane lad again. The final wallop, a right, flush to the face which deposited Lenhart in a neutral corner, came after the seventh round had gone two minutes, five seconds.

Johnson weighed 177 pounds, Lenhart 177¼.

Ad Warren, Chapel Hill, N. C., heavyweight, spoiled the local début of Buck Weaver, willowy young heavyweight from Medicine Lodge, Kan., in the first of the ten-round events, plodding against the Kansas novice successfully enough to win the decision after ten rounds of wild gestures and grim grimaces.

In the opening bout scheduled for four rounds Tommy De Stanfano won a foul from Abe Lipschitz in 1:59 of the third round. De Stanfano weighed 180¼ pounds, Lipschitz, 189½.

RICE WINS TITLE THIRD YEAR IN ROW

MATCH ENDS AT 17TH GREEN

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 4.—For the third year in succession Grantland Rice of New York is the champion linksman of the Artists and Writers' Golf Association. In the eighteen-hole final on the Country Club course today Rice made it three in a row by defeating Jefferson Machamer of New York by 2 up and 1 to play in a match that ended on the seventeenth green.

Ray McCarthy of New York triumphed in the final of the second flight, defeating H. T. Webster of Stamford, Conn., by one up, the match being decided on the last green. Charles D. Williams was forced to the thirty-sixth and final hole to score over Charles Miller in the third flight.

There was a three-cornered tie for the low net prize of a round trip to Paris in the thirty-six-hole medal play handicap. The qualifying scores of Monday were used for the first eighteen-hole tally, while the remaining eighteen were played today.

Those in the deadlock, who will play off tomorrow, are Charles McAdam, E. Merrill Benjamin and Maurice Collette. Each had a net of 146, their handicaps being doubled for the double round.

Wins Free Trip to Chinatown.

Rice and Machamer, the finalists for the championship, failed to return cards for the second eighteen holes in this competition. Rube Goldberg assured himself of a free round trip to New York's Chinatown with his qualifying score of 73 67—140 for 18 holes.

Rice, who won the qualifying medal, established his winning margin against Machamer on the first nine holes. The defending champion was carried to the seventeenth green by his opponent, who lost his chance to prolong matters by dubbing an eight-foot putt.

Machamer put up a courageous fight. At one stage he was four down, but rallied to take three holes in succession. Rice went out in 39 and stood 2 up at the turn by taking the second, sixth, seventh and eighth holes, while Machamer, with a 41, managed to win the fourth and ninth.

Machamer Stages Rally.

Rice raised his margin by bagging the eleventh and twelfth. The next was halved. Trailing by four holes, with only five left to play, Machamer staged a rally and won the next three holes in succession. On the fifteenth Machamer approached within two feet of the cup and Rice missed a short putt for a half. On the sixteenth, Machamer chipped from thirty yards away to the lip of the cup for a par 3. Rice won the seventeenth with a 3 to Machamer's 4 for the victory.

Dartmouth Ex-Captain Denies Yale Bowl Is a "Jinx"; Better Elevens Won, He Adds

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 24.—Robert McPhail, Dartmouth football captain two years ago, asserted in The Yale Daily News today that there is no basis for the fallacy that Dartmouth teams are bound to lose their games in the Yale Bowl. Giving Yale credit for winning the contests played there, he called the Blue the better team. He said:

"The general impression has been that the Green has brought to the Yale Bowl year after year a powerful, well-lubricated machine, only to have it stall when it meets a Blue organization which is less efficient. It is my humple opinion that as long as Dartmouth plays Harvard on one Saturday and Yale the next they will probably not look as good against the Blue as against the Crimson.

"Perhaps this idea may account somewhat for Yale's occasional Boy Scout expedition against Harvard, having worn themselves out against Princeton the week before. That razor-blade edge has a bad habit of getting dull after it reaches its sharpest point, no matter how much you sharpen it.

"It is true that in 1926 Dartmouth was favored to beat Yale by substantial odds. Also in 1927 they were favorites and the betting choice and last Fall again the odds were in favor of the Hanover team.

"My retort to all this palaver is that they shouldn't have been estimated favorites at all."

YATES IS WINNER IN LAKE WORTH GOLF

VICTOR TIES COURSE RECORD

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 24.—America scored over Canada in an international match today when Arthur (Ducky) Yates of Rochester, N. Y., won the thirty-six-hole final of the nineteenth annual Lake Worth tournament from Gordon Taylor Jr. of Toronto by 2 up and 1 to play. Yates was materially assisted to his victory by reeling off a 69 in the morning round, equaling the course record set by the club professional, Flattery, a few days ago.

The real action of the match was jammed into the first half of eighteen holes. The ponderous Yates, who hits one of the longest balls of any player in this country, established a margin of 3 up on the first nine, despite a fair 37. Coming back, he reeled off the nine holes in a sensational 32, yet was able to increase his advantage by only one hole, as Taylor himself chipped in with a par 34.

After halving the first four holes, Yates went to the fore by winning the fifth, seventh and ninth. Returning, he took eleven putts on the nine greens, but took only the thirteenth and seventeenth, while his opponent bagged the eighteenth for his only winning hole on this round. Taylor took three putts on two greens, and he was erratic with his irons on the first nine. They halved the tenth and eleventh in birdie 3s.

MRS. LAKE DEFEATED IN FINAL FOR TITLE

PUTTING AIDS THE VICTOR

EDGEWATER PARK, Miss., Jan. 24 (AP).—Mrs. Melvin Jones, Chicago's veteran of the links, today shot thirty-two holes of deadly sub-par golf to win the Pan-American women's amateur championship from Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, New Orleans, tournament medalist and title defender, by a score of 5 and 4.

Mrs. Lake, who broke the Edgewater Gulf Hotel course record with her medal score of 77 in the qualifying round and won her way to the final by beating her opponents easily, could not overcome the long, low driving and remarkable putting that gave Mrs. Jones an early lead.

Mrs. Jones was 2 up after the first nine holes of the morning round and increased her lead to six holes at the noon stop.

Mrs. Lake picked up two holes on the outward route of the afternoon round, but coming in they halved the tenth with par 5s; Mrs. Jones took the eleventh with a birdie 4, lost the twelfth to a birdie 5, and took the thirteenth with a birdie 2. They halved the fourteenth and it was Mrs. Jones's tournament.

A large gallery followed the match. The two women have been meeting in tournaments for the past three years and Mrs. Jones today avenged a number of previous defeats by Mrs. Lake, chief among which were the finals of the Southern two years ago and of the Pan-American last year, and the first round of the National last year.

Mrs. Lake, winner of the Pan-American in 1929, devoted her honeymoon to the defense of her title. She expects to leave shortly to reside in New York, where she will play under the banner of the Old Country Club of Flushing, L. I.

HALSELL CAPTURES BELLEAIR GOLF FINAL

Special to The New York Times.

BELLEAIR, Fla., Jan. 24.—Playing a steady brand of golf, Hugh Halsell, metropolitan senior champion, today won the Belleair January championship, defeating Henry J. Topping of the Greenwich Country Club 2 and 1, in the final.

Despite several poor tee shots early in the match, the 68-year-old veteran who has held the national senior championship three times, made remarkable recoveries to either win or halve holes. Aided by two strokes, Halsell managed to reach the turn with a 2-up lead on Topping.

The Greenwich player made a determined bid in the closing holes of the match, twice reducing Halsell's lead to a single hole, but the veteran put an abrupt end to hostilities when he curled a twenty-foot putt into the cup on the seventeenth green for a birdie 3.

Going to the fourteenth green 2 down, Topping pushed a brassie shot under the low-hanging leaves of a palm tree. Halsell was just short of the green and seemed to have the hole won. In a half-crouched position, Topping chipped from beneath the palm, the ball hitting the cup and stopping less than a foot from the hole. Halsell overran the cup and lost the hole, but regained his faded advantage when Topping, getting off the last of a long series of poor tee shots, missed the short fifteenth green to lose the hole.

ALEKHINE EXTENDS LEAD TO 2 POINTS

SAN REMO, Italy, Jan. 24.—Decisive results marked the play in the seventh round of the international chess masters tournament contested at the Municipal Casino today. Seven of the games were won outright and only one was drawn.

Dr. Alexander Alekhine of France again was a winner and now leads the field by a margin of two full points. Playing white, the world's champion had Kmoch of Austria for an opponent in a queen's gambit declined. Forceful tactics on the part of the Franco-Russian master enabled him to win the exchange.

Kmoch, in working out a defense against the champion's energetic onslaught, consumed much time, with the result that, when he made his thirty-eighth move, it was found that he had overstepped the time limit. The game consequently was forfeited, although the Austrian might have continued to resist indefinitely. The consensus was that in the long run Dr. Alekhine must have won the game.

Spielmann in Draw.

Dr. Tartakower of France was held to a draw by Spielmann of Austria in a queen's pawn opening lasting thirty-one moves. The loss of this half point by Dr. Tartakower resulted in his being tied for second place by Nimzowitsch of Denmark and Rubinstein of Poland, who defeated Bogoljubow of Germany and Grau of Argentina, respectively.

Nimzowitsch, on the black side of a queen's pawn opening, outwitted Bogoljubow in the middle game and, thanks to brilliant strategy, scored a well-earned victory in thirty-five moves. Rubinstein outplayed Grau completely in a queen's pawn opening and, after first capturing a pawn, won a piece and the game in thirty-five moves.

Maroczy of Hungary lost his second game to Ahues of Germany, who, in charge of the white pieces in a queen's gambit declined, won a pawn and subsequently the game in forty-four moves. Dr. Vidmar of Yugoslavia defeated Romi of Italy after winning a piece in a queen's pawn opening after thirty-eight moves.

Yates Also Triumphs.

Yates of England also annexed a pawn in a queen's gambit declined with Araiza of Mexico and scored in thirty-eight moves. A queen's pawn opening between Colle of Belgium and Monticelli of Italy resulted in favor of Colle, who won a piece in thirty-three moves.

Tutti Frutti Breaks One-Mile Track Record in Defeating Herrick at Miami

TRACK RECORD SET BY TUTTI FRUTTI

HERRICK, FAVORITE, SECOND

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 24.—Tutti Frutti, the Chilean horse which cut such a swath here last year only to fall off in racing at Bowie and at other tracks, came back in the public favor with emphasis today when he won the Everglades purse and set a new track record for the mile.

Running on top from start to finish, Enrique Gutierrez's son of Salpicon and Damasca was timed in 1:38 2-5, a full second faster than the mark established by Sterling Silver in 1929.

Tutti Frutti was held at 5 to 2 and beat Herrick, the 2-to-1 favorite, by half a length in a thrilling stretch drive which saw the veteran Eddie Barnes put up a fine ride to score with the whip in a driving finish. Four lengths further back came Boris and then followed Fairy Maiden, Sun Meddler, Dail and Our Pal in the order named.

The winner carried 115 pounds, as much as any other horse in the race, and six pounds more than borne by Sterling Silver last year.

What trainer Frank Bray will do with Tutti Frutti remains to be seen, but it seems very likely that he will be kept in training throughout the coming Spring and Summer, as he has had a long rest from competition.

He was hurt in his race at Bowie and was laid up from April last year until he came out for a tune-up test here last week. He showed plenty of courage when put under the whip to hold off Herrick's challenge, and it again seems that Gutierrez has a horse which may cause some trouble for the good ones in the handicap division.

John P. Grier came into additional prominence last year when Boojum won so sensationally, but one of his early and much more obscure sons came down in front in the fifth test when M. M. Horch's Sixty beat eleven others.

Now a gelding, Sixty carried 116 pounds behind the pace set by Reputation and then in the stretch came on to win by half a length from Maiden's Tryst, with Reputation a length further back. The time was 1:12 4-5 for the six furlongs.

INDOOR POLOISTS WILL PLAY TONIGHT

N. Y. A. C. Midwinter Event in 101st Cavalry Armory Will Open Season's Tourneys.

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

Play opens tonight in the first of the season's tournaments of indoor polo. This is the annual midwinter tournament of the New York Athletic Club. The game tonight is in the high goal division of play and brings together the Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club and the Riding Club in the ring of the 101st Cavalry in Brooklyn.

Play in the metropolitan circuit championship continues at Squadron A Armory in Manhattan, where Pennsylvania Military College meets the Army Freebooters, composed of officers from Fort Hamilton and Governors Island. This metropolitan circuit play carries through the season up to the national championships. The New York A. C. event is an annual tournament which is held by the club.

The dates for this year's N. Y. A. C. tournament are today, Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. Except for tonight's game all matches are to be played in the ring of the 105th Field Artillery in the Bronx, home ring of the New York A. C. players.

There are to be high and low goal divisions of play again this year, with five teams competing in the high goal division, the largest number in the four years of the tournament's history. In addition to the teams playing tonight in Brooklyn, the New York Athletic Club, Peter Pan and Governors Island are also entered in the high goal division. Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club won the title last year.

The low-goal division includes Ridgewood, the winner last year; Squadron A, Ex-Members Association, Squadron A; Long Island Polo Club, 104th Field Artillery, Seventh Regiment, New York Athletic Club, the Riding Club, Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club and Governors Island.

ROLLING ROCK HUNT WINS PACK HONORS

THIRTY CLUBS REPRESENTED

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Rolling Rock Hunt, Richard K. Mellon, master, and Frank Smith, huntsman, carried off the open pack honors at the annual Riding Club Hound Show, held yesterday in the riding ring of the clubhouse, 7 West Sixty-sixth Street. This pack of English foxhounds, very level and under splendid control, was adjudged the winner over four others which had won the pack honors in their respective breeds in the most colorful numbers of the day's program.

Following the judging of the regular classes the rings were dismantled and the arena cleared of all save the judges and officials, and all five packs were brought into the ring at once. It was a picturesque scene, and the spectators crowding the balconies applauded enthusiastically as the English foxhounds were awarded the handsome Meadow Brook Cup, representative of victory in this event, which called for five couples of hounds in each pack. Control was a large factor in the award, manners counting 20 per cent.

The show was the largest and most successful yet held by the Riding Club, which gives the exhibition each year jointly with the Masters of Foxhounds Association. The riding hall was elaborately decorated, and from the time the judging started in the morning until the final pack was judged the balconies were filled and the rings crowded by hunting folk from all the hunting sections of the East.

Finest Hounds on the List.

Thirty hunts were represented by their finest hounds, including English, Welsh, American and cross-bred foxhounds and beagles. A. Henry Higginson of South Lincoln, Mass., judged the English and Welsh hounds; the American hounds were passed upon by Daniel C. Sands of Middleburg, Va., while the cross-breeds were handled by James Boyd of Southern Pines, N. C. George Post of New York judged the beagles.

The show had the largest representation of the hardy Welsh foxhounds ever seen on this side, and the breed was the more interesting from the fact that included were two hounds sent over especially for this exhibition by David Davies, the noted Welsh sportsman and breeder. These two, Furrier and Ringwood, have been famous winners both in Wales and England.

Furrier never has been beaten, and he added to his victories yesterday by winning the class for single dog hounds whelped prior to Jan. 1, 1928, going on to take the Welsh Hound Association of Wales's Perpetual Challenge Cup, for the best Welsh foxhound in the show.

Captures Challenge Cup.

The Fairfield and Westchester Hounds' Challenge Cup for the best couple of American foxhounds was won by the Southdown Hunt, last year's winner, with Southdown Farmer and Southdown Flinter.

The L. P. Yandell Memorial Challenge Plate for the best American stallion hound this year was captured by the Millbrook Hunt's Millbrook Ring.

SCOTT-PAINE VIEWS MOTOR BOAT SHOW

PLANS FOR RACES HERE

Is Building Single-Engined Craft for Harmsworth Series—34,000 Attend the Exhibit.

By VERNON VAN NESS.

Hubert Scott-Paine, head of the British Power Boat Company of Southampton, England, who designed Sir Henry Segrave's Miss England I, which beat Gar Wood's boat at Miami last year but failed to lift the Harmsworth Trophy at Detroit later, yesterday disclosed some of his plans for the construction by him of a boat to try for the coveted international cup.

Mr. Scott-Paine again visited the motor boat show in Grand Central Palace and made a long inspection of American-built boats, declaring that he saw much advance in the finish and construction of American cruisers, but so far had observed no advances in hull construction.

Mr. Scott-Paine will be a contestant, along with Sir Henry and, it also is expected, Miss Marion B. Carstairs of England, in an effort to take back the Harmsworth Trophy, now held by Wood, providing the boat he has planned stands up under tests.

His boat, he says, will be single-engined and will contain three radical departures in construction. Just what these were he would not disclose. But he said that they were so radical that some might consider them ridiculous. He was reluctant to say what speed he hoped to develop, save that it would be better than 100 miles per hour.

To Race on Continent First.

Mr. Scott-Paine explained that he didn't want to design and construct a boat for the Harmsworth races merely to represent England and enter without having a chance of winning. On the contrary, he said, he would race his boat on the Continent and that if it stood up he would bring it here.

Incidentally, he said he wished to correct the impression that he was credited with giving that the British Government was to loan Sir Henry two of its powerful Schneider Cup Rolls-Royce engines for Miss England II, which Sir Henry will bring here for the Harmsworth races. He explained that the statement attributed to him in this regard was wrong, for as a matter of fact the motors now are available on the open market. They were taken from the British secret list following the Schneider Cup races.

The boat which Mr. Scott-Paine contemplates building at his shipyard at Southampton will be of lighter construction than even Miss England I was, he said, thus giving the only real hint of the boat's construction other, of course, than to say that it will be a hydroplane. Miss England I had a hull bottom three-eighths of an inch thick, sides one-quarter inch and a deck three thirty-seconds of an inch. Mr. Scott-Paine's boat will be built lighter than this.

He showed pictures of an older racer which he built and later remodeled, which made a complete turn in two and one-half seconds at full speed. He would not say so, but racing experts at the show predicted that this would mark his Harmsworth boat this year and would account for one of the three radical departures he mentioned.

Is Veteran in Racing.

Mr. Scott-Paine has been interested in motor-boat racing since 1910. He took part in the Schneider Cup air races in 1919 and successfully defended the challenge of the Italian team in 1923. He will drive his own boat if he enters it in the Harmsworth series. The boat will be named Miss Britain. It also is possible that he will build a boat to compete in the international class for boats of 3.35-cubic-inch piston displacement, which is being planned in conjunction with the Harmsworth races at Detroit, Aug. 29 to Sept. 1. There are understood to be ten Americans and two Canadians ready to build boats for this race, and Mr. Scott-Paine said that he would take under consideration the building and racing of a boat in this event.

The next to the last day at the Motor Boat Show brought out a crowd of 34,300, bringing the total attendance to date for the seven days to 221,400. Total sales reported so far are estimated at $4,860,000. The show will close tonight, and it is predicted that record sales for the show will be recorded.

The National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers held its annual meeting in the Grand Central Palace during show time, and in addition to electing five new members to the executive committee sanctioned and approved two motor-boat shows. The sanction and approval was made for the Chicago National Boat Show, which will be held at the Navy Pier, Chicago, May 25 to April 3. Approval was made of the Los Angeles Motor Boat Show at the Ambassadors Auditorium, Los Angeles, March 8 to 15.

The new members elected to the executive committee were Harry H. Barutigan, Bridgeport, Conn.; Charles A. Criqui, Buffalo; George Codrington, Cleveland; Warren Ripple, Waukegan, Ill., and Henry R. Sutphen, New York City. They are to serve until 1932.

MERCUR BEATS HALL IN CANADIAN EVENT

LOTT DEFEATS BOWMAN

Third and Sixth Ranking Players in United States Meet Today for Dominion Crown.

MONTREAL, Jan. 24 (Canadian Press).—The third and sixth ranking players in the United States, George Lott of Chicago and Frederic Mercur of Bethlehem, Pa., will meet tomorrow afternoon in the final round of the Canadian indoor singles tennis championships. Both advanced to the final today in convincing style. Mercur gave a magnificent display when he defeated J. Gilbert Hall, defending champion, in straight sets. It took just under an hour to decide the match, the score being 6—3, 6—2, 9—7.

Showing remarkable control, perfect confidence and an extraordinary ability to retrieve almost impossible shots, the Bethlehem player returned Hall's terrific drives and smashes with the utmost ease, forcing his opponent in turn into constant errors. As the match wore on, it was Hall who wilted instead of Mercur, and it was only with the greatest of effort that the champion rallied to even matters at 5—5 in the last set and hold on grimly for another six games.

Bowman Loses to Lott.

Lott advanced by eliminating Herbert L. Bowman of New York, champion of Bermuda, 0—6, 6—3, 6—2, 6—4. Bowman started in at a hard pace, while Lott seemed to be just missing all his shots. But the Chicago player came into his own in the second and subsequent sets and from then on he toyed with Bowman. Mixing chops and drives with rare skill, Lott dominated the play and broke up Bowman's base-line driving game.

The only surprise of the day occurred in the morning when two veteran Montrealers, D. P. Hatch and J. W. Brown, upset Lott and his young partner, James Sheldon of New York, in the quarter-final of the doubles. The score was 6—2, 6—1. In the afternoon in the semi-finals the Montrealers had less luck, however, succumbing to Emmett Pare of Dayton, Ohio, and Clifford Marsh of Buffalo, 9—7, 6—2, 6—2.

Mercur-Hall Win in Doubles.

BRITISH TEAMS GAIN TITLE RACQUETS FINAL

Kemp-Welch and Cambridge Defeat Cassills and Huband—Lord Aberdare and Latham Win.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.—English players will take the courts for the doubles final in the Canadian amateur racquets championship tournament at the Montreal Club, P. W. Kemp-Welch and L. D. Cambridge defeating A. S. Cassills and G. D. Huband of Montreal in three straight games today. The score was 17—16, 15—9, 15—7.

The first game was stubbornly contested and the Canadian players forced matters to the utmost, but the terrific pace told on them in subsequent sets, and while they fought splendidly to break through for victory, they were forced to bow before the superior skill of the Britishers.

Lord Aberdare and H. W. Latham defeated F. C. Dobell and S. H. Dobell, the Montreal pair, 15—6, 16—17, 15—3, 15-6, in the other semi-final.

Cassils, champion last year and hope of the Montreal Club, was eliminated in the singles by Cambridge, 15—11, 15—11, 15—9.

HAINES TOPS O'CONNOR IN NEW JERSEY SQUASH

Crushes Rival by Score of 15-6, 15-5—Wolf Also Gains Semi-Finals, Defeating Stokes.

Rowland Haines of the Columbia University Club, national amateur squash tennis champion, who was forced to come from behind at 2—11 in the fifth game after losing the first two chapters to defeat B. H. O'Connor of the Crescent A. C. in the final of the Clyde Martin Memorial tourney at the Yale Club last Saturday, gained a crushing victory over the same player last night in the New Jersey championship.

Playing again on the Yale courts, the national titleholder simply smothered his opponent, 15—6, 15—5. The match hardly lasted twenty minutes, with Haines setting a devastating pace all the way.

With this victory Haines took his place in the semi-finals and this afternoon will meet Edward R. Larigan on the courts of the Short Hills Club. Larigan came within a point of beating him in the Yale tourney last week.

Harry Wolf of the New York A. C., who carried Haines to five games in the Yale tournament, gained his place in the semi-finals at the expense of W. W. Stokes Jr. of the Yale Club, winning at 15—2, 15—10. He will meet R. Mason Kirkland, also of the New York A. C., in the other semi-final at Short Hills today. The final will be held at the same club tomorrow.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

THEY laughed when the distinguished Italian diplomat crossed the drawing room and said to him in courtly tones: "Vogliamo essere sinceri? I risultati degli incontri internazionali disputati dalle squadre italiane in occasione delle feste natalizie e del primo d'anno, in casa e fuori, non solo tali da procurarci la gioia più schietta."

Behind his back they were snickering. Some one whispered in his ear: "The answer is 'O solo mio.'" Another urged him to bow and mutter: "Allegretto, ma non troppo." A third wickedly mentioned spaghetti. He looked around. Their enjoyment of his embarrassment was overwhelming.

Casting a glance of disdain at them and bowing low to the distinguished diplomat, he said with faultless accent and apparent ease: "La costumanza de allestire dei matches internazionali durante le feste di fine d'anno o di Pasqua, così come quella dei viaggi dei nostri calciatori all'estero, non è nuova."

They were astonished. They were amazed. They crowded around him and clapped him on the shoulder. They asked him how many years he had spent in Italy.

"Italy?" said he, with a condescending smile, "Why, I never even visited Mulberry Street. The answer is simple. I learned Italian in one lesson. All I needed was a copy of La Gazzetta Dello Sport and an Everlast Boxing Guide. Of course, I continued my homework and improved. But the first lesson showed me how easy it was. Here it is, if you care to learn Italian yourself."

The Evidence in the Case.

He drew a pink newspaper clipping from his pocket and it was handed around. The headline read: "I Campioni Ufficiali d'Inghilterra." Underneath that the story continued:

"Londra—Il Boxing Board of Control ha pubblicato la lista dei campioni di Gran Bretagna. La lista è la se seguente:

They were still puzzled, though glances of suspicion were passing from one to another. Pulling a Boxing Guide from the inside pocket of his faultless evening coat, he went on:

"Simple, my dear children. Notice the words 'Boxing Board of Control' and 'Phil Scott.' They attracted my eye and gave me a start. All knowledge is a progression from the known to the unknown. Here is a list of some kind involving 'campioni' and Phil Scott is there after the words 'pesi massimi.' What is Phil Scott? According to the infallible Boxing Guide he is heavyweight champion of Great Britain. Evidently this is a list of the British boxing champions. The Boxing Guide proves it. Thus in two minutes, at practically no expense, we learned the Italian for flyweight, bantamweight, featherweight and so on. The other words translate themselves easily. You are off to a tremendous start. The rest is up to yourself."

Italian as She Is Spoke.

So that's how it's done. It seems simple. It is simple. Pesi mosca means flyweight because Jackie Brown is flyweight champion of Great Britain. 'Pesi welters.' No need to translate that. Massimi means massive; hence heavyweight. Bring on something harder.

Here's another brief clipping from La Gazzetta Dello Sport under the attractive headline: "Kid Francis Vince Geo Mack per K. O." Italian, in the immortal words of Henry James, is a lead pipe cinch. At one glance an ordinary United States citizen could understand that sentence in an entirely foreign language, to wit: "Kid Francis beats George Mack by K. O." O. K.?

The story, just a few lines, goes on to say that in a "riunione pugilistica, Kid Francis, peso gallo, ha battuto l'americano Geo Mack per k.o. alla seconda ripresa." That adds a few more words to the growing vocabulary. "Seconda ripresa." Evidently, second round. A "riunione pugilistica" is a boxing program.

Il Golf, Giuoco Per Tutti.

Here is a lengthy and dignified article that caught the eye chiefly because the headline involved one word easily understood, golf, and the concluding paragraph contained the names of Gene Sarazen, Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen. So it must be about golf. That's a good start.

"Il golf, giuoco per tutti." Golf, a game for everybody. (If that's wrong, sue the fellow who had the Boxing Guide.) Continuing the adventure:

Ahem! All Gaul is divided into three parts, of which ——. Beg pardon. On a second reading, it seems to me that golf has been taken up in Italy in a serious way only in recent years. The remainder of the first paragraph appears to deal with very uninteresting matters. It will be passed over for the time being.

Further down a paragraph begins: "Al golf non si diventa esperti in un giorno." You can't become an expert at golf in one day. The translation may be wrong but the statement is correct. If the Italians have learned that much about golf, they have made progress.

Wandering in the Rough.

"E' un giuoco semplicissimo." Is that so? Just wait until the writer of that statement has wrestled with it for ten years or so. "Semplicissimo!" That isn't what he will be calling it.

"Il 'driver' che serve per i colpi lunghi." This clause is picked out because it has one word on which it is impossible to go wrong. So the driver is used for long strokes, is it? Not always, Signor, alas!

"Questo sport ben merita la popolarità acquistata in tutti il mondo, e presto avremo anche noi i nostri Gene Sarazen, Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, ed il nostro St. Andrews!"

Taking a long breath for a high dive and relying on the Boxing Guide as a handbook of modern languages: Such a sport well merits the popularity it has reached all over the world, and soon we hope to have our own Gene Sarazen, Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, and our own St. Andrews.

If this interpretive effort is mystifying in spots and mistaken in others, it should be remembered that golf is a very difficult game to explain, even in English.

FIVE ROBINS SIGN, 3 OF THEM VETERANS

Bissonette, Wright and Flowers Accept Terms Along With Reis and Richardson.

By JOHN DREBINGER.

The internal affairs of the Robins may still be severely jumbled, but this seemingly is not interfering at all with the routine business of the flock, which at the moment consists of collecting signed contracts. Broadcasting from the frozen reaches of Flatbush yesterday, Secretary John Gorman announced that five Robins have already come into the fold for 1930. They are Del Bissonette, Glenn Wright, Jake Flowers, Jim Richardson and Bob Reis.

The first three named in this group are to be numbered among the club's most distinguished convalescents. Bissonette is still in St. Mary's Hospital recovering from operations. The slugging first sacker is reported to be gaining strength rapidly and is expected to be discharged from the hospital by the end of the month, when he plans to go to Dazzy Vance's camp in Homosassa, Fla., where he will rest before reporting at Clearwater.

Vance, it might be added, already is resting at Homosassa, but not so much for the coming training season as for what promises to be a spirited salary controversy with the warring Brooklyn directors. It has been variously reported that Vance, who did not have a highly successful season last year, has been asked to take a trifle less than the $25,000 he drew for last season, and those familiar with the business acumen of the speedball star already profess to know his answer. At all events, Vance is not yet among those signed.

Wright is still as much of an enigma as he was the day he reported to Clearwater last Spring, fresh from the Pirates with an injured ligament in his shoulder which kept him out of action practically the entire year.

Flowers, who also was incapacitated most of last season, accompanied his contract with a note assuring Secretary Gorman that he expected to report at Clearwater next month with an excellent appetite.

The other two signers are recruits. Richardson was bought from New Haven in 1928 and was farmed out to Macon last season. He is a right-handed pitcher. Reis is a third baseman who was purchased from Rocky Mount.

Two more recruits also entered the Giant fold yesterday, Secretary Jim Tierney announcing that he had received the signed contracts of Ray Fitzgerald, outfielder bought from Springfield, and Lou Allen, Wilkes-Barre second baseman.

NEW ZEALAND MAKES 339 IN FIRST INNINGS

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Jan. 24 (Canadian Press Cable).—Starting off with a record opening partnership, New Zealand, which made a poor showing in the first international cricket match against England, was in a strong position at the end of the opening day's play in the second test. They had scored 339 runs for the loss of only three wickets today.

Mills and Dempster put on 276 for the first wicket, which is the best stand in the annals of New Zealand first class cricket. Mills, who ultimately scored 117, and Dempster, who made 136, gave a fine display on an excellent wicket and made the English bowling look very cheap.

It was not until the veteran Woolley was put into bowl that England began to make headway. He was responsible for the dismissal of all three New Zealand batsmen today. Mills batted in attractive fashion for four hours and twenty minutes, getting most of his big hits on hooks. He made thirteen fours. Dempster played more vigorously than his partner, though his boundaries only numbered eight.

The scores:

Illinois Star Captures Midwinter Handicap at Pinehurst—Also Wins High Over-All.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 24.—Mark Arie of Champaign, Ill., former Olympic champion and national high average man, continued his blazing performance at the traps today to take the feature event of the twenty-third annual mid-Winter target tournament, the mid-Winter handicap. The Illinois marksman, shooting from the limit mark of 25 yards, outshot a brilliant field by breaking 94 out of 100 targets. Arie added to his laurels by taking the high over-all at the 16-yard range in tallying 582 targets out of 600 thrown. C. L. Hagaman of Lakewood, N. J., was second with 580.

AMBULANCE PARLEY URGED FOR MONDAY

Dr. Greeff Suggests Conference With Brooklyn Hospitals on New City Plan.

BUT REPLY IS DELAYED

Secretary of Committee Points Out Boards of Institutions Have Not Yet Endorsed Project.

Although Dr. J. G. William Greeff, Commissioner of the Department of Hospitals, has written to the ambulance committee of the Hospital Council of Brooklyn suggesting next Monday as the date for a conference on the Brooklyn ambulance situation, it was still uncertain last night whether the committee would accept the invitation.

Sheldon L. Butler, secretary of the committee, said yesterday that he had received Dr. Greeff's letter, but that, as the various hospital boards had not yet endorsed the plan by which the city proposes to operate ambulances from the hospitals, he would prefer to communicate with other members of the ambulance committee before replying to the Commissioner's letter.

"At a previous conference the plan whereby the city proposed to take over the management of all ambulances now maintained by private hospitals in Brooklyn and operate them from those hospitals was agreed upon in principle," said Mr. Butler. "At a subsequent meeting of the ambulance committee members agreed to recommend to their respective boards acceptance of the plan.

"This recommendation was being made, members of the ambulance committee understood, contingent on the satisfactory working out of details along lines suggested by the hospital representatives in a letter sent Dr. Greeff Jan. 7.

"In this letter it was suggested that, where the hospitals so desired, ambulances in the city service should be approved by a neutral commission for purchase by the city. Ambulances should be under the direct and exclusive control of the Commissioner of the Department of Hospitals, it was suggested, and hospitals should supply garage facilities free to the city, all supplies and equipment for mechanical operation of city ambulances being supplied by the city.

"It was suggested that hospitals provide interne service and also medical and surgical supplies for all ambulances operated from their station or hospitals, and that they should receive all patients brought by city ambulances as city cases subject to the rules and regulations of the city governing such cases.

"It was asked that the city insure for the benefit of the hospitals or provide in the contract that it would hold the hospitals harmless for any suit brought and recovered for personal injury or property damage. The hospitals would provide living quarters for the chauffeur, it was suggested. Meals for the chauffeur would be provided at the minimum rate.

"All city employes assigned to hospitals for ambulance service should be amenable to the rules and regulations of deportment and discipline in common application regarding the general control of employes of the hospital to which the ambulance station would be attached, it was suggested."

Mr. Butler said these were the terms on which the ambulance committee had based its recommendation.

Since the meeting of the ambulance committee at which it was decided to recommend approval of the plan, several hospitals have held board meetings. The Methodist Episcopal Hospital was the only one which took official action, however. Its board of governors voted to await information about Dr. Greeff's plan with regard to acquisition by the city of present ambulance equipment and the feeding and housing of chauffeurs.

INDIAN HOME RULE OPPOSED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 25.—An immediate grant of anything approaching home rule for India is ruled out in an authoritative forecast of the Simon Commission's report published in The Daily Express today.

The article says a majority consisting of Sir John Simon, Colonel Lane-Fox, Vernon Hartshorn and Major Attlee favor a grant of dominion status, but only by slow and gradual stages. A minority of the members, consisting of Lord Burnham, Lord Strathcona and the Hon. E. C. G. Cadogan, it is stated, contend that as certain Indian politicians have proved themselves incapable of carrying out the concessions already given, they should be withdrawn and a state of single British rule restored wherever Indian cooperation has been withheld.

The Indianization of the army cannot be effected, in the opinion of the commission, for at least thirty-five years.

A kind of actors' Odyssey of the Yiddish stage was presented last night by Maurice Schwartz's troupe at the Yiddish Art Theatre in a play called "Roaming Stars," a dramatization by Mr. Schwartz of the novel of the same name by Sholom Aleichem. In the ten of the eighteen scenes the reviewer was able to stay for, the play failed to warm to the romantic glow it sought to attain, remaining a succession of insufficiently fused fragments which were only intermittently effective in themselves. The wittiness of phrase and warm understanding of folk character which Sholom Aleichem excelled in was not very much in evidence, and in the sentimentality which took its place—with lights suddenly going soft and the organ streaming out its elegiac vox humana as the great stage stars tearfully remind themselves of home in Holoneshti and mother—he loses stature, as many another humorist when he tries to fathom what he thinks is the real soul.

Sholom Aleichem was at his best when he said that in New York "man lebt nischt, man rottevet sich"—"one doesn't live; one rescues oneself"; or when he dealt with homespun characters in their everyday affairs. There is little of such matter in "Roaming Stars" to recall his handiwork.

The play concerns a pair of sweethearts in a Bessarabian village who run off with a troupe of strolling actors but are separated at the start, not to meet again until they are both famous, in New York, when they redeem the pledge of their youth—although they have come perilously close to binding their affections elsewhere. They renew their pledge in the lion house of the Bronx Zoo. The scene shifts from Holoneshti to Lemberg to London to New York, sketching the hardships of the actors' lives as a class, for the stage was anathema to orthodox Jewry, and of these particular actors torn from their parents and sweethearts. If the episodes remain detached and the emotion of love is too simply drawn by mere repetition, the play does come to life at times from the skill of the actors.

Maurice Schwartz, always somewhat inclined to the mock heroic, has a rôle here which becomes him well. Mark Schweid does well with his down-at-the-heels stage manager, and Joseph Greenberg carries off two rôles with an ingratiating reticence not too common on the Yiddish stage. Bina Abramowitz is as good as ever in her familiar part of the same common-sense mother who has nothing but scorn for anything out of the beaten track. It is unfair to omit many of the others who make the most of their none-too-grateful parts.

It is difficult to forge into a unity a work which is inherently fragmentary, but perhaps with further performance "Roaming Stars" may be mellowed into a fairly agreeable, though not exciting, evening in the theatre.

SEEK WAYS TO AID YIDDISH THEATRES

AUDIENCES DRIFTING AWAY

Immigration Curb Is Blamed—Actors' Pay Averages $60 a Week, Stage Carpenters $105.

After vigorous and protracted debate on "the crisis in the Yiddish Theatre," the members of the Hebrew Actors' Union designated last evening a committee of six, headed by Reuben Guskin, manager of the union, to confer with the managers of the ten Yiddish theatres concerning the proposal of the managers that wages be reduced 30 per cent. The meeting was held at the union headquarters, 31 East Seventh Street.

The committee of six, to be known as the readjustment committee, will discuss the situation with the managers to seek cooperation between the union and the theatres in a general move to economize.

In outlining his program, Mr. Guskin declared that the Yiddish theatres, using full page and half page advertisements to attract audiences, spent sums for advertising out of proportion to their incomes. He expressed the desire to help the managers as much as possible, but before the actors would make sacrifices they would insist on having a voice in certain phases of the management to end mismanagement and economic loss.

According to Mr. Guskin, the actors would propose to the managers to discuss the question of cutting down the personnel "out front," advertising and the lowered price of tickets for benefits which, he said, considerably lessened the income of the Yiddish theatres. He pointed out that audiences were drifting to the Broadway motion-picture theatres and ways must be found to attract them to the Yiddish theatre. He also said that too many free passes were issued.

Criticism of conditions in the Yiddish theatres was voiced in the presence of a group of managers specially invited to the meeting. They were Jacob Kalich, Joseph Rumshinsky, Max Gabel, Nathan Goldberg and S. Auerbach.

Among the speakers were Jacob Wechsler, Meyer Schwartz, M. Shorr and Sigmund Weintraub. Some of the speakers asserted that while the actors, with the exception of stars, averaged about $60 a week, the stage carpenters on duty three hours an evening received $105 a week.

That the Yiddish theatres, with an approximate income of $100,000 a week, should be in desperate straits was a situation that required the cooperative effort of all factors in the theatre, it was said. The restriction of immigration was blamed primarily for the lack of support of the Yiddish theatre.

Since the Yiddish managers have not formed an association, the committee appointed yesterday will visit the managers singly to discuss the union's program and report back to the union at a future meeting.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

Gregor Piatigorsky Plays.

Gregor Piatigorsky, the distinguished 'cellist, who made his début in New York at a concert of the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra in December, gave his first recital in this city last night in Carnegie Hall. The results only served to intensify the impression made by Mr. Piatigorsky at his earlier appearance here. The test of the 'cello as a solo instrument is more severe when the 'cello is accompanied and set off by the tone of the symphonic orchestra. Last night Mr. Piatigorsky confronted a large audience, favorably disposed by his earlier success but none the less exacting and discriminating. He gained the hearty and unqualified endorsement of this audience. He accomplished something else: he showed that the 'cello is by no means a negligible quantity as a solo instrument.

This is not the popular opinion of the violoncello. The average 'cello recital is a bore. The 'cellists who find recital audiences and pursue their profession as virtuosos, either as a result of the most exceptional achievements or private means or teaching, are few. Mr. Piatigorsky belongs by right to this choice circle. He is an admirable technician, in the sense that his technic is exceptionally supple, a vehicle for his musical thought, and completely fused with it. Physical limitations have not power to embarrass him as an interpreter; rather the technic heightens the power and color of the musical expression. Mr. Piatigorsky has a warm and sonorous tone in singing passages, and a fine variety of color. He can sing a melody with a superb breadth and resonance; he can ornament with fioratura as delicate as lacework. Virtuosity is only employed by him with an expressive end in view.

The first part of Mr. Piatigorski's program consisted of the Frescobaldi Toccata, Beethoven's Variations on a theme of Handel, and Boccherini's sonata in A major, works played with a fine taste and sense of style. The second part consisted in Bach's unaccompanied 'cello suite in C major. Mr. Piatigorski proved himself the master of this great music, meeting its every demand, fascinating his audience by the earnestness and depth of his interpretation. Bach's line was treated in masterly fashion by him, and the unaccompanied tone of his instrument had a variety of light and shade and color which made the music as absorbing and compensatory as any that the literature of the 'cello can offer. Best of all, the music was not treated by Mr. Piatigorski with a distant respect and awe for its difficulties and traditions. It was discoursed as by one who sits himself down in a circle of friends and plays to them without formality or trepidation a fascinating composition. Needless to say, Bach conceived his music in such a spirit. By his performance of the C major suite alone Mr. Piatigorsky would have gone far to win his reputation.

The remainder of the program announced the "Prayer" of Bloch, Mainardi's "Italian Rhapsody," played for the first time in New York, and other pieces by Faure, Sgambati, Glazounoff and Moszkowski. A well-informed audience appreciated Mr. Piatigorsky's art and showed its pleasure.

LEADING MUSICIANS OF AMERICA PICKED

The names of the "twenty leading American musicians" selected by vote of the National Federation of Music Clubs were made public yesterday. MUSICALE AT BILTMORE.

Anna Fitziu and John Charles Thomas Warmly Welcomed.

Anna Fitziu and John Charles Thomas returned to the local stage at the Biltmore's morning musicale yesterday, welcomed by one of the most enthusiastic audiences since these hotel concerts were started in 1915. Nicolai Orloff, the Russian pianist, playing popular "little classics" of Chopin, Schubert-Liszt and Strauss-Schultz Evler, was called back for a lion's share of encores.

Miss Fitziu was recalled after two groups of songs that included Burleigh's "All God's Children," Cimara's "Snowflakes" and Valverde's "Clavelitos." Mr. Thomas sang an air from Massenet's "Roi de Lahore," songs by James Rogers, Pearl Curran and Mana Zucca, adding "Old Man River" and, with Miss Fitziu, a "Don Giovanni" duet.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Stradivarius Quartet played for the People's Symphony Auxiliary last evening at Washington Irving High School, where a large audience welcomed the artists in chamber quartets of Haydn, Mozart and Brahms.

Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson give a two-piano recital at Columbia University this evening, playing Bach's E-flat sonata, Brahms's Hungarian dance in G minor and a novelty, "Hardanger," by Arnold Bax.

Irving Koreman and the Concord Music School will give a free concert tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Morris High School at 166th Street and Boston Road.

Ruth Shaffner, soprano, will be an assisting soloist at Dr. C. Sanford Terry's lecture on Bach's vocal music next Tuesday evening before the Bach Cantata Club.

Giacomo Lauri-Volpi will sing his season's farewell in "La Gioconda," at the Metropolitan on Monday night. He sails next Friday on the Roma, to appear at Milan in the Scala Theatre's revival of "William Tell."

GALLI-CURCI SINGS OPERA FAREWELL

HAILED AT CURTAIN'S RISE

Mme. Galli-Curci, who is leaving for two years' concert tour of the world, sang her farewell at the Metropolitan last evening to a packed house, recalling the prima donna's local début at the Lexington more than a dozen years ago. The riots of 1916 in Chicago and 1918 in New York, when she first sang and conquered, were naturally not repeated. But for four years as visitor here and for the last nine seasons as a member of the company on Broadway, she had maintained her hold on this public against all changes of musical fashion and operatic personnel.

It recalled Galli-Curci's earlier years to see the curb vendors last night selling odd seats at a premium not often reached this Winter. Crowds at the opera doors, standees solidly lining the brass rails, reinforced a sold-out subscription. The opera was "The Barber," sung for a century in New York. A house on the qui vive for enjoyment applauded Rossini's classic comedy overture. It gave an ovation to De Luca as Figaro and Tokatyan as Almaviva in the opening "Factotum" air and serenade in the colorful streets of Seville.

At the next rise of the curtain, on Dr. Bartolo's house, the music halted while admirers discovered Galli-Curci and gave her a momentary personal greeting. She sang the "Una Voce" amid breathless silence, quickly followed by more applause. While the high notes were managed with evident care, there was the familiar lace-like delicacy of phrase, the musical intelligence, the spirit of fun, that in ensuing episodes made the singer part and parcel of Beaumarchais's madcap escapades.

Galli-Curci in the music lesson sang her début air from "Dinorah" and the old-time interpolation of Bishop's "Home, Sweet Home." Her audience hung upon the fragile notes till the melody died and her hands left the piano keyboard. Then, as at the remaining curtain calls, the house gave Galli-Curci the spontaneous tribute that few artists in a generation enjoy.

Besides Messrs. Tokatyan and De Luca, the assisting cast included Miss Wakefield, Messrs. Malatesta, Pinza and Gandolfi, with Mr. Bellezza at the baton. It was said to be Mme. Galli-Curci's 126th appearance in opera here and her last at the Metropolitan, from which she retires by her own wish, to return in concerts and occasional opera here and elsewhere.

There were flowers presented before the curtain when the merry opera ended at 11 o'clock. Backstage, also, many of the artists sent greetings and souvenirs. Among her companions last night, indeed, it was Mr. De Luca who had sung at her original début in 1910 at the Costanzi in Rome, in an opera long forgotten today, Bizet's "Don Procopio."

Carrying an armful of American beauties, and standing between baskets of tiger-lilies from fellow-artists and of lilacs and Spring flowers from the opera management, Galli-Curci waved a kerchief and blew kisses of good-bye while the audience stood shouting for ten minutes and the stars clapped their hands. Then she signaled she would speak.

"I am very sorry to leave this company, these dear artists, this kind management," she said. "But my concert tours are always more crowded and I must go. I hope to see you all again at my concerts."

Mme. Jeritza Sings at Benefit.

Mme. Jeritza sang for the ninth time in Puccini's "Girl of the Golden West" at yesterday's Metropolitan matinee, for the annual benefit of Flower Hospital. Including the opera's two performances afield, this last repetition was a top record in the current repertory. It earned a profit of about $4,500 for the work of the hospital.

Giuseppe Danise for the first time here sang the Sheriff's rôle, with which he has been associated abroad. Mr. Martinelli again gave a virile characterization of the horsethief, Ramerrez, alias "Mr. Johnson," once sung in his absence recently by Edward Johnson, a near-namesake of the stage hero. Mr. Bellezza conducted the turbulent Polka bar and redwood lynching ensembles.

SUNDAY RECITALS DELAYED

Two Dance Programs Postponed Because of Complaint.

Because of the "anticipated objection of the Sabbath Day committee" dance recitals scheduled for Sunday evening by Margaret Severn at Hampden's Theatre and by Mary Elizabeth Gleason at the Little Theatre have been postponed, according to a statement issued yesterday in Miss Gleason's name. Powell Crichton, a lawyer representing the Sabbath Day committee, said last night that his complaint, which last week caused summonses to be issued at three Sunday dance programs, "probably has remained in force for this Sunday." The performances moved against were those of Miss Severn, Paul Haakon and Harald Kreutzberg and Yvonne Georgi.

Miss Gleason will give her postponed performance on Tuesday and Miss Severn at a date not yet decided. Whether Kreutzberg and Georgi, who have been scheduled for a Sunday appearance, will change their performance date is uncertain.

CLEARS THE MOVIES OF INCITING CRIME

FAVORS A "FREE" SCREEN

Dr. F. D. Tyson Tells National Board of Review Better Films Will Come When Audiences Change.

A denial that motion pictures incite either children or adults to crime in any considerable degree was made yesterday by Dr. Joseph J. Holmes of the Department of Psychology at Columbia University, at the annual conference of the National Board of Review at the Hotel Roosevelt. More than 100 members attended.

Dr. Holmes said that the relative harmlessness of motion pictures in this field had been established by a comprehensive survey he had made. He expresed a hope for the maintenance of a "free" motion picture screen in keeping with democratic institutions. An effectual regulatory lever could be applied, he felt, through intelligent selection of film entertainment by community groups, rather than through legal censorship.

Dr. Louis I. Harris, former health commissioner and a member of the executive committee of the Board of Review, said that those controlling the production of films would profit intellectually if they got rid of all forms of parasitism and czardom. He said that the motion-picture industry had not been expressive of the ideals and wishes of the people who are socially minded.

Dr. Francis D. Tyson, Professor of Economics at the University of Pittsburgh, said that "if the content of the motion picture is to change and the constructive program of the National Board of Review for the selection and support of superior films makes headway against the great obstacles of self-interest and apathy, it is obvious that the motion picture audience must change."

"A markedly increased demand for better films must reach the industry before it can be expected to hazard many unprofitable productions," he continued.

"If we are realistic about the movie, we must frankly recognize that its main influence is related to its main function, that of entertainment, and not to its special uses as an educational tool. The motion picture was developed as a business enterprise to furnish recreation or relaxation to the masses, and artistic achievement has been merely an incidental by-product of the pursuit of its main purpose."

Lee F. Hanmer of the Russell Sage Foundation condemned the apathy of the public in its consideration of the films which he called one of the most important recreational and social forces of the day.

Other speakers included Dr. Walter W. Pettit of the New York Social School; Edward Fay, motion picture exhibitor of Providence, R. I., and Leroy E. Bowman, Professor of Sociology at Columbia University, who presided at the afternoon session. There was a round-table discussion during the afternoon.

At the evening session, held at Roosevelt House, 28 East Twentieth Street, Sophie Kerr, author, told the members of the board that they must "get busy" and make their work effective if they wanted to avoid a Federal censorship of motion pictures, for there were many objectionable features in some current pictures which might lead "snooping moralists" to demand such a censorship. Gilbert Seldes, critic, Dr. William H. Dudley of the Yale Chronicles of America Photoplays, and Mrs. Douglas Robinson also spoke, and a film of Theodore Roosevelt was shown.

CHARLES CHAPLIN DENIES.

Charles Chaplin yesterday denied that he contemplated making a talking picture version of the play "Josef Suss," as was reported in yesterday's TIMES. The report came from Arthur W. Kelly, vice president of the United Artists and Mr. Chaplin's personal representative in the East, who explained that he had received a telegram from Mr. Chaplin asking to have the manuscript of the play, "Josef Suss," forwarded to him. Mr. Kelly said then that it was probable that Mr. Chaplin intended to make an audible film version of the stage drama, appearing himself in the title rôle. Mr. Kelly furthermore explained that Mr. Chaplin would never have his little tramp character freed from the screen, but that he would be willing to play an entirely different character in a talking picture.

"Mr. Chaplin respectfully wishes to state that he has not seen the play "Josef Suss" and has not read the manuscript, and neither does he intend to make a talking piiture. He is at present making a silent picture, entitled "City Lights," which he will complete as such, and neither has he planned any talking picture for the future. Mr. Chaplin will appreciate your denying that he will make a talking picture, as he is deeply engrossed in his work in "City Lights" and has already spent more than $1,000,000, reflecting what he believes to be his greatest contribution to the screen."

TO PLAY JENNY LIND ROLE.

Special to The New York Times.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 24.—The first appearance of Grace Moore, singer of the Metropolitan Opera Company, in the talkies will be in a story based on the life of Jenny Lind, she said here this afternoon on her arrival from New York.

She was met at the station by her brother, Martin, and the two left immediately by motor for Jellico, where Miss Moore was maid of honor at the marriage of her sister, Miss Emily Moore, to Thomas Lee Mahan of Cattanooga. At the ceremony she sang "I Love You Truly," and "at Dawning."

She will go to California early in March to begin work on her first talkie, she said. Her second picture probably will be "The Merry Widow," with Lawrence Tibbett, also of the Metropolitan.

The try-outs and the signing of the contract delayed her trip to Knoxville until the very day of her sister's wedding, she said. She will also have to cut short her visit home on account of the new undertaking.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

A Barrie Playlet.

SEVEN DAYS' LEAVE, with Gary Cooper, Beryl Mercer, Daisy Belmore, Nora Cecil, Tempe Piggott, Arthur Hoyt and Arthur Metcalfe, based on Sir James M. Barrie's playlet, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," directed by Richard Wallace; "Tip Toppers," devised and staged by Louis W. McDermott, with Harry Richman, Norton and Haley, Harry and Grace Dixon, the Stanley Twins, Helen Nase and others; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Crawford, organist. At the Paramount Theatre.

Here is a picture that is a picture. No golden-haired girl adorns the cast and most of the action is interpreted by Miss Mercer and Mr. Cooper, and wherever they go, while Private Dowey, now of the Canadian Black Watch, is on leave in London, is intensely interesting.

Richard Wallace, who brought to the screen a year ago that clever silent film, "The Shopworn Angel," directed this offering. He shares the credit for this worthy adaptation of Sir James's work with Miss Mercer and Mr. Cooper, and while he is the guiding spirit of the film, there's no denying that he is fortunate in having these two players. Miss Mercer's performance is faultless. It is an achievement of the audible screen. She wins one's heart by her restrained and natural acting. She arouses smiles by Mrs. Dowey's guileless speech and by her timidity as she casts an eye on the brawny fighter, who towers above her.

And there is no failing to find with Mr. Cooper's impersonation, for, as in his other films, he lends a lifelike quality to the rôle. Physically, he is just the man for Private Dowey. The crispness of his speech also helps.

Mr. Wallace has endowed his scenes with effective suggestions of London. The charwomen are typical of their kind, especially one who adorns her head with a quartered cricket cap and who winks to herself as she uses her pocket bottle of "mother's ruin." The intonation of the others rings true. In fact only winkles are lacking in these scenes—winkles being picked out of their shells with a pin! Failing this delicacy of Blighty's east end, Mr. Wallace compromises by permitting the goddesses of the pail and scrubbing brush to consume watercress with their bread and butter and tea.

Whatever may be said concerning the intelligence of audiences, the throng yesterday afternoon at the Paramount laughed and applauded several of the incidents in this "Seven Days Leave," and an episode that elicited both tears and smiles was when the great, big Scot took his adopted mother to the dancing floor of the Imperial restaurant. Another excellent touch is where the two are at the theatre, chuckling and laughing at the acts. And still another incident that clicked was the drinking of champagne by Private Dowey and the charwoman.

John Farrow and Dan Totheroh are credited with the adaptation, and they have done a capital piece of work in blending the Barrie lines with scenes that were left to the imagination in the play.

As may be recalled, the narrative tells of a charwoman who finds she is the only one of four female friends who has no son on the fighting front. She sees a mention in a newspaper of a Private K. Dowey, and as her own name is Dowey, she decides not only to pretend that she is receiving letters from a son at the front, but she further complicates matters by sending cakes to Private Dowey with a letter signed "Lady Dolly Kanister," a name she selects from society gossip.

By a fortuitous circumstance the Rev. Mr. Willings one day decides that he has found Sarah Ann Dowey's soldier son on leave in London and he escorts Private Dowey to the woman he believes to be the tall fighter's mother. Private Dowey wishes to give his correspondent a piece of his mind and he does so. The letters she had boasted of as beginning "Dearest Mother" are nothing but blank paper, and then Dowey through a glimpse of a cake finds out that it was not Lady Dolly Kanister who had taken an interest in him, but merely Sarah Ann Dowey. A cup of tea and a piece of bread and butter, followed by a lump of cake, make Dowey more complacent. Mrs. Dowey calls him Kenneth and looks away. The roaring lion becomes amenable, aye, sympathetic, and he thinks of taking Sarah Ann Dowey to dinner. But what would she look like? Quick as a flash Mrs. Dowey produces her "merino gown laced up the back and the very latest."

After the theatre, supper with wine, a dance; thoughts of desertion and a scuffle with sailors. Dowey makes caustic comments on soldiering and Mrs. Dowey voices her keen disappointment in him. Eventually she succeeds in causing him to abandon the idea of deserting and the big Scot goes back to war. He had told his adopted mother that he was a farmer in Canada and in the trenches one hears him asking another soldier how he could learn to become a farmer. Then comes the call for volunteers to silence two enemy machine guns and Private Dowey meets a valorous end.

Dowey's medals are sent by the War Office to Mrs. Dowey and in the last scenes of the film she is going over the decorations and souvenirs of Dowey's seven days' leave. The time comes for her to go to work and once again Mrs. Dowey is perceived with the three other charwomen, pails and brooms in their hands, going forth to their sixpence an hour jobs.

More Children of Divorce.

Although "Their Own Desire," a talking picture now at the Capitol, leaps from comedy into extravagant melodrama and the director cuts corners, it is a film with excellent photography and competent acting. It is a feature with both pleasing and annoying incidents, a tale that goes on for a while in a promising fashion and then becomes more than slightly absurd.

Everything is merry and bright in the beginning, with Lally Marlett acted by Norma Shearer, and her father playing polo. They are devoted to each other. Mrs. Marlett is sympathetic, but suddenly, a Mrs. Cheever bursts into the scene and without sufficient reason she ensnares Marlett.

Lally, played charmingly by Norma Shearer, is obviously a bright girl, but nevertheless her parents are able to keep her in the dark concerning a forthcoming divorce suit. One day Lally is told by her mother to go to her father's study and bid him good-bye. She does so and Marlett, who is a novelist, is discovered by his daughter embracing Mrs. Cheever.

Following the Marlett divorce and Marlett's marriage of Mrs. Cheever, the story then turns to Lally's meeting of young Cheever. For a whole day he does not know that her name is Marlett and neither is she aware that his name is Cheever. So soon as they do learn each others identity, Lally is at first impelled to keep away from this young man.

Jack Cheever is an exasperating person, who reminds one of William Haines's characters. He is a persistent pursuer of the girl he is supposed to love and one would imagine that Lally would rebuff him at their first encounter.

The tale jogs on with tiffs and misunderstandings that are topped off by a storm which turns an inland lake into a veritable ocean. The suspense is wrought in a carpenter-like fashion, with action chopped off here and sawed off there.

Lally and Jack are presumed to be drowned and possibly those who had never seen a motion picture would take this for granted and leave their seats. But it would never do for an attractive girl such as Miss Shearer to perish in any film, and so, after much fuss and hunting for the young people in an airplane, they are found on an island.

Miss Shearer's spontaneity and pleasing diction are worthy of a more plausible chronicle than that of this current film. Lewis Stone does well by the part of Marlett; he can't help being discovered in a comprising situation devised by the director. Belle Bennett is sympathetic as Mrs. Marlett, and Robert Montgomery at least reveals that he has ability in the rôle of the irrepressible Jack Cheever.

Germany's First Talking Film.

BECAUSE I LOVED YOU, with Mady Christians, Walter Jankuhn, Hans Stuwe, Marion Conradi, Carl Platen, Sophie Pagay, Trude Berliner, Fritz Alberti, Hans Mierendorff, Jaro Furth, Hans Sternberg, Hermann Picha and Andre Pilot, written by Walter Reisch, directed by Rudolf Walther-Fein; "Grand Operetta," marionettes; "When the Cat Is Away," a Disney cartoon. At the Mansfield Theatre.

Under the auspices of the American General Film Company there was presented last night at the Mansfield Theatre the first German talking picture. It is called "Because I Love You," its German title being "Dich hab' ich geliebt." It is far from a satisfactory example of audible film, but at the same time it is one that possesses imagination in its direction despite its lengthy digressions from the actual narrative. The tonal quality of the voices is subdued, sometimes almost throttled, but now and again the tones are pleasingly natural. Many of the incidents are unfurled in pantomime, the probable excuse being that they could not be heard over the orchestra. And in quite a number of the sequences the orchestra follows the characters in an odd fashion.

The picture runs along for fully two reels without a spoken word being heard. There is singing, the rendering of the theme song, "Dich hab' ich geliebt," and the first spoken word to reach America from a German motion picture is: "Donnerwetter!"

This is uttered by Mady Christians, the attractive German actress who was born in this country. She impersonates the heroine, Ingle Lund, who, as a prima donna in an operetta, has an affair with her leading man after her successful performance. It happens on the eve of her marriage to Dr. Hubert Baumgart.

The chronicle, all in German, is none too original, but some of the dramatic incidents are nicely developed and they are singularly well acted by Fraulein Christians. This results in an intriguing quality which holds one's attention. It is presumed, and rightly, too, that no tragedy will occur, in spite of the German predilection for such endings.

One of the outstanding chapters is the supper sequence after the first night of the operetta. Managers, critics and friends are at the table and Inge Lund imbibes a little too freely of the wine. Fraulein Christians is excellent in portraying Inge Lund's inebriation. She seems to be longing for a breath of fresh air. She puffs up the hair over her forehead and then relaxes when on her way to her apartment with Otto Radney, the operetta's leading man.

Aside from the periods of digression, there are scenes with chorus girls that are so prolonged that they become quite tedious. But so long as Miss Christians is on the screen there is interest in her fine shades of expression.

Rudolf Walther-Fein directed this subject and, among other notions, he shows an excellent idea of lighting, presenting rooms in a grayish gloom until the electric illumination is switched on.

Walter Jankuhn is somewhat too heavy for his part, that of Otto Radney, but he has a pleasing singing voice. Hans Stüwe is natural as Dr. Baumgart. Other players in minor rôles do commendable work.

This feature is prefaced by a British one-reel marionette sound picture, known as "Grand Opera," which created a good deal of amusement. The Disney cartoon, "When the Cat is Away," is a subject that affords no little fun.

Jewish Theatrical Guild to Meet.

The Jewish Theatrical Guild will hold an open meeting at 11:15 o'clock Tuesday night at the Bijou Theatre. United States District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle will be the principal speaker, and Willie and Eugene Howard will be guests of honor.

PLAN NEW FILM CENSORSHIP

C. E. Milliken and A. M. Cohen to Confer on B'nai B'rith Group.

In accordance with an invitation extended by Carl E. Milliken, secretary of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, to Alfred M. Cohen of Cincinnati, president of the International Order of B'nai B'rith, the latter will soon come to New York to name a committee which will advise motion picture producers about portions of films which might be offensive to Jews, it was announced yesterday.

The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith has heretofore handled cases in which modification in films was thought necessary, but an Eastern committee, one similar to that which functions in Hollywood with Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin as the head, was considered advisable.

Lon Chaney Enters Audible Films.

Lon Chaney, who has not betrayed much enthusiasm for talking pictures, yesterday signed a contract to continue his acting services for five years longer with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Mr. Chaney did not sign the contract until he had tried out his voice before the microphone in a series of exhaustive tests. These tests are said not only to have satisfied the studio officials but also Mr. Chaney, who incidentally went to the screen from the stage. Mr. Chaney's first audible film has not yet been decided upon.

PATRONAGE COMES FIRST.

Prohibition may exalt its horn in Washington, but the Senatorial horn is exalted still more when it is a question of the offices. The New Jersey case, involving both Senators from that State, is reported to be giving the President no end of trouble. Small wonder. Here is the Anti-Saloon League demanding that he refuse to reappoint Colonel FORAN as Controller of Customs at this port, while Senator KEAN and Senator BAIRD insist, in their own name and right, and also in behalf of the Republican organization, that Colonel FORAN be designated once more. The fact that he is a Catholic and is assailed by a Protestant clergyman who is at the head of the Anti-Saloon League in New Jersey adds piquancy as well as peril to the controversy. If it is allowed to proceed to its bitter end it may lead to the loss of a Republican Senator in New Jersey this year. The Senator to be appointed, Ambassador MORROW, is now in London, fortunately for his peace of mind, but he will not be able, when the New Jersey campaign comes on, to avoid taking sides in the contest over prohibition which has already rent the Republican party in New Jersey, and which may, partly in consequence of this row over patronage at Washington, become the leading issue next November.

President HOOVER is represented as distressed by the whole affair but determined to keep his hands off it as long as possible. The public, however, will keep neither hands nor eyes off it. The case will be followed eagerly in all its details, because it will furnish a striking test of the power of the Anti-Saloon League. That organization has long had its way with Congress. Mutterers against its domination there have been, but most Representatives and Senators have been willing to take orders from it. But now it has been guilty of something like lèse-majesté. It has demanded that two United States Senators turn over "their man" to it for execution. This may look like an irresistible force meeting an immovable body. But in this instance the probability is that the irresistible force of the Anti-Saloon League will dash in vain against something stronger than itself—namely, the appetite for political patronage.

Alcoholic thirst may be bad, but the thirst for control and distribution of the offices is much more terrible. A United States Senator may be professionally a dry, but if the Anti-Saloon League undertakes to dry up the sources of his political power it will find that he is no better, from the point of view of prohibition orthodoxy, than a heathen man and a publican.

A FINE EXAMPLE.

Governor GARDINER has appointed WILLIAM R. PATTANGALL Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Maine. For years Judge PATTANGALL was one of the most active Democrats in a Commonwealth so full of Republicans that they can afford to quarrel. In 1924 as a candidate for Governor he got more votes than any previous Democratic nominee. He is still remembered here for his spirited charge on what may now be called the sheeted dead —the K. K. K. In spite of his political diversions his standing at the bar was of the highest. When he was appointed a Justice of the Supreme Court by Governor BREWSTER, it was not only his fitness for the post that satisfied the Republicans. Their leaders were glad to get him out of the way by "shelving him on the bench."

Governor BREWSTER was supposed to have been very shrewd. Governor GARDINER, a different kind of man and Republican, has no such motive. He has made the promotion solely on the ground of merit. It is honorable to Maine that the selection is generally and warmly approved, by Republicans as well as Democrats. What have a man's politics to do with his qualifications for the bench? Maine teaches a lesson as yet imperfectly apprehended in most States. Connecticut, an even more austerely Republican enclave, has taught it more than once. Her Democratic Chief Justice BALDWIN was Governor after he left the bench. Chief Justice WHEELER, another Democrat, retired after ten years' service at the end of last year on account of age.

One likes to see Republican Judges in Democratic States, Democratic Judges in Republican States. These Yankee Republicans have redeemed virtues which, one hopes, will be inherited by the Democrats if they come sometime into more or less permanent control of Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

BYRD'S PRECAUTIONS.

Admiral BYRD's own statement at Little America is marked by the cool judgment of his situation and by the personal poise characteristic of him. He is aware that the ice pack is this year so much more extensive and impenetrable than ever before in recorded Antarctic exploration that it is possible his own steamship may not be able to get through to take him and his party off. He still thinks the chances are that the ice will break up in time to permit the entrance of his vessel, as planned. But the Admiral, with forty men under his command, feels that, so long as there is one chance in a hundred that his schedule may not be kept on account of the unprecedented conditions this year, he must take steps to prevent a possible failure of that kind.

This is the explanation of his move, which our State Department has so promptly supported, to induce the Norwegian and British Governments to order one or more whaling vessels to be ready, if necessary, to go to his aid. In all this is to be seen only the foresight and prudence which a man in Admiral BYRD's position is bound to display. He would make assurance doubly sure, and may be serenely confident that nothing will be left undone that should be done by his aides here or by his friends and admirers, private or unofficial. So long as he remains calm, there is no occasion for the public to get excited. It may be that his situation, caused by the formidable ice pack, may call for outside activity within the next two or three weeks. But it need not occasion anything like hysteria or fear.

THE HATRY CASE.

Conviction of CLARENCE HATRY at London yesterday for fraud and conspiracy in stock promotions, with the sentence of fourteen years' imprisonment, is one of many instances of the prompt administration of justice by British courts. The "Hatry companies" came to grief on Sept. 20; barely four months had therefore elapsed before the penalty was imposed. It is true that the closing of the case was hastened by the defendant's plea of guilty, but that was evidently only because of belief in an immediately impending verdict. This speedy bringing of the suit to a decision certainly provides agreeable contrast with the history of similar court proceedings of our own. In the not entirely dissimilar case against CHARLES W. MORSE it was more than twelve months after his illegal use of bank funds had caused the failure of the institutions controlled by him, in 1907, that a Federal jury found him guilty.

In other respects, however, the "Hatry scandal" has not thrown a creditable light on British institutions. The British company act, belated reform of which was only put into effect last November, was notoriously imperfect in its safeguards for investors. The old law made possible, The London Economist pointed out last Autumn, "issue "of prospectuses with inadequate in-"formation, interlocking of compa-"nies whose balance sheets are de-"signed to conceal their mutual "relations, failure to publish any ac-"counts at all until long after they "have become a matter of ancient "history, or the underwriting of "new issues by firms without the "resources to take up the shares." Some of these imperfections are not wholly absent from American company law. But the sober British judgment of the Hatry episode has been that the London Stock Exchange could not escape censure for its laxity in admitting to its list the shares of such companies, organized as HATRY organized them and with wholly inadequate statement of their capitalization and position. "The New York Stock Exchange," The Economist observed, regretfully, "is "far more stringent as to the in-"formation which it requires before "admitting new securities."

The Hatry affair was a peculiarly flagrant and inexcusable violation of all the canons of properly safeguarded finance. Some of the charges, indeed, remind one of the practices pursued with company shares by the Jim Fisks and Daniel Drews of our own Wall Street history of the sixties. Not only had deficits resulting from improper use of the Hatry companies' funds been covered up by new stock sold on the pretense of "amalgamations," but HATRY and his confederates, after "underwriting" loans of certain British municipalities, had fraudulently sold to the investing public securities far in excess of the face value of the loans. Against loans of the cities of Wakefield, Newcastle and Gloucester, £900,000 of what the government's accountant described as "forged paper" was sold to investors or placed as collateral for loans.

Not the least extraordinary aspect of this extraordinary episode lay in the fact that HATRY himself had achieved, between 1919 and 1923, the reputation of a reckless company promoter whose organizations invariably came to grief. But such things, his London critics of last Autumn recalled, counted for little in London's "Stock Exchange boom of 1928." Four and a half years after he had re-entered City high finance with a shady past, he and his group had created or were in control of twelve financial and industrial combinations with £21,000,000 capital. Court testimony and HATRY's own confession have shown what he did with them. Thanks to a better supervision and regulation of such enterprises in this country, we ourselves were spared any such experience in 1929. But recollection of the spirit which pervaded last year's American speculation makes it easier to understand how the "Hatry affair" at London should have been possible.

CLAIMING TOO MUCH.

Since "health and vigor to men, "slender figures to women and re-"duction of flesh in all cases will "not necessarily result from the "smoking of respondent's brand of "cigarettes," the Federal Trade Commission has induced a cigarette manufacturer to refrain from advertising to that effect. It is a move in the direction of better advertising methods. Perhaps the moral phase is not so important as the cultural. Few readers can have implicitly believed that Mme. Coloratura preserved her clear tones largely because she smoked Vocos. There must have been even fewer who did not think Mr. Executo a trifle optimistic when he ascribed the calm of spirit which led to his success to the use of the same cigarettes. The argument that if every time one craved a substantial meal one smoked a packet of cigarettes instead and thus stayed slender may have had some influence. But the reader knew he could stay just as slender if he chewed on a straw when hungry. There couldn't have been much harm done to anything save the standards of advertising. And the Federal Trade Commission, striking for honesty in claims, has given national good taste a push forward.

Some time ago the President remarked that there is nothing so active as a man with an emotion. The advertising manager who conceived the large idea, which the commission has buried, began with an emotion. It was to prove that his client's cigarettes could go several millions higher in annual sales. The first objective was "big names." Whether they smoked Vocos made no difference; pay them $1,000 and let them imply that whatever quality the world admired them for had something to do with the use of that particular brand. From that beginning, it was a short step to the premise that health is the foundation of success; and, on the stage, health joined to beauty. Day after day pictures and endorsements from obviously healthy and beautiful — and successful — folk linked them with "the respondent's brand." It was fine until envious competitors, and joshing by friends of non-smokers whose endorsements and photographs had appeared in the advertising columns, interested the Federal Trade Commission. Now the cigarettes have to fall back upon their, doubtless, excellent intrinsic merits as smoking material only.

PARK PROTECTION AGAIN.

There are obvious reasons why a privately employed police force to protect the parks, such as was suggested on Monday at the meeting of the Junior Members of the Women's League for the Protection of Riverside Park, would be impracticable. Yet it is plain that a larger police force is essential unless the parks are to be allowed to revert to their state prior to the recent renovation. It would also be advisable to make permanent the practice of trying violators of the park rules on the spot.

As was pointed out in our columns on several occasions by Chief Magistrate MCADOO, the best deterrent of vandalism is the immediate meting out of punishment to the offenders.

In fairness to the park authorities, it should be noted that some of the charges of inefficiency made at the meeting referred to were not well founded. The assertion was made that the lawns turned brown last Summer because of the poor quality of seed used and because weeds were not eradicated. The fact is, of course, that New York City and vicinity suffered last Summer from one of the worst droughts in many years. As the irrigation system in Central Park was not then completely established, it was not possible to do the desirable amount of watering. Another year this difficulty will not exist.

Much has been done in Central Park to improve it. Necessary capital expenditures have been made. One of the great problems henceforth is maintenance. This divides itself into two categories—upkeep of the lawns, trees, &c., and policing. The former is provided for by the park staff of gardeners and their assistants. In order to get the best results constant attention will be required. The beds must be kept loosened and the soil enriched. Shrubs and trees need pruning and mulching. This work is already being well done.

Yet much of what they do may be undone by the carelessness and thoughtlessness of many park visitors. Not only do these scatter litter and walk on areas which for good reason are fenced off from the public, but frequently injure shrubs and pick flowers. To cope with them a good-sized additional force is indispensable. There is much to be said for an enlarged special park police force. But it must be paid for by the city and not by individuals. The whole problem of park protection deserves attention before Spring.

CONTINENTAL INTERVIEW.

"Isn't it ridiculous," said Terra Firma, "the way you men will carry "on about the first stranger that "comes along? The sea, says RAM-"SAY MACDONALD, means life or "death to Great Britain; for Britain "the sea is everything. France, says "TARDIEU, has coasts on three seas "and 34,000 miles of sea communi-"cations. For us also, says GRANDI, "the sea is our life. And now Spain "is beginning to feel that without "the sea there is no meaning in life "for her. Pretty soon it may be "Switzerland."

"But, madam—" said the interviewer.

"To hear them talk," she said, "you'd think they spent all their "lives and ate all their meals on "the sea. Who gives a hoot for the "ocean as an ocean, except Mr. "WILLIAM BEEBE and a few Nor-"wegian whalers and those Atlantic "City bathing beauties? MACDON-"ALD, perhaps, has a better excuse "than anybody, but even England "doesn't get her mutton and wheat "and cotton out of the sea, does "she? Those things grow some-"where else than on the sea, I be-"lieve. I'll tell you what Great Brit-"ain gets out of the sea direct. "Kippers. For Britain the sea is "everything! Oh, yeah? Ask any-"body how good the land looks to "him after a week on the North "Atlantic in January."

The interviewer had come over with the delegates on the George Washington and he recalled how the wind was blowing sixty miles an hour and the lines of his sea communications seemed a couple of million miles long. So he smiled sympathetically.

"Oh, yes, the sea," said Terra Firma, failing utterly to respond. "Why don't they go and hold an "international conference in the "middle of the ocean? You hear a "lot of people singing Sea where "my fathers died, Sea of the Pil-"grims' pride, what?"

"But, madam," said the interviewer, "if there weren't any seas "there wouldn't be any coasts, as "Mr. WILL ROGERS so happily pointed "out yesterday; and, after all, peo-"ple cross the sea, as you have just "intimated, only to get to the land. "The sea, if I may be permitted to "say so, isn't the only pebble on the "beach."

Terra Firma smiled, but had not been completely mollified when the interviewer departed. He found himself wondering what the effect on her would be in case Paraguay turned up at London and declared that the sea was her very life-blood.

NEW YORK AND CHICAGO.

There is no direct analogy between conditions in New York today and those in Chicago. The assertion, irresponsibly made, that this city "faces bankruptcy" is wholly unwarranted, as Controller BERRY has been quick to point out. The city's credit is excellent. It has had no trouble selling its bonds or collecting its taxes. Its average assessments are probably within 10 or 15 per cent of full value, with no hint of the scandalous state of affairs which undermined Chicago's finances. Our tax rate has remained stationary, or nearly so, for a number of years. This city has ample resources, if properly husbanded, to meet even the exacting demands of the pending program of bridges, tunnels and other public improvements. The only civic analogy is to the past of the Tweed ring, when a great construction program went hand in hand with stupendous grafting, or to some future day of reckoning with an administration which refuses to heed Chicago's horrible example.

It will not do for New Yorkers to be too pharisaical about her plight, even though they are vastly better off in politics, government and finances. No city whose budget has doubled in ten years can afford to do too much boasting about thrift, and no city which goes year after year to the State Legislature seeking further relief from the rigors of its debt limit can assert that it has been living within its income. The burden of debt is excessive. The burden of taxation is not more keenly felt chiefly because increased assessments have so far kept pace with increased expenditures. But they cannot be driven forever in tandem. In the matter of taxes, successive administrations have chosen the path of least resistance, first by virtually repealing the pay-as-you-go policy imposed by the bankers in the credit stringency at the opening of the World War, and more recently by adopting a plan of subway financing which rests on an ingenious device for evading the constitutional limit.

Chicago has no subways, long New York's chief fiscal concern, but in other respects her public improvement program is more advanced than this city's. She not only has a plan, but has lived to see it realized in spacious boulevards and far-flung parks. It is precisely because New York is still on the threshold of a similar development that Chicago's experience holds for us a timely warning. Citizens' committees, born of an emergency like hers, usually come into action too late to do much except gather up the fragments after the explosion. Rehabilitation is long and painful. Such a committee on the job at the outset might be able to persuade our politicians to store a little less of their dynamite in the city treasury.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Another Break With Soviet Russia.

Something of that rigorous Latin logic upon which stress is now laid in London manifests itself in the official explanation at Mexico City for the sudden termination of diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia. Demonstrations hostile to the present régime in Mexico have been staged before its consulates at Detroit, Buenos Aires and Rio Janeiro. These unfriendly manifestations, the Mexican Government declares it knows perfectly well, are the work of Communist groups for whom the Soviet Government is responsible.

This is where the suggestion of excessively rigorous logic enters. It is undoubtedly true that the Soviet Government and the Communist International are for all practical purposes the same. The British Government has repeatedly served notice at Moscow that it will insist on this identification. But governments are usually inclined to overlook slight irritations. London, Paris and Berlin have at various times been patient under much more serious provocation, and much nearer home than a consulate in a foreign land.

However, it is gratifying to note that the rupture between Mexico City and Moscow, only a few years ago the very best of friends, is not likely to threaten the peace of the world or upset its economic balance. Mexican exports to Russia in a recent year were about $400,000 and the imports from Russia $15,000.

New York's Water Supply.

It will not be many years before New York City is using every drop of the water it can squeeze from its present supply. The administration's technical advisers have long since given warning of the imperative need for extending it, and the engineers are prepared to tap the Delaware watershed as soon as the Supreme Court of the United States will allow them to do so.

New Jersey has rights in that watershed which she naturally wants to see protected, and has brought suit to that end. In such cases the Supreme Court has original jurisdiction. Corporation Counsel HILLY returned from Washington the other day confident that the city would be sustained in its position.

He even expressed the hope that the engineers could be turned loose "early this year." That will require fast work by the special master and the court.

It is eminently desirable that the respective rights of the two States be determined equitably and promptly, for New York City—as The Brooklyn Eagle points out—"does not want to imitate the foolishness of Chicago in pirating water without legal right and so later involving itself in heavy added costs and troubles unforeseen."

Advertising His Ambition.

A banker has been much impressed by a display advertisement of a college boy. It typifies to his mind the "modern spirit of the youth of today," which he commends.

The boy begins his announcement with the statement of his age, 19, his college, and the year of his graduation (with luck), 1932. He has spare time afternoons and during vacations when he wants to begin the work which he will carry on through life. After describing himself as ambitious and announcing his intentions, he concludes: "I earnestly invite inquiries from any sound business concern which is willing, without any obligation, to assist me in planning my future with the hope that I may eventually prove valuable to the business."

No doubt this is representative of many young people of today. They have been brought up with a care bound to convince them that "a sound business concern" could not fail to take a deep personal interest in their school-boy importance. Their parents and teachers may faint with admiration before such a flourish, but most business men will be suspicious of so much eloquence. And they will certainly wonder where he got the money for such an expensive advertisement.

A Prophet Honored at Home.

Dr. JOSEPH REDLICH, who has won great distinction abroad, is also a prophet not without honor in his own country. Vienna has shown him the highest proof of affection and pride in his achievements by offering him the freedom of the city—a city so rich in traditions of beauty that even the ravage of the war and the narrowing of the borders of the land in which it sat as queen cannot take away its charm.

Professor REDLICH himself represents, in his own pursuits and accomplishments every cultural interest of his mother city. He is also a man of affairs and served his country for a time as Minister of Finance, as well as a teacher in its great university. And when his country was in distress he became a voice for her.

He will be remembered also for what he did in a masterly way for other countries. His study of the law schools of the United States is the most thoroughgoing that has been made. He was selected to make this study after England and the Continent had been searched for some one who could bring to it the requisite educational and legal discrimination. Even more notable is the study which he made of Great Britain's parliamentary system. It is regarded as the most authoritative treatise that has been written on this difficult subject. So outstanding is his scholarship that he has many times been invited to America to lecture and is now the occupant of the chair of Comparative Law at Harvard University, and the head of the Institute of Comparative Law recently established there.

He has made a valuable contribution in the field of biography by his dispassionate portrayal of the Emperor FRANCIS JOSEPH of Austria. But higher than all is the influence here and in Europe upon his own generation of his dynamic personality.

NOT CHARITY ALONE.

Mr. Swope Finds Hundred Neediest Fund of Wide Indirect Benefit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES is to be congratulated on this year's distinguished record of the Hundred Neediest Fund. That the fund should have passed last year's total is important, since its usefulness becomes wider, but it is the indirect benefit that interests me.

Day by day I found myself drawn to the reports of the donations. At first I wondered if last year's mark would be topped. Then, from merely wondering, I found myself concerned by a possible failure. Why? Because, to me, the fund had become a symbol. Would it be ignored and forgotten because of the recent financial smash? Or would it show that, even though money was not as easy as last year, humanity was just as kind? That has been shown. In fact, it has been shown that humanity is even kinder, because, with less money to give, more money has been given. Then, too, in common with many others, I kept my eye on the daily receipts because they took on the nature of a weather-vane—a straw showing the way the financial winds were blowing.

Now that last year's total has been exceeded, I feel certain that all who watched the struggle toward the top feel that things cannot be as bad as the alarmists have pictured; that times are not so desperate but that people can still lose themselves in thoughts of others. Breaking last year's record takes on spiritual, charitable and economic aspects, and for such a monument, so long and painstakingly created, the entire community owes a heavy debt to THE TIMES.

HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At the request of his Excellency Don Alejandro Padilla, Spanish Ambassador at Washington, I wish to bring to the attention of your readers the fact that complaints have been received lately that there is an impostor in New York who uses the name of Ramon Padilla, a son of the Ambassador, for the purpose of obtaining interviews with prominent persons.

Therefore, it will be very much appreciated if any young man calls on any person representing himself as the son of the Spanish Ambassador that he be reported as soon as possible to his Excellency the Ambassador at Washington or to this Consulate General.

LUIS PALAZUELO,
Acting Consul General for Spain.

New York, Jan. 22, 1930.

St. Paul's Organ.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reporting the dedication of the new organ at St. Paul's, THE TIMES says "it is the third to be placed in the chapel since it was built in 1802."

The first organ was installed in 1802, when St. Paul's was thirty-six years old. The handsome mahogany case is still used, a reduced replica of the one in Gloucester Cathedral. St. Paul's was completed in 1766, and is the oldest public building in the city with its original structure. It was then in the country, in a wheat field, and so escaped the fire which destroyed the city during the Revolution, when Trinity, the mother church, was burned. The present Trinity Church is the third, and is comparatively modern.

A PARISHIONER.

TRANSITION.

Our isolation seems less keen
Than we found it a year ago.
Of course, across a deep ravine
Where pines and eucalyptus grow,
Our lonely ranch still lies between Great mountains o'er which clouds hang low,
And seldom is a stranger seen
As we on tasks go to and fro.

Yet, when behind the western hills
The Summer sun sinks out of sight,
And darkness creeps about, and fills
Our valley with the black of night,
Beneath the silent, starry sky,
The east-bound mail-plane passes by!

DISPUTING MR. WICKERSHAM

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reporting the radio address of George Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's Commission on Law Enforcement and Observance, on Jan. 23, THE TIMES quotes the speaker as having said, "Self-government can only be maintained if the people obey the laws they themselves have made."

That axiom has limitations which Mr. Wickersham did not see fit to mention or delineate. Without going into detail, he might well have said, "Self-government can only be maintained if the people do not attempt to enforce unjust, unconscionable or inherently unenforceable laws."

I wonder if Mr. Wickersham had just such limitations in mind when he added, "Perhaps too much reliance has been placed upon these methods [prosecution, penalties, &c.] and too little attention given to persuading men that in the long run it pays to obey the law."

And then again he said, "We believe there is a great body of balanced sentiment in the country which believes in obedience to laws, which responds to an appeal to support the institutions of the country and will support conservative measures for improving the machinery of law enforcement."

Does Mr. Wickersham in that paragraph intend to imply that there is in this or any other country "a balanced sentiment" in favor of obedience to unjust laws, or oppressive laws, or downright tyrannical laws? If he does, then he certainly has a lower opinion of the intelligence, discernment and patriotism of the average informed member of society than most students of social justice.

Does Mr. Wickersham really mean that the commission believes there is a great body of "balanced" opinion in this country which "will support conservative measures for improving the machinery of law enforcement" without regard to the conservatism of the law to be enforced?

The Eighteenth Amendment, the Volstead act and the various State enforcement acts represent an attempt by an alleged majority to inflict a drastic rule of personal conduct upon an alleged minority without regard to the sobriety, temperance, wishes, views, resentment or opposition of the millions intended to be coerced.

Does Mr. Wickersham think that there is a great body of "balanced" sentiment in favor of attempting to coerce, say, 20,000,000 freemen?

Well, if he does, then the President should appoint just one more commission to inquire into the psychological processes which led Mr. Wickersham to that conclusion.

The Fruits of Genius.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My comment on the subject of inventors as discussed in the editorial published in THE TIMES recently "New Light on Inventors" is that as a class they are being mercilessly exploited by corporations.

What incentive is there unduly to exert one's abilities if one knows there is to be no direct or indirect return? We are told that it adds to our prestige. I, in common with other employes of a great corporation, was required to sign a legal form which left me no claim to my own inventive ability. The corporation's justification for its action was that it limited its claims to "anything in the line of the company's business." However, its interests were so broad as to include practically everything from astronomy, locomotives, ships and household appliances to flashlight lamps. Thus, precarious as is the position of the individual inventor, one does not have much, if any, advantage. If, due to one's inventive ability, one is worth an insignificant salary to the corporation, one is certainly worth more to one's own interests.

I was in the employ of a corporation under the condition mentioned above and left largely because of that condition. Subsequently I invented and operated a device which clearly was not suggested by the corporation's interests nor could it rightly have had any claim on it, yet under the conditions I would have had no recourse.

At present I am developing two or three devices and am just now approaching some manufacturers with them. Although it is very difficult and discouraging, especially if one lacks funds with which to operate, one can maintain some control over his interests.

The day laborer, having been exploited, organized. Yet so-called educated people permit themselves to be exploited. One wonders why.

Brave Spirits.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just read the editorial "Recognizing Unusual Courage." We gladly join with others in admiration of the brave spirit of Paul Bohrer and Edward R. Maurer, who died as heroes in their attempt "to prevent and punish flagrant crime."

A few more persons of that determined courage would soon put an end to the flourishing hold-up work. One becomes astonished over the seeming mental lethargy and indolence of the citizenry that no special effort is made to find ways and means of ridding a city of the dangerous pest of an army of hold-ups. These know their police and they know their people whom they set up in a row with hands obediently and meekly extended.

A Suggestion for Builders.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some time ago THE TIMES published a description of a new device for a practically silent riveter so that the noise of building would be greatly lessened.

Would it not be better if these people who put up signs apologizing to their neighbors for the noise they are making in building looked about for this device and used it?

If they must have a sign, how truly delightful it would be to see one which reads: "This building is being erected without any nerve-wracking, ear-splitting and vitality-destroying noise because we do not wish to be a nuisance in the neighborhood."

PUSH PLANS TO AID CRIPPLED CHILDREN

SEE TREATMENT ADVANCED

President Hoover's White House conference on child health and protection will be a landmark in child welfare activities, establishing a continuing process of coordination between professional information and actual practice in the solution of juvenile problems and the advancement of child welfare, appointed leaders of the section dealing with handicapped children declared yesterday.

At a meeting of the subcommittee on crippled children, in the Russell Sage Foundation Building and in the Gramercy Park Hotel, the progress in preliminary studies of child problems was discussed. Harry H. Howett, executive secretary of the International Society for Crippled Children at Elyria, Ohio, is chairman of the subcommittee.

The investigations under way, Mr. Howett reported, will attempt to verify the estimated ratio of 2½ to 3 crippled children per 1,000. Censuses have been taken in New York, New Jersey, Cleveland, Chicago, Providence and in various counties of Ohio and Michigan, he said. Infantile paralysis, it was revealed, heads the list of causes of lameness in children, with joint and bone diseases second, rickets and congenital defects next and industrial and public accidents last. Mr. Howett said that 70 per cent of the increase in public accidents was due to automobiles.

William J. Ellis, Commissioner of the Department of Institutions and Agencies of New Jersey, whose subcommittee will deal with the physically and mentally handicapped, said the conference in November would be a forum through which the best methods of child welfare could be extended. He said it would surpass in scope and accomplishment similar conferences called by President Roosevelt in 1909 and by President Wilson in 1919.

His impression from conversations with other leaders, he said, was that the conference would not be "a shot in the dark," but a continuing process to advance the cause of crippled children for years to come. He said it was realized that the knowledge of physicians was ahead of practice in dealing with the handicapped and that he believed one result of the conference would be greater facilities for aid when the gap between professional information and every-day practice was bridged.

C. C. Carstens of New York, chairman of Section Four of the conference, which is studying the handicapped child, suggested that the counties of each State function as administrative units of service so that children in remote sections might be reached. He urged the subcommittees to think of brevity in their reports and to emphasize the most important points of the studies.

About a dozen persons, representing various sections of the subcommittee, attended the meetings.

TELLS OF CHILD LABOR AID.

The campaign of the Junior Placement Bureau of the New York State Department of Labor to keep children from leaving school unless driven by necessity has met with a good response, according to a report of the bureau's first six months made public yesterday by its director, Miss Clare L. Lewis. Nevertheless, the report said, the seventeen junior employment offices operated by the State in this city, Albany, Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse had twice as many applicants in November and December as they had jobs to offer.

In December the bureau dealt with 6,336 job-hunters from 14 to 18 years old, and placed 1,681. Many junior high schools for girls have notified Miss Lewis, the report said, that her bulletin describing the scarcity of jobs for girls under 16 had been placed in the hands of all eighth and ninth grade girls.

Teachers in the nine continuation schools here in which State offices are situated will be asked to aid in finding jobs by having their pupils report any vacancies in their places of employment, Miss Lewis said.

PLACES COLLEGE MEN.

Employment Service Termed Effective at Lehigh Alumni Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 24.—The value of placement services of alumni associations was shown at a meeting of Lehigh University Alumni today, indicating that the results justify the effort and expense. Placement services operating in university groups located in or near large cities or industrial centres were found to be bringing good results, while poor results were obtained at universities located away from large population centres. The University of Michigan was cited as an example of the latter condition and the University of Pennsylvania as a good example of the former. It was stated that there is a constantly increasing trend on the part of big industry to obtain employes who have college training.

MRS. W. K. OLCOTT DIES ON LINER AT SEA

Wife of Former Prosecutor and City Court Justice Was Returning From Trip to Italy.

Mrs. Jessie Baldwin Olcott, wife of William M. K. Olcott, former District Attorney and city court justice, died yesterday morning on board the Italian liner Roma, on which she was returning from a pleasure trip to Italy.

Mrs. Olcott was born in New York City in 1865. She was named for her father, who for many years was a merchant in Murray Street. Besides her husband, she is survived by one son, Neilson, who is engaged with his father in the practice of law.

Mrs. Olcott was a director of the New York Bible Society. She was associated with a number of charitable and humane organizations and was a member of the S. P. C. A. She was formerly a director of the Riverside Day Nursery. Mr. and Mrs. Olcott's New York home was at 58 West Eighty-fourth Street, and they had been for many years Summer residents of Quogue, L. I.

He was born in 1854 at Ossining, N. Y., was educated in the New York City public schools and in 1875 was graduated from City College. In 1925, at the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation, he made the speech of presentation of the bronze reading desk given by his class to the college.

BRYAN'S WORKS AT FUNERAL

GLENDALE, Cal., Jan. 24 (AP).—A passage from William Jennings Bryan's book "The Prince of Peace" was read today at the funeral of his widow, Mrs. Mary Baird Bryan.

Mrs. Bryan, who died on Tuesday at the Hollywood home of her daughter, Mrs. Grace Bryan Hargreaves, often expressed the wish that her husband's essay "Immortality" be read at her funeral.

"I am as sure that we shall live again as that we live today," was the passage from "The Prince of Peace" read by the Rev. Dr. James Hamilton Lash, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Hollywood.

The private services were held at the Little Church of the Flowers in Glendale. The rites were simple, and Dr. Lash delivered a brief eulogy.

The body will be cremated and the ashes sent to Arlington National Cemetery to rest beside her husband.

MRS. FELTON DIES; FORMER SENATOR

Appointed for One-Day Term From Georgia, She Said She Hoped to See Women in Senate.

WAS PIONEER SUFFRAGIST

Active Almost to the Last, She Had Gone to Atlanta at 94 to Attend to School Business.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 24.—Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Felton of Cartersville, a pioneer in the fight for woman's suffrage, for many years a leader in State and national activities and the only woman who ever held a seat in the United States Senate, died at 11:45 o'clock tonight at a local hospital.

Mrs. Felton, who was 94 years old, had been a patient at the hospital since Jan. 16. She had come to Atlanta on business related to the operation of the Georgia Training School for Girls, of which she was a director and in which she had been greatly interested for years. Soon after her arrival she suffered a severe bronchial attack, which developed into pneumonia.

One Wish Unfulfilled.

Though Mrs. Felton survived for seven active years after her historic one-day term as United States Senator from Georgia, she failed to witness one of the things for which she had most hoped to live.

"For two or three weeks," she said on the occasion of her return home from her Senatorial experience, "I'm going to stay close and take things mighty easy, for I want to live long enough to see other women enjoy the same honors that have just come to me."

She died still holding the distinction of being the only woman ever sworn as a member of the United States Senate. Although she held the office largely through courtesy, she accepted it as a symbol—and as such it was recognized throughout the country—of the political equality of women, for which she had fought so long.

By her own pioneering efforts Mrs. Felton had become a potent political factor in her own State. It was in tribute to her political activities and in return for her effective campaigning for Governor Hardwick that the Governor appointed her to fill the seat made vacant by the death of Senator Thomas E. Watson in October, 1922. However, Senator Walter F. George was elected to the office before the Senate convened. He postponed presenting his credentials, in order to permit Mrs. Felton to be sworn in and serve for one day.

Her Speech Before the Senate.

The only speech made by a woman Senator was delivered by Mrs. Felton just before she concluded her short term of office. It was a brief speech of thanks—less than 500 words—but it was hailed as a "milestone."

"It is a romantic incident, Senators," Mrs. Felton concluded, "but it's a historic event. If Lady Astor, from the State of Virginia, can go to London and be seated as a member of the British House of Commons, you can take this remnant of the old South that has never flickered in her patriotism to her country, and you can be very sure that this country is not going to disgrace her commission.

"Let me say, Mr. President, that when the women of this country come in and sit with you, though there may be but a very few in the next few years, I pledge you that you will get ability, you will get integrity of purpose, you will get exalted patriotism and you will get unstinted usefulness."

With those words Mrs. Felton climaxed an era of intense activity in the part of women's organizations. She left the Senate Chamber and returned to her home in Cartersville, Ga. She at once showed the same intense interest and activity in public affairs which had made it seem impossible that she was 87 years old.

Changed Views on Prohibition.

Woman suffrage and prohibition were the subjects of two of her most important fights. On the latter issue, however, she seemed to have come to some extent in recent years, holding that removing drunkenness from the United States had been the main objective, and since prohibition had failed to attain that goal, some form of government regulation should be tried. Bitter opposition to the Ku Klux Klan was another cause which she espoused in late years.

Mrs. Felton was born in Georgia on June 10, 1835. She married Dr. W. H. Felton when she was 18. Five children were born to them. Dr. Felton, who died in 1909, was elected to Congress several times, and on each occasion Mrs. Felton managed his campaign and took the stump for him. This experience served her as her political apprenticeship, and for the last three decades she was a recognized leader in Georgia politics.

In 1912 she was a delegate to the Bull Moose convention which nominated the late President Theodore Roosevelt for a third term. In the 1928 Presidential campaign she came out in favor of Alfred E. Smith of New York.

Despite advanced years and political activity Mrs. Felton managed large farm holdings in the northern part of her State, and was assiduous in looking after them.

Her vitality in the last year of her life was astonishing to her friends. In March, 1929, she was severely cut on the face in an automobile collision. She sat calmly while twenty stitches were taken, and though weakened by loss of blood from the severing of an artery, was reported to be well on the road to recovery twenty-four hours after the accident. Early in December she took her first ride in a dirigible.

Mr. Baldwin was 98 years old. He and Edward P. Bradstreet of Cincinnati were the last surviving members of the famous Yale class of '53, which was said to have contained more nationally prominent men than any other American college class of its period.

Three nieces survive. They are Mrs. James K. Thacher and the Misses Marian and Emily Whitney of this city, and a nephew, Roger E. Foster of Yale.

Former Member of the Consular Service Had Been in Up-State Hospital Since October.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Dr. James Henry Worman of Westport, formerly in the Consular Service and editor-in-chief of Outing, died at the Champlain Valley Hospital, this city, at noon today following an operation on Oct. 9. He had undergone two operations, from which, due to advanced age, he was unable to recover. He was in his eighty-fifth year.

For thirty years he had resided at Bonnycroft, Westport. Coming to that village as a Summer guest in 1900, he subsequently made it his home thereafter.

Dr. Worman is survived by a son, three daughters and a sister. Funeral services will be conducted at the late residence Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment will be in Westport Cemetery.

A native of Berlin, Dr. Worman became an American citizen more than sixty years ago. He came to this country in 1864 to help the late Dr. McClintock prepare his Theological Cyclopedia. In 1877, when the Chautauqua University opened, he was chosen as professor, remaining until 1885. During part of this period he was a professor at Adelphi Academy in Brooklyn and at Vanderbilt University in Nashville.

In 1887 Dr. Worman bought the Outing magazine, which he edited for several years. For the next four years he was American Consul, then Consul General at Munich, and from 1904 to 1906 Consul at Three Rivers, Canada. In 1904 he did special editorial and educational work for the government. He advocated successfully the right of professional American graduates to make use of American academic degrees; he led in the suppression of fraudulent colleges in Illinois and Wisconsin, and in the cancellation of illegal medical and dental licenses, for which he won the praise of Secretary of State John Hay. He cooperated with the Secretary of Agriculture in the prevention of importation of hides that caused, through proper disinfection, foot and mouth disease.

The Chautauqua Language Series in French, German and Spanish was the work of Dr. Worman. He was the founder and former president of the Round Table Club of Nashville. In 1923 he was associated with General Allen's efforts to supply food and clothing to German war sufferers.

SINGLE CHAMBER URGED FOR JERSEY

MANY MERGERS PROPOSED

State Law Department to Replace Attorney General's Office Advocated in Survey.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 24.—The abolition of the New Jersey Legislature and the establishment in its place of a single body of representatives is advocated in the final instalment of the report of the National Institute of Public Administration, which has made an investigation of the State Government. The final instalment was made public today by Governor Larson.

The report also suggested the creation of a State Law Department to take the place of the office of Attorney General and the contraction and merging of several departments, bureaus and commissions.

The report criticized particularly the increasing expenditure of the Legislature for stationery supplies and incidentals, which cost the State $70,000 last year.

"The cost of stationery supplies rose from $11,815.67 in 1925 to $18,644.40 in 1929, and incidental expenses from $23,388.54 in 1925 to $51,285.65 in 1929," the report points out. "Fountain pens, automatic pencils, desk sets, scissors sets, passbooks and billfolds are bought in great numbers. For example, 300 to 400 fountain pens, most of them of expensive make, were purchased for the members and employes of the 1929 session. Even expensive brief cases, waste baskets and overnight bags for women were purchased and paid for out of appropriations for legislative supplies."

To remedy this extravagance, the institute suggests that control of the Legislature's supplies be vested in a Bureau of Purchasing, which should be a part of the proposed Department of Finance.

Finds Agencies Overlap.

The survey cites many instances where the work of the Board of Public Utility Commissioners appears to overlap that of other departments, including the Department of Municipal Accounts, the Highway Commission, the Board of Commerce and Navigation and the Fish and Game Commission.

It pointed out that despite the contact of the commission with the Interstate Commerce Commission, the State Budget appropriates $30,000 to the Board of Commerce and Navigation "for legal and engineering services and expenses in preparing or prosecuting cases or complaints before the Federal commission or other tribunals to secure for New Jersey the transportation benefits to which it is entitled, or to remove discriminations in transportation rates or practices."

"It is believed that the work of the department would be helped by resorting to a single commissioner," the report said. "If, however, the opposite view is taken, certain of the advantages of that plan can be obtained by having a permanent executive head in charge of the purely administrative work of the department."

In the Department of Banking and Insurance the investigators said they also found work overlapping with the duties of other departments.

Among the changes recommended were the creation of a full-time commissionership and transfer to the Tax Department of the rate calculations and extension of the rolls. It was said the Bureau of Building and Loan Associations had salary rates for its examiners which were far below those of examiners in other bureaus, making it difficult for the bureau to retain the type of men needed "for the proper discharge of the important duties assigned."

Would Revise Licensing Boards.

The survey recommended that the examining and licensing boards for professions and trades, the Public Library Commission and the State Museum be placed under the supervision of an integrated Department of Education.

In line with what the institute termed growing practice in other States, it recommended the establishment of a bureau of professional registration to take the place of the numerous examining boards.

The report said "too much emphasis" seemed to be placed on the regulatory features exercised by some of the examining and licensing boards. These boards employ investigators, and even detectives, to check up on the business operations of the licensees, it said. It would seem possible to turn over a large part of this regulatory work, perhaps all of it in the case of some boards, to the local police authorities, the report asserted.

County Bans All Billboards To Preserve Rural Vistas

A forward step in the campaign to preserve the beauty of the American countryside against the encroachments of modern advertising was taken by the Board of Freeholders of Warren County, New Jersey, yesterday when they adopted a resolution requiring the removal from the roadsides in that county of all billboards and advertising signs, even political posters. Warren County, in the northwestern part of the State, is a region of rolling hills and rural vistas, with the Delaware Water Gap as one of its scenic attractions.

The Freeholders decided that the unsightly representation on billboards of articles of commerce constitute a nuisance, an eyesore, and a hindrance to the more charming prospect of the landscape—and that the billboards must give way.

BEATS SEPPALA'S TIME.

Mrs. Ricker Wins First Leg of Maine Dog Derby.

POLAND SPRING, Me., Jan. 24 (AP).—Mrs. E. P. Ricker Jr. today won the first leg of the annual dog derby here, breaking the record for the twenty-five-mile course. Her elapsed time was 2 hours 1 minute and 40 seconds, which was 5 minutes and 31 seconds better than the record set by Leonhard Seppala in 1927.

Seppala was second in 2:02:16, Walter Channing of Boston was third in 2:11:10, and Ike Lagasse of Littleton, N. H., fourth, in 2:22:00. There were eight entries.

Channing's team, which won the Lake Placid (N. Y.) derby last week, came in with bleeding feet, caused by cuts suffered last week being reopened.

The course was in good shape, with three or four miles on the outside lap between North Raymond and West Poland providing heavy going with three or four inches of snow. The racers found some ice between West Poland and Poland Corner.

WHALEN MAKES DENIAL.

Asserts He Did Not Say Philadelphia Needs a Few Good Night Clubs.

Police Commissioner Whalen denied yesterday a statement which he was reported to have made at a dinner in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, on Thursday night. According to the statement, Mr. Whalen declared that Philadelphia needed a few good night clubs.

"As far as my going to other cities and telling them what they need, that is a lot of rot," said the commissioner. "I told a reporter that in New York we had a few good night clubs and some bad ones, and we were getting rid of the bad ones."

There are now 21,483 officers and enlisted men enrolled in the New York National Guard, according to figures made public yesterday by officers of the service at Peekskill, N. Y. Of this number 12,198 men are in the infantry branch, the remainder being divided among the engineers, medical, aviation, cavalry, artillery headquarters and staff units.

The census, started in October, has just been completed. Recent figures given out in Albany placed the total guard strength at 24,000, but it was explained yesterday that this figure included the reserve force.

CHESTERFIELD MSS. ARE FOR SALE HERE

Two Volumes of Letters to His Godson Give Advice on Ideals of Conduct.

MUST NOT BE AUCTIONED

Were Part of Library of Jerome Kern, but Have Changed Hands Twice Since 1927.

When Lord Chesterfield was writing the letters which have made his name synonymous with urbanity, he probably never suspected that more than 150 years later some of them would be put on sale in the literary market of the then provincial New York.

Today two folio volumes, bound in crimson morocco, stamped with the Chesterfield arms and containing the original letters which Lord Chesterfield wrote to his godson and successor, are for sale here at a price which in his day would have been a fortune.

Until several years ago, it was learned here yesterday, these letters remained in the Chesterfield family, but were obtained in 1927 by Temple Scott, 269 West Seventy-second Street, adviser to book collectors, with the proviso that they should not be put up at auction. They were bought from Mr. Scott by Jerome Kern, the composer, whose library was auctioned here last Winter for $1,729,462, one of the highest totals ever reached by a book sale.

In accordance with Mr. Scott's agreement, however, the Chesterfield letters were not included in the auction. In an interview after the sale, in which Mr. Kern discussed his collection, he disclosed that he had not included in the auction the first and last items he had purchased, refusing to name either one. Yesterday it was learned that this last item was the Chesterfield letters, which he sold back to Mr. Scott and which Mr. Scott resold to Arthur Zinker, owner of the Meridian Bookshop in Indianapolis.
ridian Bookshop in Indianapolis.

They are now being offered quietly to collectors here in New York. As yet there is no indication that they will become the property of any public institution. The letters to his godson were written by Lord Chesterfield between 1766-1770, Mr. Scott said, some time later than those to his natural son, Philip Dormer, which was the first series published and which won literary fame. The first series was written with the intention of improving the manners of his son and inculcating in him the ideas of a man of the world. The second series was of a similar intent.

The style in both series is the same, Mr. Zinken said, and in many instances the phraseology is identical. The originals of the first series have been lost, Mr. Zinken said. The second series was edited by the late Lord Carnarvon and published in 1890. The volumes owned by Mr. Zinken include the original contract made by the wife of Chesterfield's son for the publication of the first series.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 24.—Seventy-eight residents of Scranton and other parts of Lackawanna County, among them E. B. Jermyn, coal operator, banker and twice Mayor of this city, were indicted today by the grand jury on charges of conspiracy to set up and maintain slot machines, which are alleged to have yielded hundreds of thousands of dollars in protection graft, and on charges of operating gambling devices.

Among those indicted were:

JAMES HENSHAW, Scranton Chief of Police.

JAMES ARIGONI, former Director of Public Safety, who served in Mayor Jermyn's second term, which ended Jan. 6, 1930.

JOSEPH MAHOLIC, Chief of Police of Olyphant.

NATHAN GREEN, Scranton business man.

EDWARD G. MILLER, Scranton.

SAMUEL GRAUBART, Carbondale.

Miller, Green and Graubart are alleged to have been the heads of the slot machine syndicate which is said to have operated here and throughout the county, doing a $1,000,000 business. Miller has already testified in the inquiry that he paid more than $3,000 monthly to Harry J. Friend, and that Friend informed him that the money went to City Hall for protection.

The report made public today was the fourth by the grand jury. Up to today all indictments had been kept secret. The grand jury will remain in session until March 10.

This newest of modes became the fashion in a flash! Women like these hats because they're really different — they suggest Spring—and yet now are not unseasonable in appearance. The straw is a dull linen-like weave that is perfectly harmonious with felt—in some models it is used as a trimming, in others it is a part of the hat itself—for instance, the crown may be of straw and the brim of felt.

HEARING ORDERED ON PHONE RATE RISE

Utility Board Calls Session for Tuesday to Determine if It Is "Lawful."

GOVERNOR GETS PROTESTS

He Is Keen to Know if There Was No Ground for Supreme Court Appeal.

HILLY PUSHES HIS SURVEY

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—The Public Service Commission will give a hearing Tuesday on the recent rate schedules announced by the New York Telephone Company and has sent notices to all the cities throughout the State that may wish to have their representatives on hand.

The object of the hearing, as announced, is to enable the commission to "determine just, reasonable and lawful rates" and fix these by its own order.

A large attendance is expected at the hearing, at which the principal question will be whether the rate base adopted by the telephone company for its new schedules are in accord with that fixed by the Federal court in its decision, now more than a year old.

Governor Roosevelt made it known today that he intends to make a close study of the litigation that ended in a victory for the telephone company. Both the Public Service Commission and the Attorney General, as the Governor understands the situation, were parties to this. He is particularly keen to ascertain whether there is no ground on which the case could have been carried to the United States Supreme Court. He has instructed Samuel T. Roseman, his legal adviser, to submit to him a full record of the proceedings.

Commission Issues Statement.

Announcement of the hearing was made by the commission in the following statement:

"The Public Service Commission today on its own motion directed a hearing at its office, 100 State Street, Albany, on Jan. 28 at 10 A. M., on the question of rates, charges, tolls and rentals to be hereafter charged by the New York Telephone Company, in order that the commission may determine just, reasonable and lawful rates and fix the same by order of the commission.

"Notices of the hearing were sent out today to representatives of all municipalities of the State."

Hilly Expects Report in Ten Days.

Corporation Counsel Hilly said yesterday his expert, Archibald C. Little, was investigating the new telephone rates and expected to report on them within ten days.

"We are on the job, and what we really want to find out for the people of the city is whether the telephone service is real telephone service," said Mr. Hilly.

He added that the Corporation Counsel's investigation would endeavor to ascertain "why there are different rates in different parts of the town" as well as in what manner the company had spent or is spending an additional $133,000,000 on plant extensions.

V. E. Cooley, vice president of the New York Telephone Company, asserted that the $133,000,000 represented "net additions to our plant, or the company's capital expenditures from July 1, 1928, to July 1, 1930."

"Expenditures for plant additions and extensions," he further explained, were at the rate of approximately $1,300,000 every four days.

"On July 1, 1928, the company's plant was listed at $556,000,000. We are constantly adding to our plant. When we get up to July 1, 1930, we expect that our plant will represent an investment of $689,000,000. That's the whole plant. The reason we take the figures as of July 1 is in order to get an average for the year.

Estimates Average Annual Rise.

"Regarding the item of $133,000,000 we will have put in nineteen twenty-fourths up to Feb. 1, 1930. Five twenty-fourths will be put in by July 1, 1930. These investments in additions to plant are being made as they are required by increasing demands on the service. The court has held that we are entitled to 7 per cent. We estimate that there will be a 6.7 per cent return on our entire property under the new schedules."

After stating that plans called for the expenditure of $600,000,000 in plant additions in the next five years, Mr. Cooley said the company estimated that the average annual increase, under the new schedules, for all telephones would be $5.17, for business subscribers $7.61 and for residential $3.11.

Mr. Cooley stated that the differences in rates in different parts of the city and State were based on the number of telephones in different localities. The rates were figured like advertising, depending upon the number of subscribers.

Examination of the new schedules and the rate supplement shows that Floral Park, Great Neck and Manhasset will bear one of the largest increases. Those communities are advanced from rate groups III, for which there is a rate of $4.25 for individual stations, to group VII, having a rate of $7 a month.

Communities which are scheduled for a reduction of twenty-five cents in the individual line business rate include Haverstraw, Sloatsburg and Stony Point, in Rockland County, and in the up-State area Lancaster, Mechanicsville and Salamanca.

Because of the large increase in the number of telephones in use, numerous villages of Long Island and Westchester are advanced from group III with a rate for individual business lines of $4.25 to group V with a rate of $5.50, these villages including Babylon, Bay Shore, Blue Point, Lindenhurst, Oyster Bay, Patchogue, Selden, Southampton and Watermill, L. I. Armonk Village, Bedford Village, Mount Kisco and Pleasantville, in Westchester, are put in the same class. Cold Spring Harbor, Huntington, Long Beach and Port Washington, L. I., are moved from group III to group VI with a rate of $6.25 for individual business lines.

COMMUNIST CLERK DIES OF POLICE SHOT

WHALEN 'COSSACKS' SCORED

Plea for Temperate Handling of Crowd at Mass Meeting Is Made by Roger Baldwin.

The death last evening of a clerk who was shot on Jan. 16 by a policeman in the course of a riot in the Bronx caused leaders of the Communist party here last night to issue a call for a mass meeting at the City Hall at 12:30 P. M. today.

The Communist announcement, which contained denunciation of the police and of Commissioner Whalen, in turn caused Roger N. Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, to write to Commissioner Whalen asking him to guard against any unwarranted interference by the police at the meeting.

The dead clerk was Steve Katovis, 40 years old, of 2,700 Bronx Park Avenue East. He died at 5:30 P. M. yesterday in the prison ward at Fordham Hospital of a bullet wound in the neck. Katovis was in a crowd of striking vegetable and fruit clerks who were doing picket duty in the neighborhood of 161st Street and Union Avenue, the Bronx.

According to the police, Katovis refused to move on when ordered to do so by Patrolman Harry Kiritz of the Morrisania police station.

The order precipitated a small riot, in which the policeman was beaten and his club taken from him. Detective Donald Carey, who was passing, went to the aid of the policeman and was struck over the right eye. The crowd, in which there were several women, pressed the policemen. Kiritz drew his pistol and fired into the air. A second shot was fired, which struck Katovis in the neck. He was removed to the hospital and placed in the prison ward on a charge of felonious assault.

The strikers have attempted to hold several demonstrations at the scene during the past week, but were dispersed by the police.

The statement of the New York Communists declared that "the bosses of New York have got their first victim—their first dead worker—in the struggles that are now taking place" and appealed for an attendance of thousands at today's City Hall demonstration. The statement charged that Katovis was shot in the back by one of "Whalen's Cossacks" and continued:

"The death of Katovis serves to indicate what the manufacturers and bankers of this city are planning. Today a score of food workers were arrested on the picket line; shoe workers were driven from their halls and arrested. Women on the picket line and in demonstration are clubbed by the police.

"The same bosses who have ordered the clubbing, jailing, murdering of the workers of this country, are preparing for war on the Soviet Union. The same bosses that deny work to the workers of this country are preparing a new world slaughter.

"The Communist party calls on the workers of this city—white and colored, men and women, young and old—to prepare for the struggle.

Mr. Baldwin's letter to Mr. Whalen concerning the demonstration said that "while we have no concern whatever with this demonstration, we desire to express our hope that the police department will not interfere in any way in the holding of a peaceable assemblage for such a protest.

"Of course," said the letter, "nothing we have to say affects any actual breaches of the peace. But we point out that the object and temper of this demonstration might easily provoke police officers into handling such a crowd roughly, even in the absence of any actual breach of the peace. It is for that reason that we venture to call it to your personal attention in the hope that appropriate instructions will be given the officers in charge."

LADY PAGET ILL IN FLORIDA.

Titled English Business Woman in Hospital There.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 24 (AP).—Lady Victor Paget, wife of the sixth Marquis of Anglesey and close friend of Lady Diana Cooper, is recovering in a Miami Beach hospital from a slight illness contracted in Nassau, it was learned today. Lady Paget was brought here by airplane on Wednesday for treatment by specialists. She is expected to remain in the hospital for several days.

As one of the several titled English women who entered business for themselves after the World War and became successful, she is the owner of a gown shop in the fashionable shopping centre of London. Her husband, Lord Victor Paget, is a Captain in the Royal Horse Guards and served in the World War. Before her marriage, in 1922, she was the Hon. Bridget Colebrook, daughter of the first Baron Colebrook, former Lord-in-Waiting to the King of England.

FAMOUS HORSE CAB BURNS.

Vehicle in Which German Drove From Berlin to Paris Is Destroyed.

BERLIN, Jan. 24 (AP).—Gustav Hartmann, who played the part of unofficial ambassador of good-will in June, 1928, when he made a long-distance endurance horse-cab dash from Berlin to Paris, today lost his famed vehicle in a fire which destroyed two of his stables. The blaze was believed to be of incendiary origin.

The veteran horse Erasmus, which drew "Iron Gustav" on his good-will mission, was saved from an untimely death.

HELD AS RACKETEER IN BRONX BUILDING

Monteforte, Indicted on Eleven Counts, Is Arrested and Released in $50,000 Bail.

TWO STILL AT LARGE

Prosecutor Says Early Trial Will Be Asked in Extortion Ring Case.

Anthony Monteforte of 738 Bartholdi Street, the Bronx, indicted for extortion on eleven counts by a grand jury that has been investigating racketeering in the building industry, was arrested yesterday and held in $50,000 bail by County Judge James M. Barrett. A union delegate indicted jointly with him on one count and a plastering contractor cited for perjury have not yet been taken into custody.

Monteforte was trailed from his home to a building at 3,550 White Plains Avenue, where are the offices of the Williamsbridge Investment Company, the United Lathing Company and the Plasterers' Information Bureau, of which he is the reputed head. The latter two organizations are suspected of having dominated the lathing and plastering branches of the building trade by exacting tributes of 1 and 2 per cent from contractors. In the inquiry, which has been going on since last September, the books of the three organizations were seized and examined by public accountants.

The arrest was made by Detectives Alexander McCoy and Frank McCarthy detailed to the Fire Marshal's office from the Wakefield and Westchester stations, respectively. It was in these areas that many of the suspicious fires that brought about the inquiry occurred. A plasterer lost his life and more than $3,000,000 damage was done in fires blamed on racketeers.

Monteforte was held on the ten counts naming him singly. William Thomas, a lawyer who happened to be in the court room, asked Judge Barrett to hold the case in abeyance until the arrival of Monteforte's attorney, Jonah Goldstein. Judge Barrett, without comment, immediately announced bail of $5,000 on each of the ten counts, which Monteforte paid through a bondsman.

"We have given bench warrants to the police for the three men indicted," said Assistant District Attorney Samuel Foley, "but so far Monteforte has been the only one apprehended. Detectives McCartny and McCoy deserve recognition for the investigations they have made for the District Attorney and the Fire Marshal's offices. The County Court will be asked to set as early a date for Monteforte's trial as feasible. He will come up for pleading on Monday."

THONET IS CONVICTED UNDER THE MANN ACT

Alfred A. Thonet Jr., a dealer in antiques, was convicted yesterday by a jury before Federal Judge Thomas of violating the Mann act. He was indicted on three counts but he was convicted on only the count charging that he transported to Canada last June Sarah Lillian Moore, who was employed by the defendant as stenographer and secretary, a place she obtained shortly after being graduated from high school.

Miss Moore testified on Thursday. She said Thonet made a practice of keeping her in his office until late, took her out to dinners, and then invited her to join him on a trip. She said the trip ended in a hunting lodge in Canada.

She explained her acceptance of Thonet's invitation by saying he had promised to marry her and she joined him in signing a paper which she believed made them man and wife. He brought her back to this city, she said, gave her $5 and bade her good-bye. She returned to her home in West Englewood, N. J., and finally decided to tell her story to United States Attorney Tuttle.

The sentence will be pronounced Wednesday. The maximum is imprisonment for five years. Thonet was released pending the sentence under $10,000 bail.

Thonet says he is the great grandson of Michael T. Thonet, who is said to have started an antique business in 1742. He was held in $5,000 bail two weeks ago in a magistrate's court to answer a complaint of grand larceny made by Mrs. Marthe Thors, a customer, of 260 West End Avenue.

The day before this charge was made Thonet began suit in the Supreme Court for $5,000,000 damages against Thonet Brothers, Inc.; Thonet, Wanner Company, and other antique dealers whom he charged with trying to drive him out of business. His complaint alleged that his father established the business here in 1888, that the defendants deprived him of the business and also of another which he established in 1927. He said the name "Thonet" had a value of $26,000,000.

BISHOP ANDERSON ILL.

Head of Episcopal Church in America Has Heart Disease.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 (AP).—The Most Rev. Charles Palmerston Anderson, Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church in America, lay dangerously ill after a heart attack at his home tonight. For some time it has been known that his heart was not strong.

Friends suggested the increased burden of duties undertaken by Bishop Anderson after his election as head of his Church last November might have proved too great a strain. He returned from an Eastern trip last week, apparently in good health. On Tuesday he attended a conference of the Chicago Episcopal Diocesan Council and complained of illness. His physician ordered him to bed. Today his condition became more serious.

DE FOREST COMPANY SUES.

Radio Patent Infringement Charged in Delaware Action.

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 24 (AP).—The De Forest Radio Company brought suit in the Federal District Court today against the Kenrad Tube and Lamp Corporation, charging infringement of patent on an improvement in grid-making machines.

A permanent injunction restraining use of the device, also an accounting and damages are asked for. Both litigants are Delaware corporations.

Mercury at 12 Gives City a Shivery Morning, But Then Rises and Today Will Be Warmer

New Yorkers stepping out of their homes for the dash to the office yesterday morning shivered in a biting wind and a temperature of 12 degrees above zero, twenty points below freezing and within two points of the record for this Winter, set at 7:30 A. M. on Jan. 19.

The mercury started its drop on Thursday afternoon and had fallen to 17 degrees at midnight. It dropped point by point until 6 A. M. yesterday when it hit the low of 12 degrees. There it remained for two hours, but then it climbed with the sun. By noon it had reached 21 degrees and at 3:45 P. M. it had touched 29.

True to the weather man's prediction it moved upward through the night. His forecast for today is cloudy and warmer and for tomorrow fair and colder.

In Denville, N. J., The Associated Press reported the death of Julius Herschmann, 35 years old, a victim of the frost. He was found dead in his bed in a cottage where he lived alone. He was fully clothed and had the blankets drawn over his head.

In Western New York there was a heavy snowfall early yesterday morning, but when the sun came out it ended. Residents of Cortland, N. Y., awoke to find a heavy frost, the mercury registering 4 below zero, while in Springfield, Mass., the official thermometer was 8 below.

On the Shrewsbury River in New Jersey, where ice has not yet locked the waters, the eel fishermen are reaping a harvest. More than fifteen tons, a Winter record, have been taken. Usually at this time of the year most of the fishing must be done through holes in the ice and the catch is not nearly so plentiful.

BILL WOULD ALLOW HIGHER APARTMENTS

CHIEFLY IN WIDE STREETS

Sanction for Towers Upon Plots of 15,000 Square Feet Proposed—Hilly Drafting Amendments.

More liberal provisions regarding height limits for apartment houses, particularly those constructed on streets more than 100 feet wide, will be included in proposed amendments to the multiple dwelling bill being drafted by Arthur J. W. Hilly, Corporation Counsel, for presentation to the State Legislature in accordance with recommendations of the committee named by Mayor Walker to study revision of the statute.

Meeting yesterday at City Hall, members of the committee were practically unanimous in the opinion that the high cost of land in Manhattan made less stringent regulation of height desirable. Final action on the question will be taken on Monday, when a revised subcommittee report will be presented.

A preliminary report yesterday declared that in streets such as Park Avenue, considerably more than 100 feet wide, height restrictions applying to streets 100 feet wide worked a hardship, and that buildings on these thoroughfares should be permitted to go up one and three-quarters times the full width of street, plus three feet, before setback. A letter from Bing & Bing, builders, protesting against the present restrictions, was read, and William F. Deegan, Tenement House Commissioner, said he favored the change, which again would give Park Avenue, for example, a limit of about 210 feet before setback instead of 178 feet.

The subcommittee recommended that towers be permitted on plots of 15,000 square feet, or half the size specified in the multiple dwelling law, and approved smaller courts for narrow lots.

When the subcommittee recommended that the multiple dwelling law cover such questions rather than the provisions of the zoning law, considerable sentiment in favor of a return to the zoning law in place of the multiple dwelling law appeared, and the whole report was referred back to the group for a more detailed decision.

The committee approved a recommendation of the Tenement House Department that cellar rooms in old-law tenements must be at least 7½ feet high and favored requiring adequate skylights or other light and air facilities for stair halls.

Further extension of time for carrying out of apartment plans filed just before the multiple dwelling law went into effect was recommended, allowing three years from the time of filing plans for the construction work to reach the second tier of beams and four years for completion of the building.

The committee voted to recommend the removal of all vertical ladder fire-escapes in the city within a year from the time of passage of the amendment on the ground that such fire-escapes constitute a menace to life. After such a change had been approved, however, several members objected on the ground that the amendment would entail heavy expense on the owners of old apartments. Commissioner Deegan announced that he would confer with Mayor Walker and the Fire Department before the amendment was drafted.

Lengthy discussion of the proposal for allowing licensed engineers, as well as registered architects, to file plans for apartments ended with the appointment of a committee to draft an amendment to be voted on at the next conference.

Lawes to Talk on Prison Life.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing prison will be heard at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon over WNYC as he addresses a gathering at the auditorium of the National Democratic Club, New York, on "Life and Death in Prison." The lecture is one of the forum series being conducted by the club. Judge Cornelius F. Collins will introduce Mr. Lawes.

RESCUERS TAKE 100 OUT OF FLOOD AREA

NEW WABASH JAMS FEARED

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 24 (AP).—Pushing through the ice-locked overflow with the aid of pick axe and pole, rescue boats tonight had brought to safety upward of 100 persons from the flooded Big Lake area in Northeastern Arkansas, while airplanes began a mission of mercy from the air.

Boats operating under the direction of Walter Over, field representative of the Red Cross, and J. G. Little, chairman of the Mississippi County relief committee, brought more than fifty persons, many of them women and children, to the Roseland ditch field base this afternoon. Overnight rescues and the number previously ferried to safety increased the total rescued to about 100.

Many of those brought out of the flood today were reported destitute. Many showed the effects of several days in their farm homes with meager supplies of food and fuel, but none was ill.

After the issuance of emergency supplies at the Roseland base they were taken to Dell and Manila, nearby towns, where temporary refugee quarters have been established in vacant buildings, in tents and box cars.

Rise in Overflow Noted.

It was estimated that of the flooded lowlands in Mississippi County alone 40,000 acres are farm land. The flood extends north into Dunklin County, Mo., and is moving southward into Poinsett County.

A slight rise was noted today in the overflow in Mississippi County. This is attributed to the spread of water coming from breaks in the St. Francis River levee near Holcomb, Mo., and joining with water pouring through gaps in the Big Lake Levee.

Relief work is being directed by the American Red Cross in cooperation with local committees. Headquarters have been established in Blytheville with a field base at Roseland.

Relief Reaches Indiana Sufferers.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 24 (AP).—Aircraft was used again today to aid the flood-bound districts along the banks of the Wabash River. Planes of the 113th Observation Squadron of the Indiana National Guard carried supplies to persons who have for days been marooned in homes made inaccessible by flood waters.

Relief has been sent to nearly every affected community, including Griffin, Ind., Red Cross officials said today, and there remain only a few isolated spots still in need of assistance. One of these is a small patch of ground lying along the Gibson-Pike County boundary line adjacent to the Wabash River. Airplanes will be sent to this district tomorrow to drop food and clothing.

The extreme cold weather has created a fear that menacing ice gorges may form in the Wabash River, which has not yet fallen to normal stages. Word was received at Mount Carmel, Ill., that an ice jam was forming at Shawnee Town, Ill., and causing a new flood further up stream.

Government engineers were notified and requested to investigate. An ice jam in the Wabash near Riverton, Ind., also is receiving the attention of the engineers.

GUGGENHEIM BRIDAL ANNULLED BY COURT

Gorman, Son of Baggage Master, Never Lived With Wife, It Is Said at Closed Hearing.

DECREE NOT YET SIGNED

Justice to Sift Report of $50,000 Paid by Parents of Former Natalie Guggenheim for Settlement.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser admitted today that he had granted an annulment of the marriage of Natalie Guggenheim Gorman, daughter of Edmond A. Guggenheim, wealthy copper man, and Tom Gorman, son of a baggage master of Manhasset, L. I. The annulment, Justice Morschauser said, was granted last Tuesday after a hearing in his chambers, when it was established that Gorman had never lived with his wife. The decree has not yet been signed, however.

Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for the Guggenheims, denied reports that they had paid Gorman between $50,000 and $75,000 as settlement for an alienation suit he had brought, papers for which had not yet been filed, with the understanding that he would consent to the annulment. When Justice Morschauser was questioned about this alleged settlement, he replied:

"I know nothing about it. But I am going to look carefully into the report before I sign a decree annulling the marriage."

Miss Guggenheim and Gorman were secretly married on April 16, 1929, in All Saints, Protestant Episcopal Church at Great Neck, L. I. At the time she gave her age as 19. In the application for the annulment, however, it was shown that Miss Guggenheim was not 18 years old at the time she was married. The Guggenheims are said to have opposed the marriage on religious grounds.

The annulment proceedings last Tuesday were held at 5:30 P. M., after almost every one had left the court house. As late as yesterday no record of the hearing had been made either on the calendar or in the book, where trials and witnesses are usually recorded. Those present at the proceedings according to Justice Morschauser, were Miss Guggenheim; her guardian ad litem, Joseph M. Holzworth of Port Chester; her counsel, Mr. Davis, and Gorman and his attorney, Joseph O'Connell of Manhasset. Miss Guggenheim's parents are in Florida.

'AERO CLINIC' SURGEON OPERATES IN YUCATAN

MERIDA, Yucatan, Jan. 24 (AP).—Dr. Fred H. Albee, American orthopedic surgeon, tonight performed a bone operation upon a Yucatan workman as the first professional act of the Aero-Medical Clinic en route through eleven Central and South American countries to carry reports of late scientific and medical developments.

The flying clinic, made up of five American physicians, arrived here from Miami and Havana at 4:55 P. M. in two twin-motored amphibians of the Pan-American Airways, Inc.

The physicians, en route to the Pan-American Medical Association's Panama City Convention, Jan. 30, will leave here tomorrow for Belize, British Honduras, and San Lorenzo, Honduras. Their eighteen-day trip calls for 6,808 miles of travel.

Dr. Albee, consultant for bone surgery at the Pan-American Hospital, New York City, demonstrated tonight his power-driven automatic machinery for making inlays, dowels and screws of living bone for use in orthopedic operations.

The operation was performed in the presence of a number of Yucatan physicians and surgeons who will be unable to attend the Pan-American Association's Convention.

In addition to the practical clinic, other members of the flying physicians' party entered into a general conference with the Yucatan professional men. Discussions of recent developments of their branch of science were portrayed in round-table fashion by the other four Americans.

Dr. William Sharpe, president of the Broad Street and Pan-American Hospital, New York City, stressed the need of greater coordination of effort and study between professional men of the North, South and Central Americas.

He pointed to the benefit to be derived by the South and Central Americans from use of North American as well as French methods of training. The Latins, he asserted, practice largely the methods of what is known as the French school, studying from French texts and after French practitioners.

UPHOLD IMMIGRATION OF MEXICAN LABOR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP).—The weight of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States was added to the protest of the Southwest against restriction of Western Hemisphere immigration in testimony today before the House Immigration Committee.

After Harry Chandler, publisher of The Los Angeles Times, had outlined the disadvantages he believed would result from application of a quota limitation to Mexican immigration, three members of the chamber's special committee on immigration supported his stand.

Arthur S. Bent, Los Angeles public works contractor; T. Chauncey Brewer, Boston lawyer; E. G. Peterson, president of the Utah Agricultural College, said they believed such restrictions were not desirable.

Mr. Bent and Mr. Peterson contended that the agricultural industry of the Southwest had been built up with Mexican labor and that a continued supply of that labor was essential. They said the Mexican laborers generally speaking were of a docile nature, industrious and dependable, did work that was unwelcome to the average American laborer and created no social problem.

Will Rogers Is Impressed With Speed of British Justice

LONDON, England, Jan. 24.—Well, the conference didn't do anything today as usual, but there was a famous case being tried where a fellow had swindled through fake stock transactions the people out of ten million dollars. They just give him fourteen years so fast that it took all the Americans' breath away and all they have talked about today is English justice compared to ours. It's the consensus of opinion of all of them here that if it had been at home he would have gone into vaudeville or the Senate.

None of that habus corpusing and suspended sentences or appealing it when you commit a crime over here. You just wake up surrounded by a small space. Our delegation ought to be over here studying British justice. Our battleships are not harming us near as much as court delays, corruption and shyster lawyers.

Went to his home last night and had a two hour visit with the great Bernard Shaw and for once in my life I knew enough to keep still and he was going great. I invited him to America and he is coming as soon as I come home and civilize 'em.

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

CLEARED $698,000 IN KOLSTER STOCK

Ellery W. Stone, President of Radio Company, Testifies at Market Rigging Inquiry.

HAS ONLY 101 SHARES LEFT

Says He Traded Two Years in Open Market, Never Sold Short and Was in No Pools.

Ellery W. Stone, president of the Kolster Radio Corporation and one of its three receivers appointed in Newark on Tuesday by Alonzo Church, vice chancellor, testified yesterday that between July, 1927, and June, 1929, he had bought and sold Kolster stock to an aggregate of 14,000 shares at a profit of $698,000. He said his present holdings were 101 shares.

The testimony was given at a hearing before John A. Bernhard, Newark attorney, who on Wednesday was appointed by Vice Chancellor Church a special master to investigate charges that some one had "rigged the market" in the sale of the Kolster stock. The charge was made in open court on Tuesday by Albert Schwartz, Paterson lawyer, on his own behalf as a holder of 400 shares. Mr. Schwartz said that the receivers ought to investigate the matter.

The hearings will continue Monday in Mr. Bernhard's office, when Rudolph Spreckels of California, one of the biggest stockholders, will be heard.

Mr. Stone said that he had never participated in any manipulation of Kolster stock, but had done all his trading in the open market. He had never sold any stock short, and knew of no Kolster officer who had. He said he had never participated in any pool, and knew of no such pool besides what he had read of in the newspapers.

"I made all my purchases in the open market, hoping to make a profit as I had previously done, and having in mind," he said, "the dizzy heights to which stock of the Radio Corporation of America was then soaring."

Mr. Stone cited an instance of the purchase of Kolster stock made by him at $94 a share, about a year ago, when the book value was $12 and the earning power $10. He said he did not know at the time that the company was operating at a loss. He said it was not until September, 1929, that a financial statement brought out this fact.

"Without the stock market crash," Mr. Stone added, "I believe we would still have had the same bad conditions now prevailing in the radio business, because of the enormous overproduction throughout the radio industry, which was inspired by acute competition."

In September it became apparent that trouble might be expected from price cutting all over the country, the witness said, adding that the company felt it would be better to curb production than to engage in a "mad race for excessive production." After September he had "exercised the most scrupulous care in refusing to advise any one with respect to buying Kolster stock." He insisted he was still "most optimistic" on the future of the Kolster company.

Earlier in the examination Henry C. Lang, secretary and treasurer of the company, said that 825,829 shares of Kolster stock were outstanding, all of which had been listed on the New York Stock Exchange. He added that none of it ever had been offered to brokers for underwriting and that no information regarding the company's financial affairs had been given out, except as required by the Exchange, besides the usual periodical statements to the leading mercantile agencies.

Mr. Bernhard said every stockholder would get an opportunity to be heard on how he acquired his shares.

The highest point at which Kolster stock sold on the market was in 1928, when it reached 95⅞. Mr. Stone testified. It is now at 2¼. A large plant of the company in Newark is idle. There is another large plant in Toronto, Canada.

REBELS MARCH ON HUPEH.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 24.—The situation in Central China is further entangled by the official admission that Feng Yu-hsiang's armies have re-emerged from Shensi and are marching upon Hupeh Province, via Siangyang, and that Fang Chen-wu is already occupying the southwest part of Honan.

Some of the government troops who were guarding the Peking-Hankow Railway have been shifted westward to the Nanyang area to meet the new menace. The report has now been verified that Tang Sheng-chi has not departed for Japan, but is still commanding part of the rebellious troops in Honan.

WOULD CALL CONFERENCE

CLEAN-UP MOVE PRAISED

Association Declares, However, That Public Must Be Impressed Officials 'Mean Business.'

A uniform policy of magistrates in dealing with violators of the street litter and sanitary ordinances is urged by the Merchants Association in a letter made public yesterday. The letter asked Sanitation Commissioner Schroeder to request Chief Magistrate McAdoo to call a meeting of magistrates and representatives of the Police and Sanitation Departments and civic bodies to decide on such a policy.

The letter congratulated the commissioner on his recently announced program for making New York City spotless. The association suggested, however, that the help of a considerable part of the public could not be obtained unless impressive methods were used at the outset of his campaign. It pointed out that it had been the practice of several magistrates to discharge violators of the anti-litter ordinances, and suggested that the full force of the magisterial power should be invoked in the clean-up campaign.

The Merchants' Association wrote:

"The crux of the whole situation is public carelessness and thoughtlessness. A campaign such as you propose in the elementary schools coupled with the Merchants Association's own campaign in the high schools should be effective.

"For dealing with the older generation, however—a generation whose habits are well fixed—it seems to us that some sterner means are necessary. Certainly at the outset of any effort to make New York a really clean city a method must be found to bring the avoidable causes of street litter sharply to the attention of the general public and of impressing on offenders above the school age that you mean business.

"In this connection the adoption of an appropriate policy by city magistrates is essential. There has been for many years no settled policy on the part of magistrates in dealing with violations of ordinances relating to the streets. Some magistrates have taken the ordinances seriously and have imposed appropriate fines on offenders; others have taken the attitude that the matter was one to be dealt with lightly. Thousands who have been served with summonses by the police have been turned out of court with scarcely a reprimand. These wholesale discharges have tended to discourage effective police action and to encourage carelessness on the part of the public."

Suggesting the conference to frame a policy, the letter said:

"Such a meeting would offer the opportunity to work out a general policy for the treatment of offenses against the ordinances—such a policy as would tend to impress strongly on the public the fact that a real campaign of city cleanliness is under way. We believe the civic organizations attending would be able to give the magistrates full assurances of their backing in a program which might be adopted. If you deem it advisable to ask for a conference of the sort we have suggested, we will be glad to give our support to your request and give our aid in bringing about a successful outcome."

ENGINEERS' BANK WILL BE ABSORBED

CLEVELAND, Jan. 24.—Announcement today that the Citizens Bank and Trust Company is being organized and is arranging to purchase the Engineers' National Bank, the Nottingham Savings and Banking Company and the Guaranty State Savings and Loan Company not only heightens reports that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is relinquishing its active banking connections, but cuts Cleveland's national banks down to two.

At one time there were fourteen national banks here. Now there will be only two—the Central United National Bank and the National City Bank.

Formation of the Citizens Bank and Trust Company has been in process for several months under the guiding efforts of C. Sterling Smith, executive vice president of the Engineers' National Bank, who will head the new bank. The latter will have capital and surplus of $3,000,000, approximately $23,000,000 of rescources, and in addition will have an affiliate, the Citizens Securities Corporation, with $1,000,000. This company will take over the bond business of the bank.

Ownership of the new bank will be vested in Cleveland business men and customers of the institution and will not be in the hands of any single organization. It will continue to receive, however, the entire business and loyal support of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and its members.

Capital of the bank will consist of 80,000 shares, $25 par stock, and carry with its 40,000 no-par shares of the securities company. Each bank share will carry an endorsement representing beneficial interest in the capital stock of the securities company.

Directors of the Engineers and the Nottingham banks have ratified the proposed consolidation, and stockholders of the Guaranty State Savings and Loan Company on Feb. 1 will have an opportunity of ratifying the action of their directors. Former Judge S. S. Ford is president of the Guaranty State.

AMERICA'S GROWTH AMAZES KAROLYI

PRAISES SOCIAL PROGRESS

Count Michael Karolyi, who is on a lecture tour in this country, returned to New York yesterday from a visit to New England and the Middle West filled with enthusiasm for America and things American.

He complained, however, that his Hungarian countrymen residing in the United States were not sufficiently awake to the spirit of America and were inclined too much to live in the narrower traditions of their homeland.

"I must say that I have been tremendously impressed with America after several years' absence," Count Karolyi said. "The growth and progress of the country are truly bewildering. From my observation, patriotism here means prosperity, prosperity for the greatest possible number. In Hungary, patriotism means property. Here everybody wants prosperity not only for himself but also for his neighbor. In Hungary the land-owning class in control interprets everything in terms of its own interests."

Criticizes Countrymen Here.

Count Karolyi said that from his contact with Hungarians on his trip he has been forced to conclude that "they are so crushed by memories of their home feudilism that they are little, if at all, aware of the meaning of America."

"My countrymen here harp too much on the need of upsetting the Trianon treaty as a means of Hungary's salvation and do not think sufficiently in terms of all Europe, as do the Americans in terms of all America," Count Karolyi asserted. "The Hungarians here, like those in Hungary, cultivate a mystic faith in their narrow nationalism rather than grasp the broader outlines of a new world. If they would only take a lesson from the forty-eight American States, united by one political and economic bond, and apply this lesson to Hungary's problem, they would abandon all thought of intransigeance and seek an understanding between Hungary and her neighbors for the purpose of creating a new, united organism capable of life and achievement. Instead, all one hears from the present rulers of Hungary is, 'No, no, never,' and, to my great regret, I found this rather futile attitude reflected in the minds and hearts of many of my countrymen here."

Finds Progress Amazing.

Count Karolyi said that "America is anything but uninteresting" and that the people of this country seem to be working out the social and economic problems in their own, original way.

"Of course, it is difficult to say where the cult of prosperity will lead you," he said, "and what may be the ultimate result of your constant raising of the standard of living, but no one can say that this is not a place where things—interesting, fascinating, inspiring things — are not being done."

Count Karolyi said he was amazed, among other things, by the growth of American cities.

"Even the smallest of your towns seem to have the bustle and life of Paris so far as traffic is concerned," he said.

The Count visited Oberlin, Cleveland, Lorraine and Akron, in Ohio; Pittsburgh, and Worcester, Mass. Tonight he will go to Trenton and tomorrow he will speak in the Central Opera House in this city. On Monday he will go to Bridgeport. Two meetings in Boston and meetings in Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis and Detroit are also on his schedule.

HOUSE VOTES BOARD ON PUBLIC DOMAIN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—An administration proposal for a commission of twenty-five to study the conservation and administration of the public domain was passed in the House today by a vote of 241 to 106 after a two-day debate. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Minority leaders attacked the measure as "simply creating another commission to usurp the constitutional functions of the legislative branch of the government." The division was on party lines, with a few Democrats from the Western States voting with Republicans for the commission.

Democrats criticizing the President for his appointment of commissions declared today that he had appointed fourteen. These, they asserted, include only commissions named directly by the President and not those organized on his suggestion, such as the committee of business men headed by Julius H. Barnes.

The commissions Mr. Hoover has already named include the Federal Farm Board, Interoceanic Canal Board, National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement, National Negro Memorial Commission, San Francisco Bridge Commission, Committee to Coordinate Veterans' Activities, Yellowstone National Park Boundary Commission, Committee on Child Health and Protection, Advisory Committee on Illiteracy, Commission on Conservation and Administration of the Public Domain (awaiting approval by the Senate), commission to attend the 1,000th anniversary of the Althing in Iceland, commission to the London Naval Arms Conference, Research Committee on Social Trends and the California Water Commission.

Captains of the thirty-two teams competing in the fourteen-day Y. M. C. A. campaign for $387,777, reported at their meeting yesterday in the Hotel Commodore, a total of $20,068 for the day, bringing the total thus far collected to $126,500. William Green, captain of the West Twenty-third Street branch, reported the most cash for the day, $2,495, and the Bowery Branch team, with $14,275, was reported to be the leading team in funds collected.

BRITONS URGE END OF BLASPHEMY LAW

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Political parties divided in the House of Commons today over a new bill which seeks to lay down that no criminal proceedings shall be instituted against schism, heresy, blasphemy, blasphemous libel or atheism.

Ernest Thurtle, a Laborite, the son-in-law of George Lansbury, First Commissioner of Works in the MacDonald government, proposed the measure. Its chief opponent was J. A. Lovat-Fraser, a Labor barrister and Member of Parliament.

Mr. Thurtle said the Bishop of Birmingham, Dr. Ernest William Barnes, and many of his modernist colleagues would be behind prison bars if existing blasphemy laws were enforced.

"In olden days," said Mr. Thurtle, "the Quakers were jailed or whipped for blasphemy. Since then it has been laid down that more importance is to be attached to the manner than the matter of an attack on religion."

Sir Arthur Keith, H. G. Wells, Bertrand Russell and Aldous Huxley, added Mr. Thurtle, can attack the Christian religion without danger of being prosecuted, although a poor man expressing the same points of view more bluntly and candidly is liable to fine and imprisonment.

The Rev. Mr. R. Sorensen, a Laborite, supporting Mr. Thurtle, said:

"For criticising religion flippantly H. G. Wells ought to have six months in jail. In one of his novels herefers to the Almighty as 'Mr. G.' Bernard Shaw, too, ought to have 'done time' for some of the things he has written."

Mr. Fraser said the bill asked the Commons to legalize what had been defined as "scoffingly and irreverently ridiculous or impunging the doctrines of the Christian faith" and Edward Marjoribanks, a Conservative, contended that if the bill were passed the Christian religion would be unprotected.

In the sparsely attended House a second reading of the bill was carried by 131 to 77 votes.

The last prosecution for blasphemy here was against a man named Gott who was thrice imprisoned, in 1917, 1920 and 1921.

The Daily News, Liberal, will say editorially tomorrow: "The existing blasphemy laws are archaic and indefensible. They have entirely outlived public opinion and lag so far behind modern thought as to bring the whole law into contempt."

The Daily News, however, considers that the new bill may be too sweeping.

GOV. ROOSEVELT BACKS DEAN MOON MEMORIAL

Endorses Suggestion That Louis Marshall Forestry Building Honor School Head.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Governor Roosevelt today gave his hearty endorsement to a suggestion that a room or hall in the proposed Louis Marshall building at the State School of Forestry at Syracuse be set aside in memory of Dean Franklin Moon, for many years head of the forestry school.

Governor Roosevelt recommended in the Executive budget that $600,000 be appropriated from the $10,000,000 public works bond issue for the erection of a building at the forestry school to be named in memory of Mr. Marshall, for many years a trustee of the school and long active in conservation work.

"If legislative approval is given to the appropriation of $600,000 for the erection of a new building at the State School of Forestry at Syracuse, this building to be named in memory of the late Mr. Louis Marshall, it has been suggested that a hall, or room, or some other portion of the new building be named in honor of the late Dean Franklin Moon, who was for many years largely responsible for the splendid growth of the School of Forestry," said the Governor.

"In this suggestion I heartily concur, and am assured that the trustees of the State School of Forestry are also in agreement with the thought."

DECRIES WAR'S BRUTALITY.

MUNICH, Jan. 24.—Cardinal Michael Faulhaber addressed his New Year's greetings to the Bavarian infantry regiment with which he served one year forty years ago. After praising the soldiers' merit, manly courage and good fellowship, and humorously recalling the drill sergeant's grimness, the Cardinal concluded:

"Today I am for peace, because, in my opinion, it is inhuman to conduct war with gas clouds which extinguish all personal bravery and with aerial poison bombs which within a few hours destroy all life from sucklings to aged people."

INTERNAL REVENUE ROSE $189,264,985

GREATEST GAIN IN INCOMES

Treasury Surplus May Reach $200,000,000, Allowing for 1 Per Cent Tax Cut.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Collections of internal revenue for the first six months of the fiscal year totaled $1,503,451,748.55, or $189,264,985.46 more than during the similar period of a year ago, according to figures given out today by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The gain was chiefly the result of the great increase in taxes on personal incomes, which were swelled by profits taken out of the stock market in the calendar year 1928, and at $559,539,113.81 were $142,591,151.82 in excess of taxes from the same source in the first six months of the fiscal year 1929.

All classes of revenue, when grouped, however, were larger in the six months of the current fiscal year, corporation income taxes at $625,063,813.98 running $28,940,178.41 ahead of the six months of 1929, and miscellaneous taxes at $318,848,820.76 being $17,733,655.23 greater.

The stock market activities were in considerable measure responsible for the increase in miscellaneous taxes, the taxes on capital stock sales and transfers, at $26,067,758.44 for the six months, exceeding those of the same months of the previous year by $10,244,652.98. Taxes on cigarettes for the six months, at $181,536,007.49, were $15,171,693.92 heavier than in 1929.

Budget Surplus Probable.

The heavy taxes collected during the first six months of the current fiscal year have apparently assured a comfortable budget surplus at the close of the fiscal year, even after the reduction of 1 per cent in the normal tax, effective Jan. 1.

The effect of the October-November stock market slump and the recession in business activity which followed it, on the tax collections for the remainder of the current fiscal year cannot be accurately calculated until the first quarterly payment of income taxes is made on March 15. That it will result in a very appreciable decrease in the taxes collected, especially on individual incomes reported on the basis of incomes received in the calendar year 1929, is accepted, but it is felt nevertheless that the Treasury budget surplus at the end of the fiscal year may go as high as $200,000,000.

Total revenues for the first six months of the fiscal years 1929 and 1930 are given as follow:

A summary of income tax collections for the September and December quarters in the fiscal years 1929 and 1930, in which taxes paid by corporations and individuals, follows:

TUBERCULOSIS WORK IN CITY IS PRAISED

National Conference Speakers Say Treatment Is Applied Here Earlier Than in Other Sections.

New York City's handling of tuberculosis cases was praised by members of the executive committee of the National Conference of Tuberculosis Executives in session yesterday at the Hotel Astor.

While Harry L. Hopkins, president of the conference and chairman of its executive committee, said that Health Commissioner Shirley W. Wynne had informed him that 80 per cent of the tuberculosis cases entering the thirty-four clinics here are advanced, members of the group said they believed that in other sections of the country conditions were even less favorable.

The more favorable conditions here were explained as due to the fact that greater facilities for handling the disease reduced the number of advanced cases. But Mr. Hopkins said that Dr. Wynne had told him that the city is greatly under-financed in its tuberculosis clinical facilities.

D. W. SHRINER IS JAILED.

Son of Candy Man Found in Contempt for Failure to Pay Alimony.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 24.—Donald W. Shriner, 35 years old, son of J. C. Shriner, president of a candy distributing company, was locked up in Westchester county jail this afternoon for contempt of court on an order signed by Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor Jr. The order resulted from Shriner's failure to pay $2,345 in back alimony at the rate of $135 weekly, and counsel fees of $1,650, plus $10 costs. The alimony had been fixed by Justice Arthur S. Tompkins on Dec. 4 in the separation action of his wife, Mrs. Virginia J. Shriner of New Rochelle.

Diana Gray, New York chorus girl, accompanied young Shriner to the Sheriff's office, where the commitment papers were filed. Miss Gray was named in Mrs. Shriner's complaint as Shriner's companion in New York and on several trips.

Shriner is a member of the Bonnie Briar Golf Club and the Wykagyl Country Club. He is treasurer of the J. C. Shriner Company of 153 Varick Street, New York.

KWKH License for 30 Days On Pledge to Omit 'Cuss Words'

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The Federal Radio Commission today granted a probationary license for thirty days from Jan. 31 to broadcasting Station KWKH, at Shreveport, La., owned by W. K. Henderson, instead of a ninety-day license granted to other stations.

Senator Dill had complained that this station used improper language. The commission is to write Mr. Henderson that the license is renewed on the assumption that he will keep his promise to refrain from improper language on the air.

Oltarsch Replies Housing Deal Is Not Directly With Government, but Has Its Backing.

The Rumanian Legation in Washington denied yesterday the published statement of David M. Oltarsch, Inc., New York construction engineers, of 36 West Forty-fourth Street, that it holds a contract with the Rumanian Government for $100,000,000 for the construction of public buildings and homes for public employes in Bucharest and other Rumanian cities.

Announcement that such a contract by the firm and two associates, one a German organization, was signed on Jan. 8 was made Thursday by David M. Oltarsch in behalf of his company.

Following is the statement issued by the Rumanian Legation.

"In accordance with instructions received from the Rumanian Government, the Rumanian Legation in Washington is authorized to state that the information published in some American newspapers that the firm of David M. Oltarsch, Inc., New York construction engineers, had obtained a contract from the Rumanian Government to build houses for government employes in Bucharest and elsewhere in Rumania, to cost $100,000,000, is devoid of foundation."

When told of this statement last night Mr. Oltarsch said that technically the denial is correct, as the contract in question is not directly with the Rumanian Government but with the Bank des Salaries Publics of Bucharest, set up by agreement with the government to promote an finance the housing project.

"This contract was signed after negotiations by my associates and myself with Premier Maniu and other members of the Rumanian Government and has their full approval, however," Mr. Oltarsch said.

"The contract was signed only after the government obligated itself to pass all enabling legislation for the creation of the bank and the execution of the housing project. To all intents and purposes the contract is with the government, although technically it is the newly created bank with whom the contract is signed."

GROUP AIDING WORKERS TO FILL GERARD'S PLACE

Organizer Says He Has Talked to Former Head and Still Does Not Know Why He Quit.

The directors of the National Association for Middle-Aaged Employes will meet early next week to choose a new president to replace James W. Gerard, who resigned Thursday after holding the position only two weeks, William Henry Roberts, organizer and executive director of the association, announced yesterday. Mr. Roberts said he had been in touch with Mr. Gerard, but still did not know his reason for resigning.

Peter Grimm, president of the Real Estate Board of New York and a member of the business men's committee of the association, denied reports that he had said Mr. Gerard resigned because of "improper management" of the association, and that certain members of the committee would meet next week to reorganize the management. Mr. Grimm said he was conferring with Victor A. Lersner, president of the Bowery Savings Bank, and an incorporator of the association, and that they might have a statement to make soon.

Herman A. Metz, president of the General Dyestuffs Corporation and a member of the business men's committee, who said, as did some other members of the committee, that he joined because of the list of prominent names and knew little of the organization's work, declared that he believed the organization to be sound and valuable, but that he intended to look into it further and find whether it was simply an "organization to collect money."

The estate was reduced by debts of $29,272 and other deductions, the debts consisting mainly of loans by brokers. She had jewelry worth $2,170, while the bulk of the estate consisted of securities appraised at $110,576.

CITY PLAN ADOPTED FOR QUEENS BRIDGE

REJECTS ALTERNATIVE IDEA

After three years of controversy the Board of Estimate settled yesterday a dispute over the method by which additional traffic approaches are to be provided at the Manhattan side of the Queensboro Bridge by approving the plan submitted by Albert Goldman, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, and rejecting an alternate plan proposed by realty operators.

The city plans to raise the grade of Fifty-eighth Street between Second Avenue and a point 260 feet west of First Avenue, creating a new roadway to connect with the upper deck bridge roadway by viaduct. The plan involves raising the street levels to a maximum of seven feet, which will damage some new apartment houses along the route.

David Tishman of the Tishman Realty and Construction Company, Inc., and Sydney Crystal of Crystal & Crystal, representing the real estate men, submitted an alternate plan for widening Second Avenue on its eas side to provide a five-land roadway and to give the bridge approach six entrances instead of two, as in the city plan. James Welsch, engineer for the realty interests, said their plan would be less expensive if the cost of condemnation were not included.

Mr. Goldman said that the last traffic count on the bridge showed that 92,000 cars used it in a day, and stressed the urgency of immediate relief on the Manhattan side. Colonel Ray Howe of the Queens Chamber of Commerce and Jabez Dunningham of Queens made similar statements in approving the city plan. Among the other proponents of Mr. Goldman's plan were the Merchants Association, the Fifth Avenue Association and the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce.

After city engineers from the Mayor's office and the Department of Finance had told Mayor Walker that the city's plan was far better and less costly than the suggested alternative, the Mayor called for a resolution approving the Goldman plan. It was passed with the provision that the city vest title in the required property on Feb. 15:

FINANCIAL MARKETS

In the matter of actual transactions yesterday's stock market was the largest of the present month to date; its course was also upward. There was evidence again that purchases to close out speculative commitments for the decline had an essential hand in the day's movement. In several stocks where this kind of buying appeared to be an active influence, prices went up 6 to 8 points; but in all such instances a considerable part of the advance was lost in the later market. Nevertheless, and notwithstanding the relative slowness of the improvement elsewhere, the day's trend of prices was again positively upward.

Railway shares on the Stock Exchange had a part in yesterday's advance, and this was in spite of a batch of unfavorable earnings statements for December. While some of the companies made a better showing, others reported decrease from the last month of 1928 ranging from 20 to 50 per cent. But December of 1928 was a month which made comparison exacting. Its net operating railway revenue for the month as a whole was 54 per cent above the preceding year.

Both the money market and the sterling market were motionless. Sterling closed virtually at the low level of the week. The Bank of England took in nearly $1,000,000 more gold; all of it was this time described as foreign gold coin, which has of late been a rather unusual form of purchase for that bank. The origin of this particular consignment was not stated. When the United States was exporting gold freely, even in such years as 1927 and 1919, it was apt to send out a good deal of American coin, but usually such remittance of other than bullion or British coin to London has occurred only when exchange was running heavily in London's favor. Silver bullion declined ⅛ penny further at London yesterday; it is now only ¼ penny above the lowest.

Week-end surveys of the condition of mercantile trade are somewhat guarded. Bradstreet reports that while "retail trade, aided by reduction sales, shows a slight gain," wholesale and jobbing trade "has not expanded much on balance." It contrasts the improvement in steel and iron output with cotton manufacture, which "still runs under close curtailment." Dun finds the downward trend of prices a retarding influence. It reports that thirty-one out of fifty changes for the week in the Dun's Review list of commodities were reductions, and believes that, as a result of this rather general trend, purchases which might have been made by merchants under other circumstances "are either being deferred or are restricted to small lots to cover immediate and clearly defined needs." But all commercial reports stress the fact that this is not the time of year when noteworthy change in the trade movement was to be expected.

RULING ON FOX DIVIDEND.

Stock Exchange Decides Lender Has Choice of Certificate or Due Bill.

Adjustment of the dealings in Class A stock of the Fox Film Corporation, due to the decision of the directors to pay the dividend due on Jan. 15 in scrip instead of in cash, was announced yesterday by the New York Stock Exchange. The notice read:

"Referring to the action by Fox Film Corporation in requesting that stockholders accept, in lieu of dividend of $1 a share declared Dec. 5, 1929, payable Jan. 15, 1930, to holders of Class A stock of record Dec. 31, 1929, dividend certificates promising to pay amount of dividend on or before Jan. 15, 1931, with interest thereon at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from Jan. 15, 1930, New York Stock Exchange committee on securities rules that on all of said Class A stock loaned before Dec. 31, 1929, and returned thereafter, the lender shall be entitled to receive the dividend, but that settlement for such dividend may be made at option of borrower either by payment of $1 a share in cash or by delivery of a dividend certificate due Jan. 15, 1931, in form issued by Fox Film Corporation, or a due bill. The lender has the option of accepting either a dividend certificate or a due bill."

STOCK CONCERN ENJOINED.

A temporary injunction restraining William Crane & Co., 180 Broadway, from dealing in securities was granted yesterday by Justice Edward J. Byrne, according to announcement of Deputy Attorney Mackey Rackow of the State Bureau of Securities, 74 Trinity Place. Arguments on a motion to make the injunction permanent will be heard Jan. 30.

The injunction also restrains William M. Crane and Joseph Sugarman, members of the firm, from dealing in securities. Sugarman has previously been convicted of hypothecating securities of a customer. The firm opened in October, and, according to Watson Washburn, Assistant Attorney General, dealt in put and call options to small customers for as low as $10 and $20.

Illinois Gasoline Tax Fight Ends.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 24 (AP).—The last obstacle in the path of the State hard road construction program was removed today when attorneys for the McHenry County Oil Company withdrew an appeal to the Supreme Court attacking the constitutionality of the 1929 3-cent gasoline tax law. More than 100 companies attacked the act, but all except this one had already yielded at the request of Governor Emmerson, who asked that they accede to the best judgment of Illinois law makers and stop litigation.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

To the accompaniment of lively bidding for individual issues and active covering by uneasy shorts, the stock market struck something of a stride yesterday, going far toward dissipating the remaining clouds of gloom. Efforts to whip up interest in the market met with more success than usual. Expansion of the trading volume on the Stock Exchange reflected, according to brokers, a wider activity on the part of professionals, but they reported also some signs of public participation. Transactions on the Exchange aggregated 3,480,830 shares, the largest turnover of the year. The most impressive gains were recorded in American Can, Goodyear Tire, Columbian Carbon, J. I. Case, General Electric, Allied Chemical and Electric Power and Light. As has been the case on previous advances of late, the gains in active issues did not hold and the market closed below its peak for the day.

Renewed Foreign Buying.

A revival of foreign interest in American security markets, manifested by increased purchases, particularly of the high-grade rail issues, has been reported during the last few days. Foreign selling has been credited with being one of the chief causes for the severe break of October and November, and since then comparatively little interest in this market has been shown by Europe. The impression prevails quite generally in Wall Street that the foreign investor, particularly the Briton, was somewhat more shrewd than the native in clearing out of the stock market before the break. A return of the canny outlanders would be regarded by professional Wall Street as highly encouraging.

Topics in Wall Street.

Brokers in a position to learn the real status of the large commission houses have been inquiring quietly for some days into the volume of unliquidated securities, and their findings, it was asserted yesterday, tend to refute the popular impression that a vast amount of stock is still hanging over the market. Holdings in brokerage houses are much smaller than is generally realized, it was said. Persons who have been looking into the situation cited the absence of "selling propaganda" of late. Apparently, they said, there is no urgent need for liquidating such stocks as remain in Wall Street hands.

Open Market Operations.

This week's record of the local Federal reserve bank's open market operations, as shown in Thursday's statement of condition, illustrates the close relationship between the movements in the bank's portfolio and the borrowings of New York City banks. Bill holdings of the reserve bank were allowed to sink $33,000,000, and to fill in the gap local member banks had to borrow an additional $29,000,000 from the reserve. Presumably these funds went to buy bills, either directly or indirectly. The bill portfolio of the Federal Reserve system is now sufficiently large to offer the central bank a powerful instrument for influencing credit. One of the difficulties which the Reserve experienced last Spring and Summer in attempting to control the money market through open-market operations arose from the fact that it had comparatively few bills to sell.

Covering From Florida.

Some of the Florida wires covered stocks quite freely yesterday morning, especially in the steel group. Then the operators changed their minds and put out some fresh short lines. New Yorkers trying to ascertain what the Winter vacationists are doing in the market have given up guessing. The suggestion was made in several quarters yesterday that probably they do not know themselves.

Government Bonds Improve.

After several days of rather listless trading, the market for United States Government bonds firmed up appreciably yesterday. The active issues traded on the Stock Exchange closed higher. However, in the outside market where the bulk of the transactions in government securities is done, traders reported that most of the bids for bonds yesterday covered blocks substantially larger than earlier in the week. Several private individuals who have taken advantage of higher stock prices to step out of the market are credited with having bought sizable amounts of Liberties and Treasury obligations.

Via Air Mail.

Preliminary figures for 1929 show that more than double the weight transported in 1928 was carried over the contract air mail routes of the United States, while the total mileage flown has almost kept apace of the increase in load. The upward curve in the last two years is very pronounced, the monthly figures show, and indicates growing popularity of this form of postal service, which competes to some extent with certain of the slower types of telegraph service. The 13,000,000 miles flown last year, 40 per cent during the night hours, indicates the expansion of the air mail and the position it has gained as a means of communication.

Specialist Books Light.

The opinion expressed in brokerage circles is that the books of the specialists are extraordinarily light on both sides of the market. Some good-sized orders have been entered for leading stocks "on a scale" down, with most of these scale orders starting at about a 5 point decline from the present level and running from that point on down 20 to 30 points below the market in the leaders. On the up-side, there are many scattering selling orders, according to reports, mainly from those who purchased a week or so ago and have a definite price fixed. The advance orders on the books are so light, in fact, that little of the usual "gunning" is going on at the moment. Recent gunners for stop-loss orders have found it rather an unprofitable experiment.

MERRILL, LYNCH END AS BROKERS FEB. 3

WILL DROP EXCHANGE SEAT

Investment Banking Business of Firm, Now a Big Feature, Will Be Extended.

Merrill, Lynch & Co., who as pioneers in chain store financing have been active factors on the Stock Exchange for many years, will retire from the brokerage business on Feb. 3 to devote all time to the development of the investment banking business. E. A. Pierce & Co., said to be the largest wire house in the United States, will acquire the brokerage business, retail sales organization and all branch offices of Merrill, Lynch & Co. and continue their operation.

The deal, one of the largest affecting member firms of the New York Stock Exchange, has been under negotiation for several days and was concluded last night, official announcement following. The consideration was not made public.

The deal will give Merrill, Lynch & Co. the opportunity to concentrate on investment banking, particularly in the chain store field, and will provide expansion for E. A. Pierce & Co. through inclusion in their organization of a complete machine for the distribution of securities.

The firm of Merrill, Lynch & Co. will no longer continue members of the Stock Exchange. The Exchange member of the firm, R. L. Rooke, will go to E. A. Pierce & Co. as a general partner. Other partners of the Merrill, Lynch & Co. firm who will join E. A. Pierce & Co. are J. L. Merrill, S. W. Cobb, Douglas M. Bomeisler, Winthrop H. Smith, Wood Williams and R. H. Woodward Jr., general partners, and O. Merrill and J. V. Lynch, special partners. The firm is also a member of the Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland Exchanges, which connections will be discontinued.

Firm Has Six Branch Offices.

In addition to its offices at 120 Broadway, Merrill, Lynch & Co. maintain an office at 11 East Forty-third Street and branches in Ann Arbor, Mich.; Chicago, Denver, Detroit and Los Angeles. These will be added to the Pierce chain, which now maintains branches in thirty-three cities.

Charles E. Merrill said the deal was the result of the rapid growth of the firm's investment banking business. He added:

"Originally this department was an adjunct to our brokerage and retail business, but with the steady increase in the number and size of the companies financed by us our banking business came to be most important. We desire to devote more time to constructive investment banking and to an intensive study of all phases incidental to the distribution of products and merchandise from first hands to the ultimate consumer."

E. A. Pierce said that, while his firm has specialized exclusively in providing brokerage facilities, the inclusion of a complete organization for the distribution of securities at retail and wholesale represents the realization of an ambition.

"Amalgamations and cooperative plans have been found efficient and economical in the industrial field and commercial banking," he said, "and there is every reason to believe that they should prove successful in the investment field."

Large Growth of Organization.

The growth of Merrill, Lynch & Co. from a small affair to one of importance in Wall Street represents one of the romances of modern business. Mr. Merrill is a pioneer in the chain store field, and when he first started he literally peddled the shares of McCrory Stores from door to door in the financial district. Chain-store systems were not then recognized as successful money makers, but the young man was enthusiastic about them as investments, particularly as in those days one share of common stock was generally given as a bonus with each share of preferred stock that an investor could be induced to take. His enthusiasm for chain-store shares eventually made him several times a millionaire.

After the McCrory shares had been sold, Mr. Merrill became interested in S. S. Kresge and his chain store ideas and started selling the Kresge shares. Edmund C. Lynch became Mr. Merrill's partner in 1914 and they became recognized leaders in the financing and distribution of chain store systems, being bankers at the present time for McCrory Stores, Kresge Department Stores and Safeway Stores. In addition, Mr. Merrill is also a director of A. Hollander & Sons, Inc., E. D. Sudbury, Inc., The Fair, First National Stores, Follansbee Brothers, General Railway Company, Gotham Silk Hosiery Company, Neptune Meter Company, Patchogue-Plymouth Mills Corporation and Spicer Manufacturing Company.

Mr. Lynch is a director of Lane Bryant, Inc., Liquid Carbonic Company, Merchants National Properties Company, Oppenheim, Collins & Co., Panhandle Producing & Refining Company, Saenger Amusement Company of New Orleans and Superior Steel Corporation.

SINCLAIR COMPLETES CALIFORNIA INSPECTION

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 24.—Having inspected the properties of the Rio Grande Oil Company, Harry F. Sinclair, chairman of the board of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation, announced today that he planned to leave for the East tomorrow. He said the outcome of the negotiations with the Rio Grande's executives would be announced there after engineers' reports and other data had been presented to the directors of his company.

It was said the Rio Grande deal is unrelated to the contemplated merger of the Sinclair company and the Prairie Oil and Gas Company. W. S. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the Prairie company, accompanied Mr. Sinclair to Los Angeles and will return East with him.

Irrespective of what is done in the Rio Grande matter, Mr. Sinclair expressed the belief that the Sinclair and Prairie companies would work out a consolidation and that the consolidated company would enter California in some manner. The same economic pressure that induced the United States and the Bethlehem steel corporations to enter this region is forcing the oil companies to take similar steps," for "no business," he added, "can afford to stand still."

TO ACQUIRE OIL PROPERTIES

New Columbia Gas Subsidiary Is Formed to Effect Segregation.

The Appalachian Oil Development Corporation has been organized as a subsidiary of the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation to acquire, subject to approval of the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania, the crude oil properties of six of its natural gas subsidiaries.

It is understood that the purpose is to segregate the oil properties from the natural gas properties. The properties involved are valued at about $3,000,000, and comprise 756 oil wells and five gasoline compressor stations in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

BIG INCREASE IN OUTPUT

More Than Half of Profit Is Result of Investment in General Motors Stock.

Income of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., both from operations and investments, showed a substantial increase in 1929 over 1928, according to the annual report of the company, which will be made public today. The report gives an increase of 13 per cent in the volume of business from that of 1928, a rise in returns from operations of $11,748,000 and a gain from investments of $3,-598,000, making a total increase from the preceding twelve months of $15,-346,000 in net income.

Earnings applicable to the common stock were equivalent to $7.09 a share on the 10,196,777 average number of shares outstanding in 1929, compared with earnings of $6.27 a share on the average number outstanding in 1928. The total applicable to the common stock, after reserve for Federal taxes, dividends on debenture stock and other fixed charges was $72,300,626, compared with $58,733,238 in 1928, an increase of $13,567,388.

Inc. from Gen. Mot.	42,939,452.41	37,999,327.95
Inc. other secur...	4,548,173.13	6,259,667.95
Divs. deb. stock	5,871,103.50	5,364,559.50
Com. stock earn.	$72,300,626.80	$58,733,238.33
Aver. shares outstanding	10,196,777	9,370,374
Earned a share	$7.09	$6.27

Current assets on Dec. 31 last, were $106,996,046, with total assets $541,986,714, including 9,981,220 shares of common stock of General Motors Corporation valued at $164,690,130. Current liabilities shown by the statement amounted to $22,398,366, representing a ratio of current assets to current liabilities of about 4.8.

In the income account the decrease in income from miscellaneous and investments is explained by a profit in the sale in 1928 of 114,000 shares of United States Steel Corporation stock, which had been acquired as a temporary investment.

The surplus account on Dec. 31 last was $144,920,215, compared with $105,710,319 at the end of 1928. The surplus at the end of 1929 included $24,963,050 resulting from a revaluation of the investment in General Motors Corporation to $16.50 a share, which closely corresponds to the net value of these shares as shown by the balance sheet of the Motors Corporation at the beginning of the year.

Acquisition during the year of minority interests in the Du Pont Rayon Company, the Du Pont Cellophane Company, Inc., and the Du Pont Ammonia Corporation and of the entire interest in the Krebs Pigment and Chemical Company, as well as an additional interest in Canadian Industries, Ltd., added $5,927,402 to the surplus account, arising chiefly from excess of the value of the respective interests acquired over the par value of the securities given in exchange.

An appropriation of $3,807,969 was deducted from the surplus to build up the pension reserve, which on Dec. 31 amounted to $14,064,000. The pension adjustment was made largely to include in the pension plan the employes of the Grasselli Chemical Company, the Krebs Pigment and Chemical Company and other fully owned subsidiary companies.

The report said that a review had shown substantial advances in output and in the development of new products. Employes on Dec. 31 totaled approximately 35,000, including those of the parent company and controlled companies, an increase during the year of about 2,000.

At the end of 1929 there were 25,-470 common stockholders, compared with 9,970 at the beginning of the year, an increase of 155 per cent. Of the new stockholders 5,340 were added in November and December.

'Father of Trusts' Is Eighty, Ready to Resume Mergers

Charles Ranlett Flint, "father of trusts," celebrated yesterday his eightieth birthday. He expects to return to his office at 25 Broad Street to effect another consolidation of companies, but he will not say what it will be. For two years he has been taking things "rather easy" touring the country and getting a view of things from the outside. In his career in the financial district he consolidated more than fifty industries.

In response to questions from numerous friends yesterday, who congratulated him on his birthday, Mr. Flint said:

"I am anxious to get back to work, because I never felt more vigorous in my life."

The properties to be acquired will be fully interconnected with the transmission system, which runs from Central Montana to Central Washington. The Washington Water Power Company supplies electric light and power service to the city of Spokane and sixty-two other communities in Eastern Washington and thirty communities in Northern Idaho.

SCORE STOCK DEALS BY HOLLINGSWORTH

DEFENSE MAKES DENIAL

Objects to Brokers' Records but Agrees to Furnish Statement of Holdings in Company.

William T. P. Hollingsworth, president of Claude Neon Lights, Inc., published the advertisement which is alleged to have prevented the $10,-000,000 stock issue of the Federal Neon System, Inc., to maintain the market price and protect his own tradings in Claude Neon stock, according to a statement to Magistrate Simpson yesterday in the homicide court.

The statement was made by Louis Freudenberg, a counsel for Charles V. Bob, banker, of 120 Broadway, in the proceedings against Mr. Hollingsworth and Robert L. Kester Jr., vice president of Claude Neon Lights, Inc. Mr. Hollingsworth and Mr. Kester are charged by Mr. Bob with having published a false and misleading advertisement that prevented him from issuing the Federal Neon System, Inc., stock.

The assertion of Mr. Freudenberg came after Thomas Broker, office manager for Hirsch, Lilienthal & Co., brokers at 165 Broadway, had been sworn as a witness. He had with him a transcript of Mr. Hollingsworth's trading account.

In informing the court the purpose of having the stock trading records in evidence, Mr. Freudenberg said he was proving that Mr. Hollingsworth had intended to deceive. He asserted that Mr. Hollingsworth had intended to keep the price of Claude Neon stock as high as he could and that if the Federal Neon Stock had been issued the high market price of Claude Neon would have been destroyed.

Mr. Freudenberg argued that the trading transactions of Mr. Hollingsworth would prove his motive. Robert S. Johnstone of counsel for Mr. Hollingsworth said promotion of the advertisement was conceded, but denied that there was the intent behind it implied by Mr. Freudenberg.

At this point Ferdinand Pecora, former Chief Assistant District Attorney, of counsel for Mr. Bob, addressed the court, saying: "We intend to prove by these records that the motive which actuated Hollingsworth in publishing the advertisement was one intended to protect his own transactions. We intend to show that the defendant executed a series of manipulations in the stock and that he profited enormously. We will show that when he saw our advertisement he was afraid that the consummation of our plan would impair the value of his holdings."

Julius Henry Cohen, chief of counsel for Mr. Hollingsworth, said the records of the stock trading were private matters and objected to their introduction. He was overruled by Magistrate Simpson. He then offered a stipulation in which he would admit that Mr. Hollingsworth had been a large stockholder in Claude Neon and he had made "substantial sums" in trading in this stock. Attorneys for Mr. Bob objected to the stipulation as indefinite. The records covered the period from 1927 to 1929.

Mr. Broker was succeeded as a witness by Thomas F. Keegan, office manager of the stock department of the Guaranty Trust Company, who brought records subpenaed by Mr. Bob.

Magistrate Simpson ordered the subpena vacated after he found that an unauthorized rider had been attached to it. Mr. Cohen agreed to present on Monday when the hearing is resumed a certified record of all of Mr. Hollingsworth's holdings in the Claude Neon company.

STOCK'S VALIDITY QUALIFIED BY COURT

INJUNCTION ORDER WAIVED

New Shares, Authorized Only by the Preferred Group, to Show Conditional Status on Face.

The validity of the stock to be issued by the West Virginia Gas Corporation under the amendment increasing the common stock filed in the office of the Secretary of State of West Virginia will not be determined until the final hearing of the controversy upon its merits, according to a statement issued by P. W. Chapman & Co., Inc., yesterday, in connection with their suit against the majority preferred stockholders of the company. He said, in part:

"In the suit pending in the Circuit Court of Kanawha County, Charleston, W. Va., between the common stockholders and the majority preferred stockholders of West Virginia Gas Corporation, the court last Saturday granted an order providing that until the pending litigation could be heard on its merits the Secretary of State of West Virginia should be restrained from issuing a certificate authorizing the increase of 1,600,000 shares of the common stock of the corporation, such increase having been authorized solely by the vote of a majority of the preferred stockholders and without the concurring vote of the common stockholders.

"The injunction was conditioned upon the applicants filing a $500,000 surety bond, but provided that in the event such bond was not filed all stock certificates or stock purchase warrants covering the additional 1,600,000 shares of the common stock should be endorsed on their face to show that their validity was subject to the final determination of the controversy. As yet no hearing or determination has been had upon the merits of the case.

"The litigation in no way affects the outstanding bonds of West Virginia Gas Corporation or the common stock purchase warrants attached to the bonds."

Joint Securities Omits Dividends.

The Joint Securities Corporation voted yesterday to omit the quarterly dividends of 12½ cents and 1 per cent in stock due at this time.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Assurance of future stock purchase rights was given to stockholders of the Commonwealth Edison Company today when the directors announced that a proposal to increase the authorized capital stock from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 would be submitted at the annual meeting on Feb. 24.

Last September, stockholders received rights to buy additional stocks and the rights were valued at more than $41,000,000.

New Bond Issue to Be Awarded Next Week Increase From $16,705,781 This Week.

$9,000,000 FOR ST. LOUIS

Dealers Are Inclined to Ignore All Except the Highest Grade of Securities.

A moderate increase in new municipal financing will take place next week, when issues aggregating $25,425,793 will come up for award, representing the requirements of fifty-eight communities. This week bonds to the amount of $16,705,781 were on the calendar, consisting of forty-nine separate issues, the largest of which was $2,900,000 city of Yonkers bonds. Next week's principal issue will be that of $9,000,000 city of St. Louis public building and improvement bonds, for which syndicates, including practically every municipal house in Wall Street, are expected to bid.

The weekly average of new municipal flotations for the year to date is $27,050,815. The average was brought up by the award earlier in the month of the issue of $29,050,000 State of Tennessee 4½s and 4¾s, of which now only about $6,000,000 remain unsold. No single piece of municipal financing that has been announced for the future is as large, the largest one being that of $18,000,000 State of Arkansas highway bonds, which will be sold on Feb. 12.

The most notable characteristic of the municipal bond market this week has been the tendency to shade prices. The prices on several large blocks of bonds offered in December have been reduced slightly and bids on new issues have been lower than those of a week or two ago. However, there appears to be a satisfactory demand for municipals, but insurance companies and other large buyers are not inclined to go much above a 4.25 per cent basis on the average run of high-grade bonds. There have, however, been several exceptions to this rule.

Two Issues Fail to Sell.

Two of the more important issues this week failed to sell. East Providence, R. I., rejected all bids on its issue of $500,000 4¼s on Monday, and on Thursday the South Park District (Chicago) commissioners failed to receive any bids on their issue of $1,500,000 4s, although last July the commissioners rejected all bids on the issue.

Inter-dealer trading continues fairly active although the time has passed, for the moment, at least, when bonds can be purchased for a mark-up. New York City bonds are being whittled down daily. The syndicate still has more than two weeks to run. In this connection it is interesting to note that the syndicate books on the issue of $41,000,000 City and County of San Francisco 4½s brought out in mid-December and quickly sold, have not yet been closed, which, of course, prevents any cutting of prices by dealers who may have purchased blocks of these bonds for later distribution in anticipation of a higher bond market.

Dealers are showing a decided inclination to pass up scheduled sales of bonds if the issues are not considered high-grade. Therefore the spread between prices on high-grade and second-grade issues is now somewhat wider than usual. The announcement of the new legal list for savings banks in this State by the Banking Department this week showed several new additions to the list of legal municipals.

NO OFFERING TO PUBLIC BY REPUBLIC STEEL

Shares Likely to Be Issued for Exchange in Merger Deal—Officials Survey Country.

Public offering of securities of the Republic Steel Corporation is not contemplated now, it was learned from authoritative sources yesterday. In the near future the company may authorize a preferred issue, but it will be confined to the requirements of the exchange basis for stock of the companies entering into the recent merger, and none will be put before the public.

Officials of the company completed recently a survey of the entire country, obtaining data respecting possible directions for expansion. The trip, it was said, was not for opening merger negotiations with other companies, but was with the idea of studying conditions with a view of outlining a plan for enlarged activities of the several companies entering the merger.

One plant inspected was that of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company in Denver. It was said authoritatively though that no negotiations toward a possible merger had been started.

Massachusetts Announces Bond Issue of $4,750,000

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts announced yesterday that bids will be opened on Feb. 4 on a new issue of $4,750,000 of bonds and notes. The issue will comprise $1,200,000 water bonds, due on Feb. 1, 1931 to 1940; $2,300,000 water bonds, due on Feb. 1, 1941 to 1960; $500,000 sewer bonds, due on Sept. 1, 1930 to 1949, and $750,000 building notes, due on Feb. 1, 1930 to 1934.

The bonds and notes are issued for the benefit of the Metropolitan Water and Sewer District. The bonds will bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent.

On Oct. 15, last, the Commonwealth awarded an issue of $2,000,000 4½ per cent water bonds, due on July 1, 1930 to 1959, to a group of New York and Boston banks. The price paid was 101.885.

BOND OFFERINGS TOP THOSE OF YEAR AGO

But This Week's Volume Is Less Than Last Week's, Due to Smaller Utility Issues.

RAIL FINANCING IS IN LEAD

More Than $75,000,000 of New Funds for Carriers Said to Be on Way.

Although this week's new bond offerings fell considerably short of those of last week, the total was considerably larger than in the corresponding week last year. New offerings aggregated $177,431,324, compared with last week's record total of $293,398,000 and with $33,449,000 a year ago.

The drop from last week was due primarily to the smaller offerings of public utility bonds, although this week's total in that group amounted to $55,000,000. Railroad financing led this week, with two issues totaling $65,146,000, of which the $63,031,000 Baltimore & Ohio convertible 4½s, due 1960, constitute the largest piece of rail financing since the $72,335,000 offering of Chicago & North Western 4¾s early in December. Preferred and common stockholders of the Baltimore & Ohio have the prior right, to March 11, to subscribe to the issue at 95 in the ratio of 20 per cent of the holdings of stock.

More than $75,000,000 of new railroad financing is in sight, in addition to various equipment trust issues, several of which have already been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. If these issues are readily marketed several additional rail issues will probably be put on sale soon.

Eighteen new municipal issues were placed on the market this week, headed by $35,000,000 city of New York 4.30 per cent short-term bills, maturing June 14, 1930, and priced to yield 4.15 per cent. New municipal financing reached $52,785,324, the heaviest weekly total in that field so far this year.

Public utility financing this week comprised three issues totaling $55,000,000, of which the $25,000,000 New England Power Association 5½s was the largest. Several large public utility issues are expected to be offered next week.

Offerings by groups of this and last week follow:

	This Wk.	Last. Wk.
Railroad	$65,146,000	$35,088,000
Public utility	55,000,000	219,300,000
State & municipal	52,785,384	34,902,000
Foreign	3,000,000	3,358,000
Insular possession	1,500,000	....
Investment corp.	....	750,000

Conversations between Wall Street investment houses and foreign governments and corporations are taking place each week, but it is reported that actual offering of foreign loans here is still some distance away.

A table of bonds offered this week, compiled by THE NEW YORK TIMES, appears on this page.

ST. PAUL LAND BANK BOOMS

The report of the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul, covering operations for 1929, shows a decrease of 7 per cent in delinquencies and an increase of 37 per cent in farm sales. Farms on which the bank started foreclosure actions were approximately 20 per cent fewer than in the preceding year.

More than 35,000 farmers in North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan have loans with the bank, made through 647 National Farm Loan Associations and three agencies. Resources of the bank aggregate more than $138,600,000. During the year its net operating income was more than $900,000.

BOND TRADING QUIET ON STOCK EXCHANGE

A. T. & T. CONVERTIBLES UP

Public Service of New Jersey Also Gains—Foreign Loans Slightly Lower.

United States Government bonds were a strong spot in an otherwise dull market in bonds on the Stock Exchange yesterday. Not only were prices improved but larger blocks of Liberties and Treasuries changed hands than usual. Treasury 4s jumped 16-32, with the Treasury 3¾s of 1946 next in line with a gain for the day of 14-32. The rest of the government group finished up 1-32 to 8-32, with the single exception of the Treasury 3⅜s of 1940, which sold off 2-32.

Most of the changes in prices in the list of domestic railroad, public utility and industrial bonds were no better than routine. American Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s of 1939 moved up a trifle on a fairly large turnover, and the new debenture 5s of 1965 held unchanged. Public Service Corporation of New Jersey convertible debenture 4½s scored a further recovery of 2⅜ points. All dealings in the new Public Service Electric and Gas 4½s were at 95½.

In the railroad list, Missouri Pacific 5½s were unusually active, moving up ⅞ of a point. Southern Pacific 4½s, with warrants, sold off half a point, and Cuba Railroad 6s dropped 2 points to a new low at 87. Heavy dealings in the new Chicago & North Western 4¾s resulted in a decline of a point, with the market touching a new low at 98½.

Shubert Theatre 6s had another sinking spell, reaching a new low at 41, closing at 42, off half a point for the day. Truax Traer 6½s were in brisk demand at rising prices, the market closing at the day's peak of 85½, up 5 points. Warner Sugar turned in a net gain of 4 points, but the remainder of the sugar issues were dull.

Foreign loans were slightly lower, with a few issues touching new lows, including Paulista Railway 7s at 95, off 2 points, and New South Wales 5s of 1958 at 87, off 1½.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. — The volume of check payments during the week ended Jan. 18 fell below those of both the previous week and the corresponding week of last year, according to today's weekly statement of the Department of Commerce.

Receipts of wheat, cattle and hogs for the latest reported week were larger than during the previous week and, except in the case of hogs, larger than for the corresponding week of 1929. Cotton receipts, on the other hand, were smaller than for either prior period.

The general index of wholesale prices was fractionally higher than during the previous week, but was lower than a year ago. Cotton prices were slightly higher than during the previous week while prices for wheat and iron and steel products declined, prices for cotton and steel also being lower than a year ago.

"Interest rates were easier," the department said, "both time and call-money rates being lower than for either the previous week or the corresponding week of last year. Bank loans and discounts were also slightly smaller in volume than during the previous week but, were larger than for the corresponding week of 1929. Bond prices receded fractionally from last week's level and were 2 per cent lower than a year ago. Business failures were fewer than during the previous week but somewhat more numerous than during the corresponding week of last year."

The business indicators for the week ended Jan. 11 and 18, as compared with those for the week of Jan. 19, 1929, and with the 1923-25 average of 100 were given as follows:

BANK CLEARINGS OFF 26% FROM YEAR AGO

New York's Total for Week, $6,267,000,000, Is 32.9% Under That of 1929 Period.

ONLY RICHMOND HAS GAIN

Further reductions in bank clearing were reported yesterday from leading centres for the past week. The total was $9,686,773,000, which was 26.6 per cent below last year, according to Dun's Review. Clearings at New York amounted to $6,267,000,000, or 32.9 per cent lower than in the corresponding week last year. For outside cities the clearings totaled $3,419,773,000, which was 11.5 per cent below last year.

Richmond was the only city in the group of larger Western and Southern centres that did not report a decline. It is pointed out, however, that clearings in 1929 were far above all previous records. Figures for January, 1928, were also record breaking, but clearings last week were only slightly below those of that year.

The following table shows the comparative clearings for last week and the corresponding week of 1929, along with the comparison of daily averages:

THREE BANKS CLOSE DOORS

Two Are in Greenville and One Is in Oconee County, S. C.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 24 (AP).—Three South Carolina banks, two in Greenville County and one in Oconee County, were closed this morning, State Bank Examiner Albert S. Fant announced here.

The bank of Woodville, and the Citizens Bank of Taylors, both in Greenville, County, and the Seneca Bank, in Oconee County, were placed in the hands of the State Bank Examiner by their directors.

The Bank of Woodville was capitalized at $10,000 and the Taylors Bank at $25,000. Deposits in the two institutions totaled approximately $100,000, Mr. Fant said.

The Seneca Bank was capitalized at $20,000 and its deposits totaled "more than $400,000," Mr. Fant said. This bank has enough cash available, the examiner said, to pay $100,000, or 25 per cent, to its depositors at once.

Mr. Fant expressed the belief that all three banks would be able to pay depositors in full.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Depression prevailed on the Stock Exchange today, with brokers and dealers disposing of other shares in order to prepare for settlement of the Hatry accounts on Feb. 13. British gilt edge stocks were uncertain, the war loan declining 1-16 to £100⅞ and the funding loan sagging ⅛ to £86 9-16. India stocks rallied after yesterday's weakness.

Internationals generally were stronger, led by Columbia Graphophone, which was ¼ higher at £5 13-16. International Nickel rose ¼ to $37⅝ and Brazilian Traction gained ⅝ to $39¼. Hydroelectric rose ⅛ to $43⅞, but Associated Electric rose 3d to 27s 6d. British Celanese rose 1s 3d to 15s and Courtaulds dropped to £2 21-32, while other textiles were dull on troubles in the American spinning section.

Rubber advanced to 7 9-16d a pound, with a slight advance in the shares. Oils were idle, although Anglo-Persian improved to £3 13-16. Reduction of the American tariff on cut diamonds stimulated diamond shares, especially De Beers, which advanced to £10¾ on Paris buying. Rhodesians were flat and tins irregular.

Money was easy in Lombard Street, overnight loans bringing 3½ per cent. Discount rates weakened to 3¾ per cent for three-month bills. Sterling improved slightly to $4.86 21-32. The Bank of England bought £21,050 of foreign gold coin and received £21,881 in sovereigns from abroad.

LONDON, Jan. 24 (Canadian Press).—Pessimistic views of the Indian political situation and the unsteadiness of Bombay Exchange caused renewed weakness in Indian issues on the London Stock Exchange this week. Fractional declines were registered in British Home Government stocks, and Australian Commonwealth and State loans were marked down further, London remaining uneasy about the intentions of the new Australian Labor Government. On the other hand, there was a fresh, though small, demand for Canadian stocks, and interest was shown in New Zealand and city of London issues.

In the foreign market Brazilians continued popular and Chinese bonds gave a fair showing.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—The Bourse was steadier today although trading was restricted. The probability of the mobilization of sinking fund bonds being proposed by the Bank of France had little effect on the market. The purpose of this operation would be to increase monetary stability and also to make possible an increase of available capital in the event of a future contraction of credit facilities.

Rentes were strong, particularly the 3 per cents which advanced again to 89.90. Others closed as follows: 1918 4s, 99.60; 1920 amortizable 5s, 136.30; 1928 5s, 104.35; 1920 6s, 103.75; 1927 amortizable 6s, 109.70.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—While the selling movement in Dye Trust shares which has been a depressing factor for the past two days came to a standstill on the Boerse today, the market was unfavorably influenced by weakness in Siemens shares which declined 7½ points in connection with reported negotiations for an American loan.

With the exception of Salzdetfurth, which advanced to 363, most stocks were softer, especially shares of the mining group, bank shares, electricals and shippings. The second hour brought temporary improvements of one to three points over the previous losses, but the close was again weak, with Siemens regaining three points.

TRADING STRONGER IN COUNTER STOCKS

Most Bank Shares Advance and Insurance Issues Improve—Gains in Industrials.

An improved tone was evident through the list of over-the-counter securities yesterday as renewed public interest made itself felt. Some prices, however, fell off slightly late in the afternoon, paring down early gains.

In the bank list, Corn Exchange, ex-dividend, closed lower, but most of the others, including Guaranty, Manhattan, City, Chase, Bankers, Fidelity, Bank of America and Lawyers Title, were higher.

Insurance issues displayed more strength than for several days, under the leadership of Importers and Exporters, Stuyvesant, Hanover, Harmonia and Maryland Casualty. In the industrial group gains were made by Technicolor, preferred, Crowell Publishing common, Woodward Iron, Splitdorf and Petroleum Derivatives. Communication stocks were in good demand.

URGES NEW METHOD OF RAIL VALUATION

I. C. C. Asks Congress to Pass Bill, Specifying Procedure in Rate Making.

O'FALLON PLAN OPPOSED

Commission, in Letter to Couzens, Outlines a System for Use in Rate and Recapture Cases.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Legislation specifying the methods to be used in determining the valuation of railroads for rate-making and recapture purposes was urged upon Congress today by the Interstate Commerce Commission in a letter sent by its legislative committee, of which Commissioner Eastman is chairman, to Senator Couzens, chairman of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce. The letter gave the commission's views on the Howell resolution, which proposes to direct the commission in future valuation cases to use the rule applied in the O'Fallon case.

The commission suggested a modified method of determining railroad valuations which, it declared, would be just to owners of railroad property, insure the public adequate transportation service, tremendously simplify the task of bringing valuations down to date and aid in prompt disposition of the huge accumulation of proposed recapture cases now before it.

Adoption of the proposal, it was contended, would enable the commission to bring up to date the important phase of its work, thus benefiting all concerned, including the investors and the users of railroads. The commission offered to assist legislative committees in preparing legislation and committee reports supporting the proposals.

The report was passed upon by the full commission. Commissioner Woodlock, the only member who dissented, generally expressed the belief that "no rule for rate-making purposes could by any form of legislation be made the law of the land." Commissioner Farrell took exception to the phase of the report.

New Method Outlined.

The report urged that the proposal would obviate objections to which the method proposed by the Howell resolution would be open.

"Under this modified method, which we now suggest," the report stated, "up-to-date valuations at any time would be determined by taking the cost of reproduction new at the 1914 unit prices of the property existing on the original valuation date, adding or subtracting the subsequent net increase or decrease in property investment account as shown by the accounts when correctly kept, adding further a proper allowance for working capital, and deducting the balance standing in the depreciation reserve."

The commission's proposal was urged as an improvement over the method employed by it in the O'Fallon case.

"Under that method (the method in the O'Fallon case)," the report stated, "the basic value, as of the original valuation date, is made up of cost of reproduction new at the so-called 1914 unit prices, but allowing the actual cost of property installed after June 30, 1914, less depreciation, plus the then value of lands, plus an allowance for working capital and a comparatively small allowance for the possible elements of value.

"This basic value is then brought up to date by adding or subtracting the subsequent net increase or decrease in the investment in transportation property as determined from the carrier's returns, by adjusting the deduction for depreciation to present conditions and by making a similar adjustment in land values."

O'Fallon Plan Opposed.

The report held that from an administrative standpoint the method employed in the O'Fallon case "is open to the objection that the basic value cannot be brought up to date by purely accounting methods."

"It requires continual reappraisal of lands and continual physical inspection with respect to the depreciation of the property," the report said. "We believe that by a modification of the method, substantially similar results can be obtained in a way which will eliminate most of this work and the expenses and possible delay incident thereto, and reduce the task of bringing valuations up to date to a purely accounting procedure."

The report also declared that the proposed modified valuation method, like the method adopted in the O'Fallon case would, "apart from the deduction for depreciation, result in an amount which would probably in all instances be somewhat in excess of the investment in the property, in that the property would reasonably have cost, and in many instances materially in excess, dependent chiefly upon the increment in land values over original cost, up to the original valuation date.

"It would be less favorable to the carriers," the report continued, "than the O'Fallon case method, in that it would eliminate all increment in land values subsequent to the original valuation date and any allowance for other elements of value."

Modifications Offset Each Other.

"On the other hand, it would be more favorable to the carriers, in that it would limit the deduction for depreciation to the amount which has been provided for by actual charges to operating expenses. We think that in many instances these modifications, favorable and unfavorable, would substantially offset each other."

The commission held that the proposed method, like that employed in the O'Fallon case, would allow for a value substantially in excess of original cost up to the original valuation date, and in many instances in excess of the actual investment by the carriers, including the parcels donated to the railroads by governments, communities and individuals.

It also pointed out that the proposed plan, like the O'Fallon case method, would include full allowance for all property charged in the past by carriers to operating expense, or out of surplus earnings after the payment of generous dividends to stockholders.

It urged, too, that the aggregate rate base thus determined would be compatible with the present liberal provision of the law relating to "fair return."

The commission held that the plan it suggested would be "capable of modification to fit any differing views which Congress may have as to what is a sound public policy."

It was pointed out that some members opinion that the proposed legislation should be limited in application to future rate-making and future recapture of excess earnings.

"In the case of rate makings its application, of course, would necessarily be confined to the future, so that this question really has bearing only on recapture," the report said. "If Congress should be of the view that the method of valuation should not or cannot properly be applied in determining the amount of excess earnings to be paid by the respective railroad companies during the recapture periods intervening between the effective date of the transportation act, 1920, and the date of the passage of the proposed legislation, then we suggest that a further provision be incorporated in the legislation.

"This further provision which we suggest would specifically authorize us by such proceedings, formal or informal, as in our discretion may seem necessary and proper, to agree with the respective carriers upon the amount of excess earnings in these past periods to be paid by them.

"Our reason for making this suggestion is that present methods of valuation are so cumbersome and so provocative of controversy and litigation, following prolonged proceedings, that as a practical matter it will be almost impossible, if the usual methods of judicial procedure are followed, to ascertain and collect excess earnings without great delay and expense, attended by litigation which may react adversely on the public interest."

O'Fallon Decision Overthrown.

In objecting to the Howell resolution, the commission recalled that its report in the O'Fallon case had been overturned by the Supreme Court because it had not given "due consideration to all the elements of value recognized by the law of the land for rate making purposes."

As a consequence it was held that the effect of the Howell resolution would be to direct the commission to follow a method which had been found by the court to be inconsistent with its duty under the law.

The commission also stated its belief that Congress should definitely direct the commission as to how to proceed in arriving at the determination of "fair value" and "fair return" required by the law.

"The result of such declaration," the letter said, "would, of course, be subject to review by the Supreme Court if it were contended in any instance that they transgressed constitutional limitations; but in that event we feel sure that a broad declaration of public policy from the legislative branch of the government, particularly if accompanied by the reasons therefor, would be of great help to the Supreme Court."

Achievement of railroad transportation in all respects with "just and right" to all concerned, the letter continued, may best be reflected in the "fair return" factor rather than the "fair value" factor.

"A 'fair value,' or rate base, which is dependent upon and varies with current costs of reproduction, is peculiarly unstable," the letter said. "The danger in such fluctuations to the owners of the railroads is much enhanced by the fact that so large a part of the investment is represented by securities which are limited to a fixed or maximum rate of return, such as bonds and preferred stocks."

ADDS NEW CONTAINER CARS.

New York Central Leases 100 of Drop-Side Burglar-Proof Type.

The first leasing of the new drop-side container cars developed by the L. C. L. Corporation was announced yesterday. The New York Central Railroad has contracted for 100 of these cars and 600 of the containers with which they are loaded. With the drop-side cars, the containers, large metal cases that are fireproof and burglarproof, are placed on the cars by a lift truck. A crane hoist was required with the old type.

It is understood that the Merchants Despatch, Inc., a refrigerator car company owned by the New York Central, will arrange for manufacturing the new cars. The New York Central pioneered in the use of these devices. The patents, developed by A. H. Smith, its late president, were acquired by the L. C. L. Corporation.

HAILE ESTIMATES REVENUE.

Predicts $56,000,000 for 1929 for Missouri-Kansas-Texas.

The Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad will show earnings of $5 a share for the common stock for 1929, according to C. Haile, president. Mr. Haile said yesterday that gross revenues for 1929 were about $56,000,000, against $56,549,000 in 1928. Excluding back mail pay of $534,000, revenues in 1929 were down $1,000,000 from 1928, the decrease being about equally divided between freight and passenger receipts.

"Car loadings for the two years, however," said Mr. Haile, "are so nearly the same as to indicate that the decrease in the average level of freight rates for 1929 was the important factor in decreasing revenues. December traffic and business was retarded by continued unprecedented low temperatures. Business leaders in the Southwest are almost without exception optimistic about 1930. There is plenty of wheat stored, and should an export market develop this will furnish a good traffic movement."

ARGUMENTS CLOSE IN O'FALLON CASE

MOTION ASKS REOPENING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—With attorneys as sharply divided as ever, the application of the St. Louis & O'Fallon Railroad for an interpretation of the Supreme Court mandate in its valuation case was submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission today after two days of oral arguments.

The commission has before it a motion by Walter L. Fisher, its special counsel in the valuation case, for reopening it to permit submission of additional data to complete the record. A similar motion by Frederick H. Wood of New York, counsel for the O'Fallon road, to permit only the submission of further evidence bearing on the depreciation phase of the case, was withdrawn.

The arguments today included those by Mr. Fisher in interpretation of the intent of the Supreme Court decision as it affected further action by the commission in fixing a new valuation for the road, and rebuttal by Mr. Wood.

Mr. Fisher contended that the further report of the commission must contain specific evidence that it had given consideration, in reaching its new appraisal of value of the road, to the factor of current reproduction costs. The Supreme Court in its decision held the commission had not given any weight to this factor.

"I don't think the Supreme Court has set itself up as a final determinative body on economic questions," said Mr. Fisher. "In my opinion the court was confused as to the difference between certain economic principles and rules of law."

"The 'fair value' which the commission is called upon to determine under the provisions of the transportation act, is a concept of value utterly incapable of rational application and not susceptible to any known economic test," Mr. Fisher went on.

He asserted that the court in reaching its decision had not considered the economic questions or administrative difficulties, but had adhered only to the legal questions involved. He cited the Congressional direction to the commission to give due consideration to all factors involved in reaching a fair value, and asserted that the decision of the court was based upon its belief that the commission in valuing the road had not given adequate consideration to the factor of current costs.

Mr. Fisher also attacked the assertion of the O'Fallon counsel that the commission must also in reaching a final valuation include an item for going concern value, holding that such an item was negligible in the case of the O'Fallon road.

Mr. Wood, in rebuttal, reasserted his contention that the commission must now, in the absence of other available cost factors, reach a new appraisal of the O'Fallon valuation by giving controlling consideration to the current prices factor. The commission, moreover, he said, will not be able to "evade" the court's decision by simply stating in its new order that this factor has been considered. Instead, he said, adequate evidence in support of the claim must be presented.

CARRIER'S INCOME REDUCED

Scandrett Forecasts the Milwaukee's Report for 1929.

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad earned about $5.95 a share on its preferred stock in 1929, according to H. A. Scandrett, president. In 1928 the railroad reported a net income of $9,261,000 after charges and adjustment bond interest, equal to $7.77 a share on the preferred stock and after these requirements to $2.81 a common share.

HOUSE ORDERS INQUIRY ON RAIL SECURITIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. — The House today passed by unanimous vote the resolution proposing an investigation of railway securities-holding companies as a prerequisite to railroad consolidation legislation. The House Commerce Committee or one of its subcommittees was authorized to make the investigation.

The committee will inquire into the "ownership and control, direct or indirect (through stock ownership or control or otherwise) of stock, securities or capital interests in any common carrier engaged in the transportation of persons or property in interstate commerce by holding companies, investment trusts, individual partnerships, corporations, associations and trusts," and the "organization, development, management, operation and control of such holding organizations."

Representative Parker of New York, author of the resolution, and Representative Rayburn of Texas, chairman and ranking minority member, respectively, of the committee, supported the measure, which also had the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

$10,000,000 UTILITY ISSUE.

New Financing for Central Gas and Electric Next Week.

New financing totaling $10,000,000 for the Central Gas and Electric Company will be brought out next week by a syndicate headed by Harris, Forbes & Co., and including H. M. Byllesby & Co., Inc., the Central Illinois Company, Inc., West & Co., and Albert E. Pierce & Co. The financing will take the form of an issue of three-year 5½ per cent notes.

The company plans to apply the proceeds from this issue to the retirement of funded debt, to retire or acquire funded debt and preferred stocks of subsidiaries, to pay indebtedness assumed in the recent acquisition of substantially all of the common stock of the Central Indiana Gas Company, and for other corporate purposes. The borrowing company is a subsidiary of the Central Public Service Corporation.

Utility Stock Trade Authorized.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 24 (AP).—The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company was authorized today by the Public Service Commission to acquire 1,861 shares of the preferred stock, par value $25, of the Central New Hampshire Telephone Company. One share of New England stock will be given for four shares of Central New Hampshire preferred stock.

SHOWS DEATH RATE UNCHANGED IN 1929

The death rate among 19,000,000 industrial policy holders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in 1929 was 8.7 for each 1,000 persons, the same as for 1928, it was announced yesterday. New minimum death rates were established for tuberculosis, diphtheria, measles and typhoid fever, while new high records were established for cancer, diabetes, diseases of the heart, and for fatalities from automobile accidents.

Official figures for the general population for 1929 will not be ready until early next year, but it is likely that a similar health record prevailed among the entire population of the country, according to a statement issued by the insurance company. Had the death rate that prevailed in 1911 been experienced in 1929, there would have been 70,612 more deaths among the Metropolitan's policyholders.

In the final nine months of 1929 a great improvement in the mortality rate overcame the handicap of the influenza epidemic which resulted in many deaths during the first three months of the year. The epidemic began in November, 1928, and reached its peak at the beginning of 1929. As a result, January, 1929, had the highest death rate of any month in the last decade, according to Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the insurance company.

Drop in Tuberculosis Rate.

"The tuberculosis death rate in 1929 was 5.5 per cent lower than for 1928, and 62 per cent lower than for 1911," said Dr. Dublin. "Its rate for last year was only 85.6 per 100,000. This record is one of the most amazing in the entire field of public health.

"The death rate for the four important children's diseases last year showed a decline of 14 per cent over 1928. The decline in the diphtheria rate was 10 per cent from that for the previous year. The company's experience was 69 per cent below that of 1911. The market decline for this disease shows definitely the effect of what has been done through immunizing young children. The measles death rate last year was likewise the lowest on record. Diarrhea and enteritis also reached a new minimum, 7.8 per 100,000, which is 72 per cent less than that which prevailed in 1911.

"For the diseases related to childbearing, the record of 1929 of 13.5 per 100,000 was 5 per cent below that of 1928, and 32 per cent below the rate for 1911. Bright's disease, or chronic nephritis, also declined 4 per cent during the year, and 27 per cent since 1911.

"In view of these many minima, the year 1929 would undoubtedly have recorded the very lowest mortality in the history of the company had the experience not been spoiled by the influenza invasion of the first two months."

Dr. Dublin said the death rate among policyholders declined 30.6 per cent between 1911 and 1928. The greater decline in the mortality of the insured than for the general population resulted in the net saving of 44,604 lives in the insurance company's list in 1928 alone. The cumulative saving among the insured, in the seventeen-year period, above the saving expected from the decline in the general population mortality amounted to 359,367 lives, and represented a saving to policyholders of more than $100,000,000.

Rise in Expectation of Life.

The expectation of life among Metropolitan policyholders increased 9.25 years between 1911 and 1928, Dr. Dublin said, compared with a gain in the general population of 5.14 years. The expectation of life of industrial policyholders was 55.88 years in 1928; for the years of 1911 and 1912 it was only 46.63 years.

"The comparative record for tuberculosis is of very great interest," said Dr. Dublin. "Among the policyholders the tuberculosis death rate between 1911 and 1928 declined 60 per cent and for the registration States 50 per cent. This record is so remarkable that it alone is sufficient to justify all the health work that has been done by public and private agencies over the past thirty years. This disease, twenty years ago, was the principal source of mortality among wage earners. Today the tuberculosis death rate among the breadwinners of this country has been reduced to almost one-third of the earlier figure. Furthermore, maximum death rates for this disease now occur at the later ages in life when the children of the breadwinners are able largely to take care of themselves.

"Fatal accidents, as a whole, increased more than 2 per cent in 1929 and now rank as the sixth cause of death. The increase is entirely due to the larger number of automobile fatalities, which now constitute a third of all accidental deaths. We estimate that there was a total of more than 31,000 fatalities from this source in continental United States last year, of whom over 4,000 were our industrial policyholders. There seems to be no indication of improvement in this situation."

NAMED $1,000,000 RECEIVER.

Irving Trust Takes Over Automotive Royalties Corporation, Inc.

The Irving Trust Company was appointed yesterday as equity receiver for the Automotive Royalties Corporation, Inc., of Delaware, with offices in this city. Application for the appointment had been made by Charles McC. Chapman, of Mount Vernon, under judgment for $7,282, through Samuel J. Rosensohn, attorney.

Mr. Chapman said about $85,000 is due from the corporation to various creditors, many of whom are pressing for payment, and although its assets are worth between $1,000,000 and $2,500,000, it lacks ready cash. C. W. Parker, president of the corporation, consented to the equity receivership, saying he believed it necessary to protect creditors and the corporation itself.

The defendant corporation is engaged in the industrial engineering business. Its royalties, contracts and patents are estimated in the petition to be worth $2,000,000, that amount being included in the larger estimate of assets.

COTTON EASY AT END AFTER RISING EARLY

TOKIO NEWS HAS EFFECT

After maintaining a slight advance the greater part of yesterday's session, prices on the Cotton Exchange eased in the last hour and ended the day with a loss of three to a gain of two points. A decline in grain prices and smaller takings by world spinners influenced professional operators, but absence of definite selling pressure from the South limited the floating supply of contracts. Final trading in the January position took place at noon at 17.09c, with a discount of 20 points under March.

Trade demand for May below 17½c had a steadying influence, offsetting news from producing quarters. Reports from Japan of a reduction of 12 per cent in the output of cotton mills, owing to unsettled trade attending the decline in silver, and advices from the South of a 10 per cent cut in wages by a large mill, were factors in the day's trading. Liquidation by March holders widened the discount to a quarter cent under May, but trade price fixing on recessions held fluctuations within narrow limits.

Week-end figures showed spinners took less cotton than in any week since early September, and 86,000 bales under the corresponding week last year brought the season's total 500,000 bales behind last season. A small into-sight movement caused a decrease in the American visible of 10,000 bales more than last year, but the world's visible supply of all kinds increased 3,000 bales, compared with a decrease of 50,000 a year ago. The total is now 8,155,000 bales, or nearly 500,000 greater than last year and 860,000 larger than two years ago.

Exports for the season are 650,000 bales behind the corresponding date last season.

WHEAT PRICES SAG, LOWEST OF WEEK

Oats Are Sent Downward, With July at Fresh Bottom—Rye Has a Sharp Break.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Wheat values broke today 1⅜ cents to a new low for the week because of the weakness in foreign markets, the drop in corn and the failure of export business to develop despite the decline of the previous day. Trade was small, but the undertone was heavy and the close was at net losses of 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents, with buying against bids checking the downturn.

Winnipeg was 2 to 2⅛ cents lower, lack of export business counting heavily against that market. Liverpool was off ⅝ to ⅞d, with large Argentine and Australian shipments this week having considerable influence. Argentine markets, however, showed relative strength, Buenos Aires closing only ⅜ cent lower and Rosario ¼ cent despite a decline of ⅛ cent in the exchange rate.

No export business of consequence was reported. The basis at the Gulf was slightly easier, and there was talk of a larger movement in the Southwest. No. 1 hard at Kansas City was quoted as low as $1.17 nominally at the last, or 1 cent below the Farm Board loan level, while at Minneapolis the cooperatives bought a few cars of No. 1 northern at $1.25, the loan figure.

Primary receipts were 449,000 bushels; a week ago, 487,000, and a year ago, 780,000. Shipments were 479,000 bushels; a week ago, 582,000, and a year ago, 578,000.

All deliveries of corn sold at a new low on the crop. Scattered liquidation developed, and with stop-loss selling and a lack of aggressive buying the close was within a fraction of the bottom, with net losses of 1⅜ to 1¾ cents. The undertone was heavy at the last. The trade is generally talking a larger movement of cash grain from Illinois, and there were rumors of congestion at Peoria. Denials of congestion were received from that market, however, and the official report on Monday showed only 103,000 bushels in store there.

The local spot basis was ½ to 1½ cents lower compared with May, with purchases of 35,000 bushels to arrive. Private cables suggested that the Argentine acreage would be increased 15 to 20 per cent. Buenos Aires futures closed ¾ to 1¾ cents lower.

Primary receipts were 959,000 bushels; a week ago 749,000 and a year ago 1,342,000. Shipments were 452,000 bushels; a week ago 617,000 and a year ago 686,000.

Rye broke sharply and closed 2¼ to 4 cents lower, July leading the decline. A leading local operator was credited with selling the latter, while a house with Eastern connections sold the May.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

Sugar.

The sugar market was quiet yesterday. Futures opened 2 to 3 points lower, influenced by the weakness of the London market and selling by interests with Cuban connections. Later the market rallied to the previous closing levels. At the close values receded slightly, and final quotations were unchanged to 2 points lower.

Messrs. Guma Mejer estimate the Cuban crop at 4,628,354 tons. Cuba reported that no decision has as yet been reached regarding the plan to prohibit new plating. Sales were reported in the raw market yesterday of 5,000 tons of Porto Ricos, due Feb. 3, at 3.58. A small quantity of Philippines ex wharehouse were available at 3.61.

The London market was weak and demand was poor. Withdrawals of refined sugar in the local market were good and new business was practically nil. Prices in refined were unchanged. There is a report that a cargo of 6,000 tons of San Domingos, February-March shipment, was sold to San Francisco to be used for export purposes. The price was not reported, but was believed to be around 1.45 f. o. b.

Cables from Hamburg reported that Germany's export cargo had been increased to 230,000 tons, or 12 per cent of its production.

WOOL MARKET QUIET.

Home and Foreign Prices Are Lower.

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—The Commercial Bulletin of Boston will say tomorrow: "Business is quiet on Summer Street, although the effect of the London wool decline was largely discounted through the steady decline which had taken place in the foreign primary markets. Unfortunately, the decline in the primary markets appears not to have run its course and the wool trade as well as the manufacturers are disposed to wait eventualities.

"London is steadier since the opening at about opening prices. The primary markets are about 5 per cent lower for the week, Geelong being down 10 per cent from the previous sale.

"Opening of the new heavyweight staples by the American Woolen Company showed little change in prices from the level of six months ago on medium quality fabrics. Fine grade cloths and woolen filled items were down 9 to 10 cents a yard.

LONDON, Jan. 24 (AP).—A good selection, amounting to 10,113 bales, was offered at the wool sales today. The demand was better and 7,000 bales were sold at full current rates. The home trade freely bought greasy crossbreds and slipes. The supply of Cape of Good Hope and Natal was large and home and Continental dealers were buyers when holders met the market.

FACTORS BUY OLD FIRM.

Schefer, Schramm & Vogel Acquired by Commercial Corporation.

Purchase of the factory business of Schefer, Schramm & Vogel, which has been in existence since 1838, is announced by the Commercial Factors Corporation. This adds a third unit to the corporation, which had previously acquired Frederick Vietor & Achelis, Inc., and Peierls, Buhler & Co., Inc.

Anton Schefer will become a vice president and director of the Commercial Factors Corporation and Frederic F. de Rham of the Schefer organization will also be affiliated with the combined companies.

SENATE TARIFF VOTE DROPS HIDE PRICES

TURNOVER 760,000 POUNDS

Raw hide futures dropped 25 points between sales on the New York Hide Exchange yesterday when news was received of the failure in the Senate of the Oddie amendment for a tariff on hides. The market closed from 35 to 45 points lower than the previous close in the active months.

Conflicting opinions regarding the results of the Senate action were offered in leather and hide circles here. The prevalent view was that the keeping of hides on the free list was final, although there was some hope of further revisions to give tariff protection to the industry.

Hides have been kept at recent price levels in the hope that a tariff would be granted, it was said. One view regarding the failure of the Oddie amendment was that it called for too high a rate, to the extent that prominent shoe manufacturers insisted that it would cost the public nearly $100,000,000 a year in shoes.

The liquidation, which brought a turnover of 760,000 pounds of hide futures, was not regarded as particularly heavy. May, September and December were the only active positions in a possible eleven.

LIVE STOCK IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Hog prices were generally 15 to 25 cents higher today, the market, as a whole being the highest since Sept. 23. The extreme top advanced 25 cents to $10.60, while the day's average was 15 cents higher at $10.15. There were 20,000 hogs direct to packers in the day's arrivals, and the movement in the West was regarded as small for this time of year. The government live stock report attracted some attention. Most sales were at $9.90 to $10.40, with 250 to 350 pound butchers $9.50 to $10.30, 200 to 250 pound kinds $10 to $10.55, 160 to 200 pound averages $10.25 to $10.60, and packing sows $8.25 to $9.25. Packers bought 28,000 and shippers 11,000, with 4,000 left over. Receipts were 38,000, with 13,000 estimated for tomorrow.

Offerings of cattle were small, but demand was slow and the undertone weak. Quality was lacking. The bulk of the sales were at $11 to $13. Receipts were 2,000.

THE TIMES "HAS GROWN WITH THE CITY"

* * * The New York Times has grown with the city and is as amazing a development as any to be found there. To this may be added the compliment that it is not in size and comprehensiveness only that the newspaper is great, but in the wisdom, the farsightedness and the constructive policy with which it is directed. It is something to boast of that America has such a journal of news and opinion.

TRADE GAINS NOTED IN VARIOUS LINES

RISE IN STEEL PRODUCTION

Textiles Still Operating Under Close Curtailment—Expansion at Automobile Plants.

Weather conditions retarding the orderly progression of distributive trade from the quiet of the beginning of the year has not obscured the evidence of betterment in certain quarters, according to the weekly reviews of business and trade. A slight improvement has been noted in some industrial areas, particularly in the Central West and East.

"No broad revival of business has thus far appeared, nor was it to be expected so soon, yet something has been added to the gains that came with the turn of the new year. That progress, while limited in scope, has been achieved despite different retarding influences, among which commodity price unsettlement has remained prominent.

"With the main movement of wholesale quotations still in the direction of decline, although at a moderated pace this week, purchases which might be stimulated by more stable conditions are either being deferred or restricted to small lots to cover immediate and clearly defined needs. Isolated exceptions to that policy are not of deep significance, the general caution being clearly marked in buying and a disposition to await more concrete indications of probable future trends. Hence a wide resumption of activity continues in abeyance, and statistical records still reveal the deleterious effects of last Autumn's speculative disturbances.

Steel Situation Improves.

"The major consideration now, however, is in what lies ahead, and the great steel industry, which is an important barometer, is giving an encouraging demonstration of recovery. A rise of 20 per cent or more in the average rate of output from the low point of December is impressive, and the more so because it has resulted from actual demands and not from preparations for potential orders.

"The balancing of production with consumption in that field is a procedure which is being followed in many other channels, but curtailment, rather than increase, is the prevailing phase while adjustments are being completed. Distribution at retail, which obviously has an essential bearing on manufacturing operations, is more uneven, yet much of its variableness has been due to weather handicaps, especially in Western and Southern sections."

Bradstreet's state of trade says in part:

"Industry, led by the heavier trades, notably iron, steel and automobile manufacturing and coal mining, the latter reflecting exceedingly cold weather, has made quite fair advances, considering the extent of the quieting down visible in December. In some of the lighter trades, for instance, shoes, leather manufacturing, silk and rayon manufacturing, operations have also broadened. Cotton manufacturing still is under close curtailment, and in the mining industry copper production is being cut down, pending a clearer view of future price conditions or of stocks of metal on hand. Low prices for cotton have brought out good buying. Machine tool buying is more active.

Gains in Auto Production.

"The steel industries' broadening of buying demand is most visible in lines used in automobile, railway and structural lines, with even more price weakness noted, especially in pipes, sheets and shapes. Cruder forms of steel and of iron show little reflection of this, despite hints that the weakness in finished lines may foreshadow shading of prices of the cruder products. In the largest automobile centres, operations, especially in lower-priced cars, have expanded, a perceptible gain in operations since Jan. 1.

"Some of the other features of the week include reports of a good recovery over the bulk of the Northern Winter wheat area, the territory east of the Mississippi from Kansas northward. Heavy rains in Texas and Oklahoma are also reported, but low rural trade, and a good deal of damage has been done to vegetables and truck as far down as the gulf coast of Texas and to sugar cane in the fields in Louisiana.

"Cold weather and rains or snows have held down lumber production in the Pacific Northwest, but rains have benefited central and southern California crops, especially oranges in the lower part of that State, which were thought liable to injury from earlier cool weather. Lumber output in the Northwest is reported at only one-quarter of capacity, while production in Montana is reported ..."

BIG RISE IN TOBACCO SALES

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 24.—Tobacco sales on the Knoxville market for the current season reached 5,716,776 pounds, with a cash return to growers of $1,461,118, in selling for the week. The volume handled to date is 1,990,994 pounds in excess of the total volume of last year. Money paid to growers increased $178,561 over last year's mark.

Buyers Give "Stagger" Data.

Resident buying offices here are designating the afternoon periods at which they would prefer to have ready-to-wear salesmen call with samples. The action is in response to a questionnaire based upon the "stagger" plan for reducing the congestion of salesmen in the local buying offices drawn up by a committee of resident buyers and salesmen, following a recent meeting called by the Resident Buyers' Association. Under the plan salesmen without samples will call at the offices in the mornings from 9:30 to 10:30 o'clock. The officers are asked to indicate their first and second choices for seeing salesmen in the afternoon periods from Monday to Friday.

Dress Strike Date Uncertain.

Reports were current in the dress trade yesterday that the expected strike would be called on Feb. 4. Inquiry of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, however, brought the reply that no date has yet been set. In many instances manufacturers are trying to rush work on shipments due retailers in the near future in the hope of completing them before work stops. In others there is a tendency to deliver only merchandise that can be turned out without production pressure. Indications are that there will be a gradual tapering off in cutting and that the declaration of the strike will find stock lower than for a long time. One of the well-known producers stopped cutting last night.

Deny Mill Merger Report.

Officials of the Berkshire Fine Spinning Associates, Inc., denied yesterday a report from Fall River, Mass., that negotiations were under way for merging three important mills in that city with the concern's present set-up. The mills mentioned were the King Philip, the Davis and the Lincoln Manufacturing Company. Other than declaring that the reports were without foundation, the denial was not elaborated upon by the officials.

Hardware Trading Reduced.

Business conditions in the hardware field continued slightly "off" in the metropolitan district during the week. The cold snap of the last few days brought some activity in the sale of Winter materials at retail, but jobbers felt no benefit from this flurry in trading. A drop was reported in the number of orders on Spring and Summer hardware received by wholesalers from their customers. The movement toward advance ordering which was noticed during the early days of the month has disappeared. Jobbers are planning to spur trade, however, by the offering of special items.

Weather Helps Underwear Sales.

The cold weather experienced over a good part of the country has brought a surprisingly good wholesale call for heavyweight ribbed underwear, considering the lateness of the season, it was said here yesterday. The demand appears not to be evenly distributed, however. Buying of 1930 lines has been only fairly active so far, despite buyers' complaints about the way some manufacturers held back their prices earlier in the month. There is more willingness on their part than for several seasons to detail orders promptly, it was said. Not enough business has yet been taken to determine whether there is a falling off in union suits in favor of separate shirts and drawers.

Urges Drive on Home Furnishings.

Calling attention to the greater interest in home furnishings being shown by consumers, the Wall Paper Association of the United States is urging retailers to respond by making a special drive for Spring business. The trend, this group claims, is proving a boon to all interests catering to home decoration and can be made particularly profitable for retailers of wall paper. Data on merchandising, advertising and proper home decoration have been assembled by the organization for the use of its membership.

Strike Threat Affects Silks.

While the threatened strike in the dress trade has injected an element of uncertainty into the placing of additional orders for Spring broad silks, many of the mills are working on a good backing of orders. These are mainly concentrated upon sheer silks, flat crêpes and prints. The recent improvement in the call for prints is credited with having cleared the market of available stocks of these goods. Chiffon leads in the sheer silk division, while for afternoon dresses flat crêpe retains its lead.

Jobbers Placing Glass Orders.

The demand for window glass evidenced a little improvement during the week, reflecting the specifications placed by jobbers, The American Glass Review will say today. Inventory taking is practically completed and replenishment is getting under way. The outlook for plate glass is deemed encouraging by leading factors, as prospects are reported good for an early revival of activity in the automobile industry. Both production and shipments of rough rolled and wire glass products continue in fair seasonal volume. The coming week will be marked by the meeting of the Eastern division of the National Glass Distributors' Association on Thursday at the Hotel McAlpin.

Weather Spurs Coal Demand.

Increased consumption of bituminous coal for heating requirements lent material aid to the market during the week, Saward's Journal will say today. While industrial consumption was holding up to normal, the rate of production was in excess of the demand and stocks were piling up until the drop in temperatures gave relief. In the anthracite division the situation has improved greatly. Retailers' stocks have been drawn to fill new requirements and in their turn have ordered heavily from the producers. The strong demand for buckwheat coal has augmented the shortage which has existed in this size for some time.

Better Inquiry for Gray Goods.

Better inquiry for gray goods was apparent here yesterday, but no material increase in sales volume was reported. Business in limited quantities of printcloths was done at prices ranging from 5¾ cents for 38½-inch 60-48s to 8⅝ cents for 39-inch 80-80s. Further selling of 38½-inch 64-60s at 6⅛ cents by second hands was noted. Buyers paid 8 cents for 36-inch 56-60 four-yard sheetings and 7¼ cents for 37-inch 48-square goods of similar weight. Some trading in sheetings was done on the basis of 5⅞ cents for 37-inch 3.95s. A few transactions in 90-60 carded broadcloths were put through at 9 cents, and there was some buying of 40-inch 76-72, nine-yard combed lawns at 9¼ cents.

Rubber Curtailment Reported.

Reports on the progress of the movement to curtail the production of crude rubber received at the Rubber Exchange yesterday said the Telogoredjo United Planters, Ltd., one of the large producers in the Far East, would curtail their production 10 per cent. Another report said that the Dutch East Government had signified its agreement in principle but refused to identify itself actively with the movement.

REVIEW OF THE DAY IN REALTY MARKET

RAILROAD BUYS MORE LAND

The New York Central Railroad added to its holdings by purchasing from Darby Realty Company, Edgar C. Pewtress, president, the five-story factory building, 50 by 100 feet, at 511 to 515 West Fifty-first Street. The railroad also bought from Robert S. Brewster the five-story tenement house, 25 by 100 feet, at 508 West Forty-ninth Street. The purchases were made by the railroad through the holding company, the New York State Realty and Terminal Company, for its west side track-removal plan. Brown, Wheelock, Harris, Vought & Co. were the brokers.

The Neal Realty Corporation, Alfred M. Rau, president, bought the property at 114-116 West Fifty-third Street from the Bisco Company, William Simon, president. W. A. White & Sons and Cross & Brown were the brokers.

The Floyd Craig estate sold the five-story tenement house at 408 West Forty-sixth Street through George A. Bowman, broker, to an investor. The property had been in the family for forty-four years. Several leases were recorded. The Empire Shoe Corporation has taken for the fifteenth store in its chain the building at 54 West Fourteenth Street, 25 by 103.3 feet. The lease runs from May 1 next to Jan. 31, 1952, at $27,000 a year with a twenty-one-year renewal option. A lease on the store has been arranged by Louis Dorman to the [illegible] Holding Corporation, [illegible], president, the landlord. Adams & Co., Inc., acted as brokers.

The two-story garage at 139-47 East Thirty-first Street was leased by Adelaide and Henry F. Steeger to the Admar Garage Corporation, Nathan Adler, president, from Feb. [illegible] to Jan. 31, 1945, the rental increasing from $20,000 a year for the first three years to $25,000 a year for the last five years, in addition to taxes and assessments.

The Cleveland Columbus Corporation, Walter Heade, president, leased to the [illegible] Holding Corporation [illegible] West Forty-seventh Street and [illegible] West Forty-seventh Street from Dec. 17, 1929, to July 31, 19[illegible] [illegible].

Westmore Wilcox leased the dwelling at 136 West End Avenue to Blake L. Lawrence. Butler & Baldwin and Beatrice Ecclesine were the brokers. A four-story residence at 106 West Eightieth Street was leased for six years by a Mr. Whyman to a boarding and rooming house keeper. The reported rental is $28,000. Hudaky and Hattie M. Melhuish arranged the lease.

PLAN FIGHT TO CUT REAL ESTATE TAXES

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 24 (AP).—Remedies for alleged unfair taxation of landowners were considered today by the midwinter session of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. Proposals included the establishment of a severance or depletion tax on timber and minerals, or the imposition of a sales tax.

Milton P. Smith, president of the Phoenix real estate board, said a tax of 1 cent a pound on copper mined last year in Arizona would have permitted the ignoring of all other State taxes.

"The State government would have operated, and still the mines would have paid dividends of more than $25,000,000," he said.

Newton C. Farr of Chicago said real estate paid 85 per cent of Illinois taxes, and that the Chicago real estate board was developing a plan for a State income tax.

W. H. Daum of Los Angeles, president of the California Real Estate Association, condemned the income tax as "unjust and unfair," and recommended a sales tax similar to the gasoline taxes collected by many States.

Leonard P. Reaume of Detroit, president of the national association, advocated in his inaugural address cooperation with the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, the Mortgage Bankers Association of America and the United States League of Building and Loan Associations in the organization of real estate boards and taxpayers to eliminate "unfair" taxation.

A committee was ordered appointed to study the public lands question and report next Summer at the annual meeting in Toronto.

Business and House Exchanged.

Stalios J. Harroll has traded a half share in the Coffee Pot at 955 Amsterdam Avenue for a three-family house at 3,339 Twelfth Avenue, Brooklyn, held by Shoemer & Straus. John Stevason arranged the deal.

CAPTAIN GOES DOWN ON ABANDONED SHIP

WAS ON BRIDGE UNTIL END

Vessel Sank Quickly—Passengers Were Able to Save Most of Their Baggage.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 24 (AP).—Radio advices from Ushaia today reported that the German steamer Monte Cervantes, which went aground off that place Wednesday, sank last night. Commander Dreyer went down with the ship.

A working crew which had remained on board the vessel after it struck a rock, opening a big hole in the bow, barely saved themselves. The 1,100 passengers had been put ashore safely yesterday.

The Delfino Navigation Company, agents of the Monte Cervantes, previously had received a radio message from Commander Dreyer announcing that all the passengers and most of their baggage had been saved, adding that the attempt to lighten the ship was not successful. He said that he and his officers remained on board.

Messages received by the company declared the survivors number 1,120 passengers and 302 crew. The dispatches asserted the abandonment of the ship was carried out with discipline

At dawn wireless messages were received from Ushaia saying that Commander Teodoro Dreyer remained all the time on the bridge of the ship and went to his death as the ship pitched over and quickly sank. Commander Dreyer was born in Germany and was 56 years old. He became a captain in 1910 and took command of the Monte Cervantes two years ago.

Some apprehension was felt here today for the comfort of the passengers of the tourist ship and the crew, numbering about 1,500 altogether, who were put ashore by the Argentine war transport Vicente Fidel Lopez near Ushaia.

Ushaia, a bleak spot at the tip of the continent, is the seat of a penal settlement, inmates of which include the most notorious criminals of this country. There are few buildings except the long disused structures of an old mission station and a few stores and residences, hardly affording accommodation for so many as abandoned the Monte Cervantes.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—The Hamburg South American Line has directed its liner Monte Sarmiente to Ushaia, Argentina, to bring the passengers and crew of the Monte Cervantes to Buenos Aires, where it is expected to arrive Feb. 1.

The company is at a loss to understand how the accident happened. Captain Dreyer, they say, was an experienced seaman, highly esteemed in German shipping circles. The disaster will be investigated by the Hamburg Maritime Court.

'BUY AT HOME' DRIVES BY CIVIC BODIES SCORED

Speaker Tells Secretaries Conference Organizations Should Improve Cities Instead.

The New York Secretaries Conference, composed of secretaries of civic organizations and chambers of commerce, opened its mid-year conference yesterday at the Hotel Lincoln with about sixty secretaries from fifty New York cities in attendance.

J. Ken Johnston of Binghamton, in one of the 18 papers presented during the day, criticized the habit of many communities of conducting "Buy at Home Campaigns" with the aid of civic bodies.

Civic organizations, he said, should aid merchants by promoting better street and general civic conditions, improved service in stores and by conducting credit bureaus and similar services.

The conflict between large central merchants and small merchants in outlying districts, he said, presents a serious problem for chambers of commerce that are attempting to promote these conflicting business interests in a community.

Louis Wiley, business manager of THE NEW YORK TIMES, addressed the conference at luncheon on the work of civic associations in promoting their communities through newspaper and other advertising, in which work, he said, there is a constantly growing interest. He cited the work done for Southern California and several cities in the South in attracting residents and business investors, as examples of this type of advertising and its appeal.

William J. Russell of the Queens Chamber of Commerce, president of the conference, presided yesterday morning and John Gratke of the Broadway Association, vice president of the conference, presided in the afternoon. The meeting will conclude this morning with a session at the New York State Chamber of Commerce, 65 Liberty Street.

35 FINED UNDER LABOR LAW

Laundry Proprietor Jailed—Eight Guilty of Compensation Violations.

Magistrate Dreyer in Municipal Term Court yesterday fined thirty-five employers for violations of the labor laws. The thirty-sixth got two days in jail when he failed to pay a $20 fine. The prisoner is Jan Y. Chin of 305 East Seventy-second Street, proprietor of a Chinese laundry, who had pleaded guilty to operating his establishment in a bedroom where three persons slept.

Eight employers were found guilty of failure to provide compensation insurance for their employes and twenty-eight of minor violations. Jess Levin of 92 Lenox Avenue, operator of a Coffee Pot restaurant, was fined $100 for failure to provide compensation insurance for six employes for six months. A similar fine was imposed upon Francis Sinagnan & Co., owners of a candy factory at 2,776 Twelfth Avenue, as a third offender in keeping a woman employe at work later than 10:30 P. M.

SEES SHIPBUILDING IN BRITAIN AT LOW EBB

Sir Joseph Isherwood Says Business Is Lightest in His Memory.

Sir Joseph W. Isherwood, Bart., naval architect and inventor of the longitudinal method of ship construction which bears his name, who arrived Thursday on the White Star liner Homeric on his way to Canada, declared yesterday that shipbuilding in Great Britain was at the lowest ebb within his memory. He said that 1,200,000 tons of tankers were under construction at the various yards, mostly on the Clyde, but that the boom had died down. There was no building in Belfast, he added, and Harland & Wolff's was making contracts at the lowest price in its history, while the yards on the northeastern coast of England also were doing very badly.

The only big ship under construction for the North Atlantic trade, Sir Joseph said, was the Canadian Pacific 40,000-ton liner Empress of Britain. The new White Star motorship Britannic is nearing completion at Belfast and will enter the New York service early in the Summer.

Asked about the laying down of any big liners to eclipse the Bremen and the Europe, Sir Joseph said:

"I have not heard of anything being done by the White Star or Cunard in that respect. Such a vessel would take three years to construct and cost at least $20,000,000, and I do not know where either of these companies could raise the money. There has been a good deal of talk from the French Line in Paris about building a big thirty-knot liner to run against the Bremen, but nothing had been done toward laying one down before I left on Jan. 15.

"The two Italian lines, the Cosulich and the Generale Navigazione Italiana, have laid down two 47,000-ton liners which will have a speed of twenty-five knots and be constructed along the lines of the Aquitania.

"I have twenty-five tankers under construction in America and have come over to see how they getting along after my visit to Halifax.

NEWSPRINT SHIP HERE.

The Markland on Her Maiden Trip From Liverpool, N. S.

The steamship Markland, built for the Mersey Paper Company, to transport newsprint between Liverpool, N. S., and New York, docked yesterday afternoon at Pier 52, North River, on her maiden trip. She will be visited today by representatives of New York newspapers, who will be the luncheon guests of C. H. L. Jones, president of the Mersey company. Mr. Jones has been in the city for the last few days and was present to greet his ship on her arrival.

The Markland was built to make thirty trips a year between Liverpool and New York. She has five holds designed specially to carry paper, and is considered an outstanding example of her type of craft. She was built at Hull, England, at a cost of $430,000. She is 327 feet long.

WITNESS ATTACKS THE LOBBY INQUIRY

UPHOLDS GRUNDY'S VIEWS

New York University Lecturer Urges Curb on Senate as in House of Lords.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Arthur L. Faubel of New York City, secretary of the American Tariff League and formerly associate professor of economics at New York University, told the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee today that its whole investigation "seems so useless." He did not believe, he added, that the newspapers, in general, approved of the long-drawn-out inquiry. Complete agreement was expressed by the witness with statements made to the committee by Senator Grundy, former first vice president of the league, who would have the representation of "backward States" in Congress limited.

Mr. Faubel, who still lectures at the university, detailed the financial structure of the league, which has an annual budget of about $100,000 and 600 members, and frankly stated that it had worked in conjunction with the Republican National Committee for a few weeks during the Hoover campaign, before it was discovered that such cooperation might be illegal and was abandoned.

The witness corroborated statements made by W. Warren Barbour, former president of the league, and testified as to correspondence over Mr. Barbour's signature which he had been authorized to carry on.

Mr. Faubel, stating his opinion of the Senate Committee, turned to the value of the Senate itself, which, he held, might well be remodeled on the British system.

Indifferent as to Terms.

Senator Blaine asked the witness about a letter from George W. Brown, applying for membership in the league with the understanding that it would extend its aid in the protective tariff fight to the wool felt industry. The Senator asked if such cooperation is given to the league's members.

"We certainly shall do so in every way possible," Mr. Faubel replied.

"I don't claim one way or the other," witness said. "It is a matter of indifference to us whether we are called a lobbying organization or a legislative agency, or what. It is not important."

"You wrote a letter about it," Senator Caraway continued. "It was sufficiently important that you got out a letter to all your members about it in 1928."

"Yes, sir. It was at that time."

"You have lost interest in it since that time?"

"Yes, sir."

"When did you lose interest in it?"

"Oh, I can't give you the date, Senator."

"Oh, well, approximately, then?"

"Six months ago."

"What happened six months ago that made you lose interest in it?"

"I should say the appointment and functioning of this committee."

"Why should you have lost interest in it then?" the Senator asked.

"It seemed to me so useless a proceeding."

"This investigation is so useless?"

"No, this whole business about lobbying, and non-lobbying, and all the rest of it."

Grundy's Testimony Is Recalled.

As to the newspapers' attitude toward the inquiry, Mr. Faubel said, "it seems the universal opinion had been one of disapproval, as I remember it."

"You think that after this committee began its investigations," Senator Blaine asked the witness, "that it became less comfortable for lobbyists in about Washington?"

"No I don't believe I do," was the reply. "I haven't thought it is going to make very much difference."

"What activity has your organization engaged in since your former vice president was on the witness stand?"

"We have done exactly as we have always done, Senator."

"Are we to understand that you tell this committee," interrupted Senator Walsh of Montana, "that the activities of this committee in connection with the Eyanson matter have been quite generally disapproved?"

"Now just what particular activities of this committee do you know have been disapproved of by the press?"

"The whole Grundy affair," was the reply. "To the extent that I have read the newspapers, that was the impression I got."

"Grundy's statement was that the founders of the Constitution made a mistake. Do you concur in that?"

"I believe so; yes, sir," said the economist.

Thinks English System Is Better.

"And that certain States, like Pennsylvania, ought to have more Senators than New York, or New York more than Pennsylvania?"

Mr. Faubel could not go quite that far in his belief, but thought "the English system of government is probably preferable in a proposition of this kind."

"What is that?" asked Senator Caraway.

"In which the upper house has a very decided secondary acquiescing place."

"Then why not abolish it?"

"Why not?" asked the witness, shrugging and smiling. "You might givee it a different status, Senator."

"Oh, we understand you perfectly now," observed Senator Walsh. "The English system is better?"

"Yes, sir."

Senator Blaine leaned forward, tapping the table with a pencil.

"You would authorize the President, the King, to appoint lords and peers and Dukes?"

"Well, the details of it would have to be worked out," Mr. Faubel replied. "I have not gone that far."

"I didn't know but what you had ambitions to be a duke," observed the Wisconsin Senator.

"If so," said the witness, "I hope that you will be one, too."

Mr. Faubel said, however, that he had not yet lectured on this subject at the university.

The league cooperated with the Republican National Committee, of which Dr. Hubert Work then was chairman, from about August 1 to September 21, 1928, Mr. Faubel said, sending out publicity and posters relating to the tariff issue. This alliance was revealed by a letter sent out over Mr. Barbour's signature to members of the league, but Mr. Barbour had pleaded lack of knowledge of various activities, constantly referring the committee to Mr. Faubel, who as secretary is the active director of all of the organization's affairs.

Mr. Faubel said he had written a letter to R. H. Aishton, chairman of the executive committee of the Association of Railway Executives, in which it was stated that the league's plans called for as much as $300,000 a year. The money, the witness explained, could be used easily in carrying out "dreams" of branch offices in large cities and in increased routine work.

The New York headquarters, he said, cost $30,187 in 1929; distribution of the Tariff Review, $27,409; publicity and the statistical bulletin, $9,963; counsel, $6,080, and membership campaigns, $5,645.

The witness showed that the league had raised $142,677 in 1928, including $43,313.90 designated as a "special educational fund" for use in the tariff fight, first in conjunction with and then separate from the Hoover campaign. Total expenditures that year were $137,492.

For the first eleven months of 1929 $106,598.12 was raised and $103,831.90 expended, but the favorable balance was achieved through donations of $12,100 by the board of managers of the league. Of this sum, $32,602 was spent for tariff revision activities during consideration of the Hawley-Smoot bill.

DORAN SEES DRY LAW FAVORED BY MAJORITY

Wets in Audience at Civic Forum Discussion Laugh as He Points to Congress Votes.

Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and three other prominent dry leaders, speaking at Town Hall under the auspices of the Civic Forum, replied last night to arguments put forth a week previously under the same auspices by leading anti-prohibitionists. It was considered significant that, whereas, at the wet side of the discussion only about thirty drys were present, according to a vote of raised hands, last night two such votes failed to decide whether wets or drys were in a majority. Each discussion was attended by practically a capacity audience.

The wets fired many questions at the speakers after the addresses last night. They indulged in one of the loudest and longest laughs of the evening when, in answer to a question about whether he believed a majority of the people in the United States really favored prohibition, Mr. Doran answered:

According to the prohibition commissioner, prohibition has only one purpose and that is minimizing of the consumption of beverage alcohol.

"The question of personal liberty ceased to exist when two people began to live together in the same place," declared Commissioner Doran. "On the question of government supervision depends a large part of the continued prosperity of our country. Ten years is but a short time. We need to divest ourselves of our old-fashioned, nonsensical ideas of personal liberty and look at fundamentals."

Mrs. Catt, referring to the ten years of prohibition, said:

"This is but a little time with 100,000 years ahead. Prohibition will be enforced if we stick to it long enough."

Mrs. F. Louis Slade, Regional Director of the League of Women Voters, said New York newspapers had made her want to become a dry. She continued:

"They say men got drunk before prohibition and that nowadays ladies, or women get drunk. Well, I never believed in a double standard. If getting drunk is a bad thing, the sooner the women find it out the better."

Dr. E. H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, advised those who wished to know what the future held to "study the long curve" as it was "the trend, not the time, that counts in social reforms."

Dr. Charles Stelzle, sociologist and founder of the Labor Temple, spoke largely from the standpoint of labor's benefits from prohibition.

VOTES TO SUMMON MRS. WILLEBRANDT

COURT CONGESTION DENIED

Proposed Jury Elimination Is Called Unconstitutional at Another Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—As a result of a stormy session today the House Committee on Expenditures voted to ask Miss Mabel Walker Willebrandt to testify in conection with the pending bill that would transfer the Prohibition Bureau from the Treasury to the Department of Justice. "Gag rule" and "steam roller" were terms used by militant wets to describe the methods which they said administration leaders were using to push the pending legislation through.

It was Representative Schafer, Wisconsin, wet, who moved that Mrs. Willebrandt be called. Chairman Williamson ruled Mr. Schafer was out of order and Mr. Schafer hurled the charge of "gag rule." The Wisconsin member then appealed to the committee from Mr. Williamson's decision, and the committee overruled its own chairman by a vote of 8 to 7.

Assistant Attorney General G. Aaron Youngquist, in charge of dry law prosecutions in the Department of Justice, testified briefly concerning the proposed transfer, but declined to state his own views. W. C. Deming, president of the Civil Service Commission, discussed the relation of the transfer plan to civil service.

Jury Law Change Attacked.

While the expenditures committee was studying the bill providing for the actual transfer of the bureau, a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee was considering the proposed changes in the judicial system whereby United States commissioners would be empowered to try cases involving minor violations of the Volstead law, as recommended by the President's Law Enforcement Commission, of which George W. Wickersham is chairman.

Jesse C. Duke, a Washington attorney, appearing before the committee as an individual, characterized this proposal as "unnecessary, dangerous and unconstitutional."

Mr. Duke denied that courts were unduly congested. He cited figures to show there were 7,159 prohibition cases for jury trial in Federal district courts in the fiscal year of 1929, an average of fifty cases for each judge.

Representative Christopherson of South Dakota, chairman of the subcommittee, in an effort to explain the purposes of the bill, said he was seeking an interpretation as to what constituted a petty offense.

"It certainly has not," replied Mr. Duke.

Representative La Guardia of New York observed that the fact that prohibition had been written into the Constitution itself removed violations of it to the category of petty offenses.

Alcohol Control a Problem.

The question of the constitutionality of the proposed judicial change is worrying many members. Representatives Glover of Arkansas and McKeown of Oklahoma, who commended the change in testimony before the committee today, admitted this to be their chief concern.

The committee handling the prohibition transfer bill, however, has other worries, the question of the proper placing of responsibility for industrial alcohol being one of them.

Samuel C. Smith of Chicago, secretary of the National Association of Retail Druggists, who appeared before the committee, disliked the joint control by the Treasury and Department of Justice, as proposed in the bill. He deplored the possibility of double investigations, particularly investigations by the Department of Justice, which, he contended, would carry with them implications of criminal wrongdoing.

TOWN TREASURER CLEARED.

North Bergen Clerk Said to Have Confessed Theft After Arrests.

Soon after his arrest yesterday with Harry Jager, treasurer of North Bergen (N. J.) Township, on bench warrants charging him, with Vincent Amarosa, a clerk in the treasurer's office, of embezzling $3,762.70 of the township's funds, Amarosa is said to have exonerated Jager and to have admitted that he, Amarosa, had taken the money and lost it speculating in Wall Street. Arraigned before County Judge Thomas H. Brown, Amarosa was released in $7,500 bail and Jager was paroled in the custody of J. Emil Walscheid, counsel for North Bergen.

According to Prosecutor John Drewen, Amarosa made a confession in which he described how he took the money. "On receipt of checks and cash for various credit items in the treasurer's office," the confession is said to declare, "I would enter the amounts properly in the books but deposit only the checks. The cash I would retain. To offset the balance in the township records, I would increase records of expenditures for certain items."

The bench warrants were obtained by Robert Sanwald, who recently furnished $5,000 for a Supreme Court inquiry in the township, on evidence obtained by accountants working under Harry Braverman, a municipal accounting expert. Altogether six township employes have been arrested in three weeks.

Mrs. Straus to Change Ships Twice.

Mrs. Oscar Straus, widow of the first United States Ambassador to Turkey, who is now at sea on the Conte Biancamano, will leave the ship at Naples to board the Columbus, from which she will transfer at Bombay, India, to the Resolute, it was announced at the offices of the Hamburg-American Line yesterday. The double transfer, it was explained, would permit Mrs. Straus to join her friends, Mrs Lee Kohn of this city and the latter's daughter, Dorothy, who are on a world tour on the Resolute.

Chief Justice Taft Much Better.

VIEWS FORAN CASE AS TEST OF HOOVER

MELLON TO REPORT SOON

Washington Opinion Is He Will Say Nothing in Foran's Record Prevents Reappointment.

G. Rowland Munroe, counsel to the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, said yesterday that organization had asked President Hoover for a complete investigation into all phases of New York customs enforcement having to do with penalties and the collection of fines.

Mr. Munroe said also that the league's opposition to the reappointment of Colonel Arthur F. Foran as Controller of Customs for the Port of New York was to "see if President Hoover meant what he said about Federal officials who flout the dry law." In this connection Mr. Munroe quoted from a letter which he said was sent by President Hoover to Fred E. Britten, secretary of the Florida Republican committee, about Federal appointments. The letter, dated Sept. 26, 1929, was quoted in part by Mr. Munroe as follows:

"This is an obligation of the people in the interest of the State and the first tenet in that program is that no longer shall the laws of the United States be flouted by Federal officials."

Mr. Munroe said he did not believe that letter was an "idle gesture," and felt sure the President would adhere to its principles. The attack made by the Rev. James K. Shields, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, against Colonel Foran would bring this fact out, according to the league's attorney.

Munroe Scores Foran.

"A man such as Colonel Foran, not in sympathy with the policies of the administration," Mr. Munroe continued, "should have had the grace not to seek reappointment. It seems to us that this is not a question of the appointment of, or the failure to appoint, a certain man, but involves an exemplification of the policy of the administration that, regardless of political pressure, a man flouting the Federal laws 'does not come up to my requirements,' to quote from President Hoover's letter to the secretary of the Florida committee.

"Mr. Foran has not attempted to deny that he is out of sympathy with the Eighteenth Amendment and the Federal prohibition law, nor that he flouted the law in his personal habits. When shown pictures of a bar and of slot machines found in his lodge, he is not quoted as having denied that these pictures were true, but answered evasively."

Foran Avoids Controversy.

Colonel Foran, who, with other Federal officials here, has been accused by Mr. Shields of neglect of duty and conspiracy to defraud the government of revenue, returned to New York yesterday. He refused to comment on the accusations against him other than to say:

"My name is before the President of the United States for reappointment. It would be very unbecoming of me to say anything, or enter into any controversies that might be interpreted as an effort on my part either to influence or embarrass him."

In connection with the charges against Colonel Foran, it was alleged that Herbert L. Pratt, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of New York, had purchased about $25,000 worth of champagne from the Go-Bart Company and that after being smuggled in to him it was discovered at his home and seized, but that he had not been fined $5 a bottle in accordance with what Mr. Shields said was a customs rule. The customs officials explained that such fines were not the custom when the liquor was smuggled in commercial quantities.

Mr. Pratt is still at his hunting lodge in Ridgeland, S. C. Henry Alan Johnston, attorney and expert on prohibition enforcement matters, said on Thursday that the government had no case against Mr. Pratt, as the purchase of liquor was not forbidden by the Volstead act.

United States Attorney Tuttle, whose investigation of the Go-Bart Company's activities already has resulted in several indictments for violation of the prohibtion laws, said that the inquiry, by no means finished, was in the same condition as it had been on the previous day. He would not say whether he expected to ask Mr. Pratt to appear before the Federal grand jury investigating this case, but declared the inquiry would take in every person connected in any way with the activities of the alleged liquor smuggling concern.

Mr. Shields was still in Washington yesterday. He was believed to be seeking an appointment with the President, although it has been announced that Mr. Hoover would not discuss the charges against Colonel Foran and other New York officials of the Customs Service until he receives a formal report after investigation.

Realty Boards Await Report.

No word had been received yesterday by either the Brooklyn or Long Island Real Estate Boards regarding Prohibition Commissioner Doran's reported statement from Washington that he had an understanding with real estate boards looking toward improvement in the padlock situation.

William L. Enequist, president of the Long Island board, said that he did not believe a request from Commissioner Doran that real estate boards exercise diligence in leasing property was necessary, because it implied that they were not doing so now. This implication, he said, was not justified.

"There is no doubt in my mind that all reputable property owners in Long Island are careful not to lease to persons who might violate the law," Mr. Enequist said. "However, we will be glad to cooperate in any way we can."

Stephen F. Barrera, president of the Brooklyn Real Estate Board, would not comment on the report until he had received a full statement of Commissioner Doran's views.

FEDERAL INQUIRY PUSHED.

But Observers in Capital Doubt That Foran Charges Will Be Upheld.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Secretary Mellon will report within a few days to President Hoover on the results of the department's investigation of charges by the Rev. J. K. Shields, superintendent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, against Colonel Arthur F. Foran, Controller of Customs of the Port of New York. The report is expected to include Secretary Mellon's recommendations as to the reappointment of Colonel Foran, whose term expires Jan. 31.

An impression prevailed at the Treasury that Secretary Mellon's report would advise the President that there is nothing in Colonel Foran's record, as far as the department is concerned, to prevent his reappointment.

Treasury officials today revealed that a Federal agent who accompanied New Jersey officials on the recent raid on the hunting lodge of Colonel Foran at Mount Airy, N. J., was not officially connected with the raiding party. Assistant Secretary Lowman said that his investigations showed that the Federal agent had accompanied the party at the request of the State officers, but had not acted, or entered the lodge, when no liquor was found.

Before he departed for New York this afternoon, James M. Doran, prohibition enforcement commissioner, said he expected to be able to present to Senator Kean of New Jersey a statement of the case as it affects Colonel Foran. Both Senators Kean and Baird of New Jersey vigorously endorsed the reappointment of Colonel Foran after Mr. Shields's charges that Foran was an enemy of the prohibition law had been filed.

Dr. Doran said he had not received a detailed report of an investigation by Administrator William J. Calhoun, at Newark, N. J.

Before he started for New York, Dr. Doran also conferred with Mr. Shields. Mr. Shields, it was said, filed with Dr. Doran several photographs and affidavits in connection with the alleged discovery of bottles and kegs outside the Foran camp.

The charges filed two weeks ago by the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League against Colonel Foran, Philip Elting, Collector of the Port, and four other customs officials in New York, appeared today to have collapsed, although the inquiry by the Treasury officials into the allegations was still in progress.

There was every indication that the officials would be held not guilty of the charges of failure to collect some $16,000 in penalties in connection with the seizure of an illicit importation of liquor said to have gone to Herbert L. Pratt, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of New York.

It was explained that penalties are not collected in such cases, these being levied only in the case of minor violations of the law against importation of illicit beverages. The evidence in connection with this transaction, which was a part of the general investigation of the famous Go-Bart case, is in the hands of United States Attorney Tuttle in New York.

SPAFFORD DEMANDS REPEAL OF DRY LAW

In his first public speech against prohibition Edward M. Spafford, Past National Commander of the American Legion, declared yesterday that he opposed any change in the American Constitution which curtailed the rights and liberties of the individual.

Mr. Spafford, who spoke at the annual meeting of the Women's Committee for Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, at the Hotel Ritz-Carlton, asserted that while progress necessitates changes in the laws of the nation, basic principles of liberty in the Constitution must remain forever unchanged.

Mr. Spafford attacked a recent statement by Dr. James M. Doran, Prohibition Commissioner, holding anti-prohibition propaganda responsible for the killing of two dry agents in Florida, and added that this statement conveys the meaning of a withdrawal of the right of liberty of speech and freedom of the press.

Comparing the position of the Coast Guard in the Black Duck killing with that of the German submarine which sank the Lusitania, Mr. Spafford asserted that both commanders acted under the strictest orders, but that while the whole world protested against the action of the submarine, "the dry forces of this country applauded the killing performed in the name of prohibition." He demanded that those who advocate the use of arms for prohibition enforcement "should not be permitted to hire decent people to do their killings, but should be required to pull the triggers themselves." The Coast Guard, organized to save human life, always had been highly esteemed, while now it is condemned throughout the country, he declared.

Mr. Spafford said that in his travels as Commander of the Legion, covering a total of 91,000 miles, liquor was offered to him in each of the 190 communities he visited.

Mr. Spafford announced tentative plans for a series of "spirit of '76" parades to be arranged in all cities of the country by organizations against prohibition. The committee voted unanimously to participate in such a demonstration.

BISHOP CANNON ASKS TIGHTER DRY LAWS

HITS WICKERSHAM CRITICS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—A demand that Congress promptly provide whatever "legislation, money and men" are necessary to suppress "this twentieth century whisky rebellion," was made by Bishop James Cannon Jr., chairman of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, before he left for New York this afternoon to sail at midnight for Africa.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, Cardinal O'Connell, the Rev. Dr. John A. Ryan, and others were denounced by Bishop Cannon for their criticism of the Law Enforcement Commission's report. He asked how it would have been possible for Governor Smith to support prohibition in the 1928 campaign, when "Roman Catholic ecclesiastical leaders" opposed it.

"On January 13, President Hoover sent to Congress a special message conveying report number one of the Law Enforcement Commission concerning prohibition, with the request that the recommendations of the commission be embodied by Congress in the prohibition law," Bishop Cannon stated. "This is the first time that any President, since the prohibition amendment was ratified, has made a direct recommendation to Congress to adopt legislation to secure better enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, and this action of the President has evoked varied and diverse responses.

"First, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, with the egotistical arrogance which characterizes his utterances, rushed into the arena and denounced the report as 'pathetic evidence that Washington, like the Emperor Nero, fiddles while Rome is burning.' Dr. Butler clamors 'to clear out of the House of Representatives in November next those wretched creatures who sit there to cheer and to laugh when murder is extolled in their presence.'

"What condemnation is severe enough for the president of a great university who deliberately misrepresents and perverts the attitude of patriotic Congressmen who declared their intention to support the officers and men of the Coast Guard in the performance of their duty, rather than to make martyrs of smugglers and murderers.

"Second, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, the leader of a group of society women opposed to prohibition, finds nothing of value in the report. Mrs. Sabin's statement utterly fails to recognize that there is morally no distinction between those whom she contemptuously brands as 'prohibition's criminal offspring, the bootlegger, smuggler, and the racketeer,' and those who she declares 'in their resentment of the law's invasion of their personal liberties will continue in their every-day lives, deliberately and completely to disregard the law's very existence.'

"Third, on Jan. 19, Cardinal O'Connell of Boston is reported by the secular press to have denounced the prohibition law as 'frantic and futile,' and on Jan. 23, Archbishop Curley of Baltimore is reported by the secular press to have declared in Washington, 'I am against shotgun rule in the enforcement of law.'

"Fourth, this clearly expressed determination on the part of the President to secure more effective enforcement of the prohibition law has stirred to a frenzy the noisy little 'wet' minority in Congress, who are now in their clamorous rage shrieking that the law cannot and shall not be enforced, in which almost daily hysterical outbursts they receive constant encouragement and support from the 'wet' metropolitan press.

"The best answer to these would-be nullifers of the Constitution and to the 'wet' metropolitan press was given by Chairman Wickersham in his radio address on Wednesday night when he truly said, 'We believe there is a great body of balanced sentiment in the country which believes in obedience to the law, which responds to an appeal to support the institutions of the country and which will support conservative measures for improving the machinery of law enforcement.'"

DECLARES REALTY MEN PROMISE DRY LAW AID

Commissioner Doran Says Agreement on Padlocks Has Been Reached in Several Cities.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP).—The Washington Evening Star today quotes Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran as saying prohibition authorities have an "understanding" with real estate boards in other cities looking toward amelioration of the padlock situation in commenting favorably on decision of the Washington board to cooperate with the government in reporting any speakeasies that might be found in properties under the board's jurisdiction.

Doran was quoted as saying the understanding provided that property owners and realty dealers exercise "care and diligence with respect to leasing of property to tenants" and that in return dry officials "will bring to the attention of the owners and dealers instances of law violation before launching proceedings with a view to padlocking the premises."

The commissioner also was quoted by The Star as saying that while he had not had an opportunity to study details of the Washington board's plan he understood it went further than that approved by any other similar organization in meeting the padlock problem by eliminating violations.

John A. Petty, executive secretary of the Washington board, today reiterated the board's action was designed solely to protect real estate dealers and their clients from the "effect of bootlegging operations" and from the "serious consequences of padlocking." He added he had wired Harry H. Culver, president of the National Association of Real Estate boards, explaining the action.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 24 (AP).—L. A. Weizenmuller, president of the San Francisco Real Estate Board, said enforcement officers here had requested the local board's cooperation "two or three years ago."

President Weizenmuller said it was "simply acceptance of the prohibition authorities' suggestion that the board agree to work with them to eliminate tenants operating contrary to the Volstead act."

Fireman Is Killed in Quebec.

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 24 (Canadian Press).—One fireman was killed and two others were injured when the roof of the T. Sinlard dry goods store, a two-story building, collapsed after fire had spread from the basement to the top of the structure. A general alarm was turned in in an effort to prevent the flames from spreading to other buildings.
